New flood of LSD alarms drug squad

By DEREK SIDENIUS

RCMP spokesmen say LSD is pouring into B.C. in a flood reminiscent of the late 1960s.

They believe most of the hallucinogenic drug is manufactured in California and shipped here in liquid form.

It is showing up in such large amounts that the RCMP drug teams are giving it a priority second only to heroin.

The upsurge in the supply and use of the brain-crippling drug has police alarmed and puzzled.

For nearly a decade the drug had fallen out of favor with drug users, a situation largely brought about by numerous reports in the early 70s of the devastating effects LSD can have on the brain.

But today the drug is almost as plentiful as the late 60s when it was rampant in the drug sub-culture.

"It's just crazy," said Staff Sgt. Abe Snidanko, a unit commander with the RCMP drug squad in the Lower Mainland.

"How come a stupid drug like this is coming back? How come they are using it again? I just can't understand it."

Staff Sgt. Bob Hawkes, head of the Victoria drug squad, said LSD use has increased alarmingly not only in B.C. but throughout North America.

There appears to be an abundant supply in Victoria where it is readily available at the street level, he said.

Hawkes said police began to notice increased trafficking in LSD about 1½ years ago when a known Victoria drug dealer was arrested in the United States in connection with a large LSD operation that was being set up in the Berkeley, Calif. area.

"We knew he was involved in drugs but we never suspected he was into LSD as well," Hawkes said.

Police believe most of the drug is being manufactured in California and brought to B.C. in liquid form where it is diluted and put on blotters.

There is no indication of a lab anywhere in B.C. although the street is rife with rumors to the contrary.

Snidanko said the drug trade appears to be leapfrogging Oregon and Washington.

The Seattle Drug Enforcement Agency has reported no dramatic increase in LSD use in their area.

Police sources are unaware of any large organized trafficking ring. Most of the trade, they say, is carried out by small-time, loosely-connected operators, making it that much more difficult for drug officers to stem the flow.

The profits are enormous. An ounce of pure LSD yields thousands of "hits," each with a street value of between $4.50 to $5.

Ten years ago a hit of LSD sold for about $3.

Snidanko said research has shown the LSD currently being sold on the street is less potent than that a decade ago.

Then the average hit contained about 250 micrograms of pure LSD. Today the average is in the 70 to 100 microgram range although some samples seized have been as low as 10.

He said that may be the primary reason for an increasing number of young people returning to the drug. They think it is safer.

But, Snidanko said, they are only fooling themselves. LSD tends to accumulate in the body and after repeated use can build up to dangerous levels that could lead to irreparable brain damage he said.

"From our contact with doctors we are already getting some really erratic behavior signs from people using the drug," he said.

Ironically, LSD has mushroomed back into use just as drug officers, through extensive investigations over the past seven years, have been able to dry up the sources and suppliers of another dangerous chemical — MDA.

76 die as blast rips rail station

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — A powerful explosion, possibly caused by a terrorist bomb, ripped apart the main Bologna railway station today killing at least 76 people and injuring almost 200 vacation travellers.

The toll was expected to go higher, with some of the injured in grave condition and another 20 or more persons feared still buried under the debris that police said might take until late Sunday to clear away.

Part of the station roof fell onto a train just leaving loaded with vacationers. Many of the injured suffered second- and third-degree burns.

The only foreigner named so far among the victims was Hans Jurt, 60, mayor of Aesch, Switzerland, who was injured and taken to hospital. A hospital spokesman said his injured are not serious.

A neo-Fascist urban guerrilla group, the Armed Revolutionary Nuclei (NAR), telephoned a Rome newspaper to claim responsibility for the blast, but authorities said it was impossible to say whether a bomb or an accident caused the disaster.

An hour earlier a Bologna magistrate had indicted eight neo-Fascists for causing 12 deaths with a bomb put on board a train near Bologna exactly six years ago.

Despite the coincidence, fire department spokesmen said before the guerrilla group made its claim that the evidence pointed toward an accidental escape of gas fumes.

Survivors spoke of a strong smell of gas fumes only seconds before the restaurant area was enveloped in a huge burst of yellow-black flame.

$2.1 million heroin grab

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP arrested a 26-year-old woman and a 21-year-old man and seized more that $2.1 million worth of heroin Friday night at Vancouver International Airport. A pair arrived on a flight from India via Tokyo.

Wild chase over Malahat

An 18-year-old youth is in custody after one of the longest and wildest police car pursuits ever in this area.

It took six RCMP cars — three from Colwood and three from Duncan and Shawnigan Lake — to finally stop the vehicle on the Trans Canada Highway opposite Whippletree Junction near Duncan, 40 km down the road from where the chase began.

In that time, the fleeing vehicle, a pickup truck:

—Collided with three cars, a bus and two motorcycles causing about $4,000 damage.

—Knocked one of the cyclists off his bike. (He only received minor injuries).

—Went through red lights, passed on double solid lines, drove on the wrong side of the road around blind corners and reached speeds up to 130 kmh.

—Ignored a police roadblock at Mill Bay.

Police lost count of the number of vehicles forced off the road in the wild 20-minute ride.

Joey Day, of 821 Seven Oaks Road, appeared before a justice of the peace in provincial court in Victoria this morning charged with criminal negligence, hit and run and driving with a blood alcohol reading of more than .08.

The incident began shortly after 10 p.m. when a motorist reported to police he had been rear-ended by a pickup truck while stopped at a red light at Helmcken and the Trans Canada Highway. The truck then sped off.

Police spotted the truck at Millstream just as it passed at high speed a car stopped at a red light.

On the long straight stretch before Sooke Lake Road cutoff, the truck veered into the opposing lane to pass a string of seven cars.

As it was returning to its proper lane it sideswiped a southbound bus.

A few kilometres further down the highway the truck sideswiped another car and then hit two more vehicles as it sped up the Malahat, police said.

Two other Colwood RCMP cars joined the chase and Duncan detachment was alerted to set up a roadblock at Mill Bay.

Police said as the driver was heading up the hill towards the south Shawnigan Lake cutoff he pulled alongside a motorcycle travelling in the slow lane and then swung over and collided with the bike knocking the rider, Ronald Wong, 18, of Portland, Oregon, to the ground.

Wong was taken to Victoria General Hospital where he was treated for cuts and bruises and later released.

Police said the driver did the same thing to Wong's travelling companion, Ty Amidon of Sandy, Oregon, who was riding ahead, but Amidon managed to stay on his bike and wasn't hurt.

The truck skidded around three police cars blocking the lane at Mill Bay and the police cars gave pursuit.

Finally one of the police cars got in front of the truck and with police cars front, back and side, the driver was boxed in.

He pulled over at Whippletree and surrendered without a struggle.

Press layoffs 'deplored' by union

One of the unions representing Victoria Press employees has said the company should explore ways of averting the layoff of employees.

The union — the Victoria local of The Newspaper Guild — said in a prepared statement it deplores the 'cruel, cold and callous manner in which Thomson Newspapers announced the layoffs of 62 employees Friday" and the merger of the papers.

Affected employees were given 30 days' notice and will receive severance pay of one week's salary for each six months of service. The layoffs were made on the basis of seniority according to the agreements with the unions. The agreements call for 30 days' notice to the unions but only two weeks' notice to individual employees.

Amalgamation of the Victoria Times and the Daily Colonist into the Times-Colonist, and the layoffs, effective Sept. 2, were announced by Colin McCullough, vice-president of Victoria Press which publishes the papers.

McCullough said officials of the Thomson Newspapers Ltd. organization which owns the Victoria papers did not issue any instructions in relation to the merger.

He said it was a management decison reached locally.

"The problems in trying to publish two distinct newspapers are not new. People have been talking merger around here for years and if it hadn't happened now, they would still be talking about it next week," he said.

McCullough said the Victoria Press operation has been only marginally profitable since the early 1970s.

"We're keeping ahead, but that's about all and only because we've been cutting costs."

Noting that the two papers merged newsroom space two years ago, sharing a number of editorial functions, McCullough said the distinctiveness of each

B.C. still leader in divorces

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 59,000 marriages ended in divorce last year, an increase of 4.1 per cent from 1978, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

The number of divorces per 100,000 population increased by 3.2 per cent to 251 in 1979 from 243 a year earlier.

British Columbia held on to its title of divorce capital of Canada, with 343 divorces per 100,000 people.

Alberta was a close second with 324. Newfoundland as usual had the lowest rate, 84 divorces per 100,000 people, but that represented a 12.3-per-cent increase over 1978 figures.

Nova Scotia had the greatest increase, 15.1 per cent, in divorce rate.

The number of divorces increased everywhere except Quebec, Manitoba and the Yukon.

New oil agency rapped

OTTAWA (CP) — The NDP have attacked the government's new Petroleum Monitoring Agency, calling it a 'watchdog without teeth.'

Ian Waddell, the New Democratic Party's energy critic, said Friday the agency will be useless without the power to roll back oil company profits and prices.

He suggested the agency, announced earlier in the day by Energy Minister Marc Lalonde, should be given the same powers as the now-defunct anti-inflation board to examine company books and order rollbacks.

The agency has been empowered to examine the oil industry's costs, profits, exploration and production programs and extent of Canadian ownership.

"There's a real danger that these figures will mean nothing unless the agency can really get into the books," the British Columbia MP said.

"The problem is that the watchdog has no teeth. Oil companies will not feel threatened by the agency," he said.

The new agency, headed by former anti-inflation board chairman Harold Renouf, is to collect information from throughout the industry on costs, profits, exploration, production, use of resources and the extent of Canadian and foreign ownership, Energy Minister Marc Lalonde told a news conference Friday.

However, the agency will not have powers to roll back excess profits and can only make recommendations to the government on policy and prices governing the industry.

Lalonde said the idea is to keep a close watch on production costs, expenditures and investment pat-

Mideast talks delay?

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt was reported today to have asked Israel to delay sending its advance party to prepare resumption of Palestinian autonomy talks amid controversy over Israeli legislation making all of Jerusalem the capital of the Jewish state.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Aly, meanwhile, told reporters that he met privately today with U.S. Ambassador Alfred Atherton and that the envoy reaffirmed Washington's non-recognition of Israel's 1967 annexation of Arab East Jerusalem, which previously had been ruled by Jordan and which contains Islam's third holiest shrine — the Dome of the Rock.

Egyptian foreign ministry sources said today Egypt asked for a delay of preparations for the autonomy talks until Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin receives Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's reaction to the controversial Jerusalem legislation.

Rail station ripped apart by blast

The station's gas-fired water heating plant lay directly beneath the restaurant. The fire department spokesman said it would be many hours before workers could penetrate into the area to determine whether it had exploded.

Police said the section of the building that collapsed housed the bar-restaurant and the first- and second-class waiting rooms. Hundreds of firemen and policemen using bulldozers and mechanized shovels dug through the rubble searching for more victims.

Part of the collapsed section fell over three or four cars of a train bound for Basel, Switzerland, from Ancona, Italy, trapping an unknown number of passengers, police reported. Some in the train were feared dead, police said.

Dozens of ambulances and private cars shuttled back and forth between the station and hospitals in this northern Italian city.

A police spokesman said those in critical condition with burns were taken by helicopter to a special burn hospital in Padua, Italy, for treatment.

"It was a tremendous explosion," said Bologna journalist Lamberto Sapori, who was at the station when the blast occurred. "I saw a huge yellow-red flame and immediately after a mushroom-shaped cloud hung over the collapsed section of the building for a few minutes."

Salvatore Formica, the Italian transportation minister, flew from Rome to Bologna to supervise rescue operations.

The entire left side of the station was destroyed by the blast, leaving only twisted girders and broken concrete columns standing.

A small boy was brought out alive nearly three hours later and taken to hospital. A baby boy and girl were among the dead on board the train.

In a call to the Rome newspaper La Repubblica, the NAR group played a tape with the following message:

"This is the NAR. We claim responsibility for today's attack on Bologna station. Honor to Comrade Tuti."

Mario Tuti, a neo-Fascist already serving a life prison sentence for killing two policemen, was one of the eight neo-Fascists indicted earlier today for the 1974 bomb blast aboard a passenger train in a tunnel between Bologna and Florence, Italy.

Police refused to say whether they believed the NAR's claim, but the prefect of Bologna, fearing left-wing reprisals, commented: "Let us hope it was an accident."

If today's disaster was deliberately caused, it would be by far the most deadly terrorist attack in Italian or European history.

Italy's previous worst was the "Massacre of Piazza Fontana" in 1969, when 16 people were killed by a bomb set off in a Milan bank.

Bologna is a key point in Italy's railway system.

After the blast the station was closed, bringing traffic over much of the country to a halt.

Press layoffs deplored

paper was being eroded.

"We've been trying to keep two papers and get costs in line, but our editorial coverage has been diminishing. By combining the staffs of the two newsrooms into one, we will have staff for one paper which is large enough to do a good job of reporting all the news of Victoria and the Island."

The Times and Colonist were part of the $164-million purchase by Thomson Newspapers of the eight-newpaper FP Publications Ltd. group earlier this year.

Ken Thomson, chairman and chief executive officer of Thomson Newspapers, noted earlier some of the FP newspapers are in financial difficulty.

The ailing Calgary Albertan was sold to Toronto Sun Publishing Ltd. shortly after Thomson took over FP.

McCullough said of the Victoria papers:

"The return on revenue is not anything like that on other newspapers I know, except those in danger of closing their doors."

Colonist publisher R. J. Bower, calling the demise of his 122-year-old newspaper a "very tragic event," announced he is retiring after 20 years with the Colonist.

Nine Colonist editorial employees were laid off, including city editor Leslie Drew, while the Times lost 11 reporters and copy editors.

The remainder are office and trades employees.

The guild, which represents 192 of the papers' 360 employees, called for an immediate meeting with management to discuss the layoffs, saying they are not warranted.

In a statement, the guild said: "We protest the fact that the company did not notify the unions and the employees in advance, and failed to explore alternatives to save as many jobs as possible."

The guild said it has co-operated in the past with the company in times of economic hardship, and called on the company to look at attrition, job sharing and early retirement or resignation of those near retirement age rather than dismissals.

"No case of economic necessity has been made for the merger, and a recent independent assessment showed that Victoria Press made a healthy profit in the last fiscal year," its statement said.

The statement did not disclose when or by whom the independent assessment was made.

The guild is recommending to its members that they express their frustration and anger by withdrawing their bylines and columns, working to rule and cancelling their subscriptions.

"We are also exploring the possibility of legal action or assistance for legal action on behalf of the employees who have been fired," the union announced, adding it does not believe the public of Greater Victoria will be better served by the merger with a reduced editorial and mechanical staff.

"It will be impossible to do a better job."

The new paper will publish morning and evening editions Tuesday to Friday with the evening paper updatind local, general and sports news after publication of the morning version.

terns within the industry to give the government a better idea of exactly how much money should be channelled to oil companies from higher petroleum prices.

Information gathered by the agency is to be made public and an annual report will also be released.

The energy minister said the government already has information on industry profits as required under the Petroleum Corporation Monitoring Act. The new agency is to look at the industry as a whole rather than roll back individual profit margins.

The agency will have the powers of a federal royal commission under the Inquiries Act and will begin with a staff of about 25 persons, he said. Recommendations will be made to the government on the impact of price increases and how the industry handles new revenues.

A soon-to-be-released report shows that over-all industry profits jumped by more than 50 per cent in the first six months of 1980 over the same period last year. In addition, the industry will reap 90 cents per barrel from the $2-per-barrel increase announced Thursday by Alberta.

But the Canadian Petroleum Association, representing the major multinational oil companies, said this week the industry needs more money to finance new exploration and development in the next 10 years. It estimated cash requirements of $200 billion if the country is to become oil self-sufficient in the 1990s.

Alcan defends water flows on Nechako River

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Aluminum Co. of Canada rejected suggestions Friday that it has pursued actions that could harm British Columbia salmon, saying it has protected the valuable fish since the Kitimat project began in the 1950s.

The protestation came as the federal fisheries department sought a court order to compel the firm to release more water into the Nechako River, a major salmon-producing tributary of the Fraser River.

Mr. Justice Thomas Berger of the B.C. Supreme Court reserved decision on the order until Tuesday, but hinted it could come sooner with evidence water temperatures in the river might rise to levels that could hurt salmon.

Federal officials took the action to force Alcan to release more cooling water from its Nechako reservoir into the river. If temperatures are too high, they say, migrating and spawning salmon could be subject to stress and may die.

But Alcan lawyer Douglas Brown said Friday that temperatures in the Nechako watershed have cooled in recent days and no longer threaten the fish. The release of the 8,000 cubic feet a second of water from the reservoir as ordered by the government now is not necessary, he added.

The release would be wasteful, Brown said. If water is needed to meet later temperature crises, it would not be available. And because the ordered outflow is more than current inflows, it could lower the reservoir, perhaps leading to loss of production and layoffs at Alcan's smelter at Kitimat.

Brown said the company had followed for 25 years a policy to protect salmon and the recent dispute with the federal government is the first time that Alcan's water management policies have been criticized.

"Not a word has there ever been that the death of a salmon could be laid at the door of Alcan," Brown said. "There appears to be no danger to the salmon population."

It is important, he said, that no order be made that would jeopardize water rights granted to Alcan by the provincial government 30 years ago.

Brown denied federal claims that the company had defied the law, saying Alcan was behaving responsibly.

Studies by an Alcan consultant, Envirocon Ltd. of Vancouver, led the company to conclude that there was no danger in reducing the flow into the Nechako last Sunday to 600 cubic feet a second, despite the federal order.

Brown asked that the hearing be adjourned, on condition that the federal government could come back to the court for action if the current cool-weather situation in the north changed and a problem arose. Federal lawyer John Haig rejected that proposal.

Alcan said the order is an arbitrary step by Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc which overstepped authority of the federal government. Company officials have maintained that they have followed recommendations and orders set out by the B.C. water rights comptroller.

The B.C. government has stayed on the sidelines in this dispute. There was no provincial intervention in Friday's hearing.

Haig said the section of the Fisheries Act under which the order was issued is within the federal authority and denied it was based on an arbitrary decision. LeBlanc had the advice of expert fisheries scientists when he made the order.

GRIEVING PARENTS of Helen Mintiks arrive to pay tribute with 150 family members and friends at memorial service for the slain violinist in Clearbrook Friday. Her nude body was found July 23 inside a ventilation shaft at the New York Metropolitan Opera. Police still have no suspects. "I know she would like us to remember a happy, caring person," said her sister Lily-Ann Huffman.

Hospitals look to U.K. for nurses

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Hospital officials are going to bring nurses from Britain this fall in an attempt to ease a chronic shortage of nurses.

Prince George Regional Hospital has closed 63 beds and has a backlog of 1,300 patients waiting for elective surgery because of the shortage.

A committee of nurses and administrators will try to determine the reason for the shortage by listening to complaints or comments from nurses, said Glen Penwarden, hospital executive director.

Results of a recent questionnaire showed long shifts, overtime and extra shifts caused a high turnover in nursing staff. About 70 per cent of local nurses leave within 18 months of joining the hospital and two-thirds of nurses signing up have less than 12 months experience.

Penwarden said the hospital is "bending over backwards" to find a solution to the problem, but [illegible] outside our control."

He said 10 years ago B.C. was producing 46 per cent of its nurses, now the province produces only 32 per cent.

Socreds pass hat to build war chest

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Social Credit party is passing the hat among members in anticipation of long-awaited legislation to control political donations, says party president Bernie Smith.

Smith said in an interview this week such legislation has been in the works for some time but he expects to see it passed into law in the near future.

Speculating on what form the new law will take, he said it will either place a ceiling on size of donations that can be made to political parties or require disclosure of donations over a certain amount.

In any event, the law will place more of a burden on rank-and-file Socreds to help pay the party's way.

"We expect our membership to support the party financially as well as morally," Smith said. "Before, they have not done that much. They have supported the constituency associations, but not the party headquarters generally."

Smith denied the drive was tied to rumors the party is awash in red ink with debts as high as $[illegible]00,000.

"I would not want to say yes or no," he said when asked to confirm or deny the figure.

Smith said that while he agrees with the public's desire to know more about the workings of political parties, "I don't think I should be quite that frank with the world. We don't have anything to hide, but by the same token we do not broadcast that which we have . . . I think that is strictly party business.

"We do have some obligations. But nothing that worries us, nothing that we cannot handle, nothing that alarms us."

Considering the leftover bills from the party's narrow and expensive election win in May, 1979, the Socreds' finances are sound, Smith said.

The so-called dirty tricks scandal revealed that the party's central finances were raised and dispersed by two bagmen who did not answer to the Socred executive.

That has been changed, Smith said. Instead of an assortment of trust funds, there is one account for the party headquarters which pays day-to-day expenses, covers continuing campaign work and which is building up a war chest for the next election.

This account is controlled by the party executive and is discussed openly with Socred directors and constituency presidents, he said.

Missing boy found

RADIUM HOT SPRINGS (CP) — A two-year-old boy from Spokane, Wash., was found Friday north of a campsite near this southeast B.C. town after an extensive two-day search.

Jeffrey Seipp, son of James and Rosemarie Seipp, wandered away from his parents' Marble Canyon campsite Wednesday morning and spent two days in the bush, RCMP said.

RCMP, Kootenay National Park wardens and volunteers used a helicopter to search 25 kilometres of the Vermilion River, which passes through the campsite.

The 300 to 400 searchers covered a ground area of two square kilometres.

The boy was found north of the campground and near the river. He was taken to hospital in Banff, Alta., and was reported in satisfactory condition.

Maplewood buyer found

OTTAWA (CP) — Lilydale Co-operative Ltd., an Alberta-based firm, will buy the idle Maplewood turkey processing plant in Abbotsford with the help of a loan from the federal government, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan announced Friday.

Whelan said in a statement that Ottawa will loan Lilydale, which already has holdings in B.C., $3.75 million to buy the Maplewood plant and the J. J. Hambly hatchery, also in Abbotsford.,

The processing plant will reopen as soon as the purchase is completed.

Whelan went looking for a Canadian buyer after Cargill Grain Ltd., a U.S. based multinational, offered to buy the plant.

The B.C. government and the union representing the 135 workers at the plant dropped their original objections to the Cargill bid when no other buyer could be found.

Wally Berry, general manager of Lilydale in Edmonton, said in a telephone interview late Friday the company was not aware the government had made any announcement.

The company will not be able to confirm the government's statement until Monday at the earliest, he said.

"We are negotiating a purchasing arrangement at this time, but this is the first I've heard of the government's announcement."

Berry said he leaves for Vancouver on Tuesday in an attempt to work out a deal for the purchase of Maplewood.

Lilydale, which operates poultry processing and hatchery plants in Edmonton, Lethbridge and Calgary, operated in B.C. from 1962 until 1973, he said.

Employers group raps law changes

VANCOUVER (CP) — New employment standards legislation proposed by the provincial government could interfere with free collective bargaining, the Employers Council of B.C. said Friday.

The act could affect the give-and-take bargaining process in which employers and employee representatives trade employment conditions for other concessions, the council said in a brief.

The legislation would render illegal negotiated working conditions that fall below the proposed standards, the council said.

It also criticized a section requiring that two weeks notice be given to an employee who has worked at least six consecutive months.

The brief said such a requirement is unfeasible for the forest, fishing, construction and retail industries.

Pilot's body found near Quesnel

QUESNEL (CP) — Searchers have found the body of an American pilot in the wreckage of his light plane about 75 kilometres west of here.

Allan Short of Gervais, Oregon, was killed when his Cessna 180 crashed in dense forest Tuesday while on a flight to Tsacha Lake from Quesnel.

A Transport Canada investigator was investigating.

Chemical disposal unit

Chemicals are essential to our modern way of life. The challenge is to manage them — to control them — so that they present a minimum risk to people and the environment.

Those are the first two sentences in the first of a series of booklets being published by the American Chemical Industry, dealing with the efforts of member companies to cope with plant emissions and discharges, and the disposal of unused chemicals. The Love Canal debacle in Niagara Fall, New York, more than any single incident, focused the public's attention on the magnitude of the challenge faced by industry and government.

In Victoria this past week, the alarm was sounded on a sawmill's practice of dumping a chemcial wood preservative in a landfill site on the Saanich Peninsula. Local politicans feared some of the tetrachlorophenate dumped was seeping into a nearby creek that emptied into Tod Inlet. They claimed there was a potential environmental risk.

Plumper Bay Sawmills Ltd. responded immediately. Dumping was halted and arrangements were made with the chemcial manufacturer in Vancouver to recycle the chemical. Although the company is to be commended for its quick action, lingering questions remain.

Why was this form of disposal allowed in the first place if a recycling alternative was available? Are other companies dumping potentially harmful chemicals? Is the provincial government's environment protection agency monitoring and licensing these activities?

The Pollution Control Board has not gained a reputation for wielding strong environmental clout. And one of the largest problems with managing hazardous and toxic wastes is the lack of a proper disposal facility in B.C.

As a result, the Greater Vancouver Regional District, an area encompassing the province's industrial heartland, is forced to operate a system of trenches and open pits on Iona Island to handle toxic and other hazardous wastes. Analyses of the sludge and oils by the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control indicate the domestic and industrial waste is acutely toxic.

Nobody disagrees. The manager of the disposal site says the GVRD does no monitoring of the 15 regular companies which use the dumpsite on an honor system. The trenches are supposed to contain only grease left floating after primary treatment at a nearby plant, but he says toxic materials, polychlorinatedbiphenals and a host of chemicals could be contained in the scum. "But what else can we do with the stuff?"

B.C.'s environment ministry regional director, Don Hehn, says the GVRD doesn't have pollution control permits for all the wastes being discharged. Charges are being contemplated in connection with the chemical dump. But again, what is the alternative? Hehn points out this is one of a number of problems that demonstrates the need for a hazardous waste disposal facility.

The health and safety of the public demand that the chemical industry and the provincial government come to some arrangement for the safe disposal of toxic and hazardous chemicals. Love Canal provides the incentive.

Slight parallel to Watergate

NEW YORK — Members of Congress, journalists and others instrumental in the resignation of Richard Nixon may now believe that they must be equally relentless in investigating Jimmy Carter's involvement with the relationship between Billy Carter and the government of Libya.

So they must, but they must be careful, too, not to assume an inevitable replay of the Nixon experience. To equate what is as yet known of Carter's troubles with the dark complex of Watergate offences would be unwarranted and unfair.

Many charges

The first charge alone, springing from the Watergate break-in itself, accused him of nine separate counts of obstructing justice, including counselling and paying witnesses either to perjure themselves or to remain silent, interfering with law enforcement investigations, misusing the CIA, and deceiving the public with false statements.

The second charge enumerated five counts of violating the constitutional rights of citizens, including misusing the Internal Revenue Service and the FBI, interfering with the latter agency's investigations, establishing a secret investigative unit in the White House, and directing the unlawful use of electronic surveillance and the unlawful use of information gained from it.

Of all these counts against Nixon, one alone — No. 7 of Article I — might be found applicable to Carter's conduct, as it is so far known. It charged Nixon with "disseminating information received from officers of the Department of Justice ... to subjects of investigations" to help them escape prosecution. Carter might be construed to have done that in passing on to his brother Attorney General Civiletti's advice that if Billy Carter registered as a Libyan agent he probably would not be prosecuted.

Even here, the end result — Billy Carter's registration — served a legitimate law enforcement purpose. On balance, Civiletti's culpability in this episode seems clearer than Jimmy Carter's; and the attorney general made matters worse for himself by first failing to disclose his advice to the president, then trying to dismiss the conversation as a "brief, informal exchange."

On the basis of what is now known, Jimmy Carter's most serious misstep, in my judgment, was to allow Billy Carter to be used as an intermediary in setting up a White House meeting with a Libyan representative. That this was an effort to get the Libyan government to intervene for the American hostages in Iran is no defense at all.

But that the president's brother was so used was bound to be taken by the Libyans as confirmation that Billy Carter was an important personage who could advance their interests at the White House. That appears to be precisely how they did take it. The president himself thus helped — whether he intended it or not — to increase Billy Carter's value in the eyes of the Libyans; perhaps worse, he raised suspicions that now must be investigated that he had used his brother as a sort of back channel to the hostile Libyan government.

As for the low-level cables the president is alleged to have shown Billy Carter, the only evidence that he did so came from Billy himself — not exactly a reliable witness, and one who now repudiates his testimony. But even to have discussed these cables with his brother, as Jimmy Carter recalls having done, adds to suspicions that the president was more aware of and in touch with his brother's Libyan activities than earlier White House statements suggested.

No discussions

On the other hand, in a backhanded way the cable disclosure tends to confirm White House and Justice Department insistence that there have been no discussions between them about the Billy Carter investigation.

In that pattern is the closest parallel to Watergate so far, and certainly the most damaging; for despite repeated White House assurances that the entire record will be made public, that record — just as in Watergate — seems to be coming out mostly in bits and pieces forced by disclosures elsewhere. Nothing will more quickly destroy what was supposed to be Jimmy Carter's greatest asset — his reputation for candor and integrity.

A bottle a day to authordom

OTTAWA — There is nothing more pleasant on earth than a lunch in the Beach House in Stanley Park, tennis courts to one side, putting green to the other, the Pacific dimpling in the background and the white clad lawn bowlers, like dignified penquins, doing their ritual dance of sundappled retirement years above the bikinied beach.

The companion over a beaker of grape is Pierre Berton, the local boy who swept the journalistic slate clean and then moved on to obscene riches of authordom and television in the Big Applecore, Toronto.

A fishing jaunt up the coast has left his ruddy face well rudified and his photographic memory for old tales intact.

Two a day

"There are a thousand stories in this park. It was once my beat. The Vancouver Sun assigned me to Stanley Park and I had to come up with a couple of stories every day. It was easy.

"I once found a man who had been living in a hollow tree for fifteen years. He had a whole row of suits hung up neatly.

"Don't know where he got them, but he lived on the remains of sandwiches thrown away by visitors in the park." A thousand stories.

Berton was raised in those roistering days on The Sun when he and his managing editor, the legendary Hal Straight, would repair to Stanley Park in a car after the first edition, drink a bottle of rye and return to put out the final edition."

"Both Straight and I were bottle-a-day men in those times. Mind you, that was just the day, there was still the night."

Straight, who after leaving The Sun, built a small North Vancouver paper into the largest weekly in Canada before the Sterling people ran it into the ground, hasn't had a drink for years but was described at a banquet as a man "who still has a high-time average."

He maintains his gruff sense of humor. Hearing about the feats of one supposed two-fisted imbiber, Straight growled, "Hell, I used to spill that much."

Once, when this scribe fuffed and worried about yanking or running a touchy story picked up by Annis Stukus at an all-night football party, Straight shrugged: "What are you worried about? If you're right, you're right. If you're wrong, you're fired."

Now rising 71, healthy and prosperous, Straight has just purchased a new large yacht for his fishing and leaves indented on the foreheads of his former reporters the best advice yet in the newspaper business: "If you know it, write it."

Once the most popular columnist in Canada when he was with the Toronto Star, Berton now worries over the writing of the second volume of The Invasion Of Canada (1812-13).

He thinks it's the best work he's ever done. His publisher must agree, since he's printing 100,000 copies to start.

He says he can remember to this day the moment he decided to leave The Vancouver Sun.

"There was this old guy who had retired but kept coming into the paper every day. He didn't have anything else to do.

"The only two things they gave him were the weather and the 'Fifty Years Ago' feature. He was always drunk. Kept a mickey in his drawer."

One day, Berton remembers in infinite detail, the vet couldn't even do the 'Fifty Years Ago' bit.

Big change

"They asked me to do it. I went to the library, looked up the files and found the line story that day 50 years ago had been written by the same guy.

"He couldn't even rewrite himself. My future life flashed before me. I went to the city editor and said I was quitting and taking the first offer. It's a young man's game."

He didn't have to wait long. Scott Young, then with Maclean's, came out to the coast, rented a room in the Hotel Vancouver and invited Berton up for a drink.

"I've been empowered by publisher Arthur Irwin to offer you between $4,000 and $4,500 a year," Young informed him. It was 1947.

Berton looked at the floor for a moment and then looked up. "I think I'll take the $4,500," he said.

The board matures

The Greater Victoria School board wins, by at least one full lap of the track, the award for Most Improved Political Body in this area.

It should be an inspiration to the many other boards and councils that this year are struggling with the ceaseless confrontations and hostilities caused by a pronounced ideological or partisan split among the members. It is the first elected body locally to prove that it is possible to work through that polarization and emerge more creative and more responsive to the wide range of views prevailing in our community.

The polarization on the school board began some three years ago when the board found itself divided into two camps — the so-called money-savers versus the so-called educational quality improvers.

In the beginning the money-savers had the majority. The educational quality group fought them tooth and nail to try to ensure the budget-cutting would not hurt services provided to students.

A couple of years, and a couple of elections, later, the balance changed. It became the money-savers who were in the minority and who, as a result, were fighting constantly, in their case to try to ensure that the taxpayers were not forced to pay more than they could afford for the higher-quality education offered.

The spring of 1979, the first few months when the educational-quality group was in control, were some of the worst times experienced by a local government in Victoria for quite some time (not counting the Capital Regional Board, of course).

Virtually no progress was being made at all. Hour-long debates were occurring on points of procedure, details of semantics, and obscure trivialities that should have been dealt with elsewhere than at the board table. The budget-balancing opposition were slowing the process down to a dead halt with tedious debate. The new controlling group replied with motions of closure. The administration was complaining that they were having to make policy decisions because if they waited for the board to make them, they'd still be waiting come Christmas. The nadir was reached.

This year the board has climbed the long road back.

There are still wide differences of educational and fiscal philosophy on the board. The trustees range from John Young, rebel champion of the student, to Peter Yorke, believer in "a good, hard, swift kick" to cure school discipline problems.

That wide diversity of views is not surprising. It reflects an equally wide range of attitudes towards children and education throughout our community.

The difference this year, however, is that the trustees have come to listen to each other, to respect each other's views, and to recognize that only out of diversity can come the reasonable compromises and creative solutions that will provide the best possible schools in a system that must cater to the whole community.

This does not mean the trustees often agree with each other. Young obviously thinks a school system run by Yorke would be one step this side of a maximum-security prison. Yorke thinks one run by Young would be one step this side of Lord of the Flies.

Gone, however, are the personal hostilities that marked the 1978 and 1979 boards. Gone are the political manoeuvring and gamesmanship that took up dozens of unproductive hours. The school board is getting on with the process of governing.

In the new atmosphere, gone too are the sharply delineated voting splits on the board. Trustees feel free to vote on individual issues according to their merits without "betraying" the interests of their board allies.

Young and board chairman Carol Pickup usually vote together at the most liberal end of the board's spectrum. Yorke and trustee Terrence Hackett usually vote together at the conservative end.

In the middle, however, are four trustees (Martin Levin, Win Mott, Lavinia Greenwood and Mike Hutchison) who move, at least occasionally, from side to side. The ninth trustee, Mark Fisher, remains a law unto himself.

This voting flexibility decreases significantly the feeling that all votes are carried out along strictly ideological lines.

One trustee, asked recently about the differences between the 1979 and 1980 board, said simply: "It's a lot more pleasant this year."

That goes double for the community as a whole.

The vegetable borer

BOSTON — There is an unwritten clause in my contract for this column that prohibits me from writing about my vegetable garden more than once a year.

It is a good clause, a sane clause, an absolutely essential clause. And one which makes me utterly miserable.

I am, you see, a charter member of Veggie Growers Anonymous, a subgroup of perfectly decent Americans with a sense of propriety as well as property who are transformed every summer into garden bores.

You have, I am sure, heard of golf bores. These are the people who putt through parties, recounting every slice of life. You have also met tennis bores who will explain in exquisite, excruciating detail how they turned their grip 15 degrees to the left and now serve like Bjorn Borg. This fascinating fact is usually accompanied by a demonstration designed to bring down the house. Instead, it brings down the chandelier.

But those of us who spend our summer measuring tomato plants and attacking white flies also can be full-fledged bores. We will, with the slightest encouragement, deliver a State of the Garden Address to any captive audience.

Merely mention the game of squash and one of us will eagerly interrupt, "Speaking of squash, let me tell you about my zucchini."

Tell us that you are trying to get "into your own head," and we will free-associate: "Have you tried my iceberg?"

Ask us, in the midst of bright and witty repartee about world affairs, what is new on the American scene, and we will instantly answer: Sugar Snap Peas.

All of this anti-social behavior is bad enough. But there is more. I, personally, am famous for corralling anyone around my grounds into a footnoted, annotated tour of God's Little Sixteenth Acre. I rival the tape-recorded tours at the art museum . . . in length.

A perfectly innocent gas meter reader of my acquaintance, for example, now knows the relative merits of caged and staked Big Boys. (I am talking tomatoes, not men.) Another man, special-delivering corrections for a magazine article, can tell you precisely why my strawberries died last winter.

The only one who has escaped me this summer is the United Parcel man. As I was treating him to an elegant discourse on the French Intensive method, he retreated wide-eyed down the stairs. How could I know he was thinking Masters and Johnson when I was talking bush beans?

As for my friends and family, from May to November they are expected to worry and wonder about my garden, and to gasp at science fiction tales of my runaway herbs, including The Mint That Ate New York. (Actually, it hasn't started on New York yet, but it's headed for Connecticut.)

No one is allowed to just eat my little veggies like some sort of barbarian. A tomato is not to be merely sliced; it must be properly sacrificed with a ritual prayer. People must ponder the beauty of the green pepper, the history of eggplant.

I am not at all sure how I became a garden bore. I am definitely not the sort of parent who regales friends with the latest antics of a drooling three-month-old, complete with slides. Furthermore, I find it utterly appalling when people put their pets through show-and-tell in my presence, rolling Rover over and over and over.

Maybe it has something to do with the unexpected. The only thing we grew in my childhood apartment was refrigerator mold and green carrot tops.

Maybe all the garden bores of America are people who remain surprised that we plant a seed and three months later eat a salad. We are proud as punch; we think we did it; we think this is news; we want to spread the word. We want to spread many words.

But under the terms of my contract, I am only allowed to harvest a measly 750 words each season.

'Better living with chemistry' under question

By B. D. COLEN
Newsday

NEW YORK — For at least the past four decades North American industry has been telling us, and we have believed, that we could have "better living through chemistry."

In 1940, 1.5 billion pounds of synthetic organic chemicals were manufactured in the U.S. By 1970, that figure had jumped to 350 billion pounds of chemicals used in the manufacture of products touching every corner and aspect of our lives, chemicals providing us with easily cared for clothing, fireproof housing insulation, seemingly magical pesticides and other standbys of our modern, chemical world.

But the cost of this new world has been a high one. We have made, says Dr. Irving J. Selikoff, "a Faustian bargain with this new world. We want its advantages, but we're not happy when the bill comes due."

'Faustian bargain'

And the instalment payments on the bill have been coming due with frighteningly increasing frequency in the form of shipyard workers with unusually high rates of lung cancer, of contaminated cattle — and humans — in Michigan, of Vietnam veterans with deteriorating central nervous systems, and of a housing development whose name has become synonymous with the worst chemistry has to offer — Love Canal.

Sixty-five-year-old Irving Selikoff probably knows more about the dark side of what he calls our Faustian bargain than any othr scientist in the country. For Selikoff is director of the Environmental Sciences Laboratory at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine, the nation's most sophisticated facility for the study of the physiological and epidemiological effects on humans of chemical exposure.

He supervises the work of the clinicians, pathologists, mineralogists, neurologists, epidemiologists, statisticians and chemists in the Mount Sinai unit who have studied chemical disasters all over the U.S. They have examined Michigan residents who ingested the highly toxic chemical PCB when it was accidentally mixed with cattle feed, have demonstrated the link between asbestos and lung cancer in shipyard workers in several East Coast cities, and have studied the effects of PCB exposure on General Electric factory workers in Fort Edward, N.Y., and dioxin exposure on workers in Nitro, W. Va.

Through the experience gained from these and numerous other studies in areas as diverse as an Indian reservation in Canada and New Caledonia in the South Pacific, Selikoff has come to appreciate the difficulties, nay, the near impossibility, of assessing the dangers inherent in a situation like that in Love Canal.

"It's a very difficult situation, a nearly insoluble one," Selikoff said during a recent interview in his Manhattan office. "Because interacting at Love Canal are a number of critical, unresolved, scintific issues which underlie everything that we consider when discussing environmentally induced disease.

"First, what are the effects, at low level, of (chemical) exposure? . . . We know in general that there is a dose-response relationship. That is, high doses give a lot of disease and you get it earlier. Low doses produce less disease and it generally takes longer to appear . . . Now, at Love Canal the chemicals are found which, when studied at higher concentrations have given disease, but here they're found at lower concentrations.

"Well," continued Selikoff, "we're entitled to say there will be some disease, but by the same token, it's very hard to define and detect it because it will be infrequent, and you're concerned with a relatively small group of people. In the vernacular, some may ask to see the dead bodies in the street. We know they will occur, but they'll be sparse, and when there aren't many streets, you won't see many.

"Moreover, these diseases, by and large, also occur without such exposures, and therefore you're faced with the problem of identifying an excess, an increased number of such cases, not merely a number."

Multiple exposures

The problem, said Selikoff, is that studies must of necessity be based upon projections, which make scientists uncomfortable, and create what he considers "insurmountable problems." Residents of Love Canal, however, are not concerned with such problems. "It's idle," says Selikoff, "to talk about, let us say, 2 per cent of some disease, when for the people who get it it's 100 per cent."

Additionally, investigators are plagued by the fact that the chemical exposures in Love Canal have been multiple. Residents have been exposed to dozens of chemicals, and although scientists have known since at least 1927 that exposure to a second or third chemical compound can increase the carcinogenic effect of the first or second compound, the researchers don't know what effects will be produced by the interactions of the various compounds dumped by the Hooker Chemical Co. at Love Canal.

"Once again, we have a scientific inadequacy that underlies the judgments that we have to make," said Selikoff, "and yet these judgments have to be made. Because the people at Love Canal, and at all the tens of thousands of chemical waste disposal sites (around the country) don't believe they should wait for control, management and treatment until every scientific 'i' is dotted and every scientific 't' is crossed.

"But their impatience," the scientist continued, "doesn't make the situation evolve any more rapidly and doesn't give us information we don't have. I respect their impatience. I sympathize with it. I understand it. But at the same time, I realize that many questions cannot be answered at this time. Indeed, I would point out that we have a legacy of ignorance because of research that wasn't done, conferences that weren't held, investigations that were never supported, training that was never undertaken. We have this shocking . . . scientific inadequacy in the face of an increasingly serious problem."

But those aren't the only complicating factors in conducting the kind of major epidemiological undertaking needed at Love Canal, said Selikoff. Research is also hampered because some diseases, particularly cancers, may not appear for as long as 40 years after the victim was exposed to the offending chemical and because the causes of many diseases, including various birth defects, are not understood.

We still have no idea of the ultimate price we will pay for living better through chemistry. As Selikoff points out, there are about 200 chemicals which we know cause cancer in animals, and, therefore, assume may be a threat to humans. But there are literally hundreds of thousands of chemicals which have not even been tested on animals yet.

When we know that a chemical causes cancer in animals and that chemical turns up in a place like Love Canal, "You would say, 'Let's take no chances, it's a pretty good bet between these chemicals and what is happening (to people's health).'" said Selikoff.

"But 'a pretty good bet' doesn't hold up in court, and it doesn't impress people in industry who have to pay for the control of these substances. And I think industry is correct in saying 'Let's look carefully before we jump to conclusions.'

"At the same time," said Selikoff, "looking carefully doesn't mean that we're frozen into immobility, or that we look forever. But this is a debate that goes on and on, and a debate in which industry should play a role. But it's a debate in which every one should participate."

Sister city

Your paper reports that Victoria is planning to adopt Soochow as a sister city, a move World Federalists applaud. However, we are ashamed and embarrassed by Victoria City Council's insensitivity in immediately approaching Soochow to help pay for Victoria's proposed Chinatown gate. It will surely confirm the Chinese in their impression that North American society is crassly materialistic.

We must remember that China, roughly the same size as Canada, has almost 50 times as many people to feed, clothe and house. I doubt that Soochow will have money, especially hard currency, to spare for wealthy Victoria's projects.

In 1971, Victoria World Federalists persuaded City Council to declare Victoria a 'Mundialized' city (meaning 'world city'); to fly the U.N. flag daily (it flies on the Causeway); and to adopt a 'sister' or 'twin' city.

The object of adopting a sister city is to explore and adapt to cultural differences between the two sister cities, relieving international tensions by personal contacts.

In 1971, we World Federalists thought that we would do most good by twinning with a city in China, an idea found too avant garde by the Victoria City Council then, who adopted Napier, New Zealand instead. Napier fell flat as a twin because there were no differences to overcome; the same is true of Palm Springs, another twin.

Soochow offers some exciting possibilities. We are fortunate to have at UVic for another year a Chinese exchange professor who grew up in Soochow. From him I have learned that Soochow, 80 km west of Shanghai is a beautiful city situated on the edge of a lake. The city has many canals and bridges and is as famous for its Soochow Gardens as Victoria is famous for Butchart's. Our shy professor says that Soochow is a 'very small city' with a population of about 650,000 people. It is a 45-minute walk (three miles?) from one side of the city to the other.

In China, the professor lives in one room with his wife and two children; he is grateful that his mother no longer has to live with them, except to babysit the children while his wife works. They cook and heat with a coal stove.

Mayor Tindall and Ald. Bob Wright, I value your businss acumen in handling our tax dollar, but please do not shame our fair Victoria by starting our relationship with Soochow on such a greedy note. Do show them our plans for the Chinatown gate; ask their opinion of the design; invite a representative to the opening; try to budget for a return delegation to Soochow and encourage all manner of possible exchanges.

I think that the Chinatown gate will become a continuing tourist attraction. Since the Victoria Chinese community has raised $31,000 towards its $25,000 share and the non-Chinese Victorians have raised only $9,000 towards our $25,000, I am today mailing a personal donation to Chinatown Gateway Fund, c/o Victoria City Hall, 1 Centennial Square. I hope others will do likewise, but it is a separate issue from adopting Soochow as a sister city. — Rose Evans, Former President, Victoria Branch, World Federalists of Canada, 1637 Hollywood Crescent.

Why no answers?

Recently Charles Barber and Gordon Hanson, the two sitting members for Victoria constituency, were challenged to answer some specific questions which relate to unions and the general public.

1. Should employees paid by the public purse be permitted as a group to espouse the cause of a political party?
2. Should officers of public employees unions or associations be permitted to hold office on the executive of provincial or national union assemblies?
3. Should employees of BCGEU who wish to publicly support any political party be required to either resign or obtain leave of absence?
4. Should union dues be subject to checkoff by the employer without restraint?
5. Should secondary picketing be permitted?
6. Should strike votes be by mail and supervised by judicial authority?

Usually these two gentlemen grasp any opportunity to promote themselves by expounding their views in the press. Why this reluctance to communicate with their constituents on this very serious problem of aggression by organized labor?

We must presume harassment of the general public by labor unions is acceptable to their political philosophy. — Ken Burns, 401-640 Dallas Road.

Wonderful cast

Your headline writer seriously distorted my reaction to the Emily Carr musical The Wonder of It All, and your critic Audrey Johnson underplayed my positive feelings about the wonderful cast. The faults I found were in my own work with the script, not the contribution of the Four Seasons Theatre. I did not say that this event could not go on every year without a great deal of work. I said rather that the work would be done before next season.

It took five years, not 10, to finalize the script of Anne of Green Gables. I have always been blessed with enthusiatic actors who covered my indadequacies. The Victoria cast has done this for me again and I am most grateful. — Don Harron, Toronto.

Illusion of change

Today I boringly slogged my way through White Paper #9, "Alternatives for Crown Timber Pricing", released a few days ago by the provincial forests ministry. Yesterday I disgustedly struggled through slash piles, abandoned usable logs, and shameful, needlessly wasted wood fibre on one of MacMillan-Bloedel's recent cut blocks on Vancouver Island.

Both are part of the same problem; both are equally depressing.

There are proven economically feasible and desperately needed cures for the squandering of public timber and for the low government revenues from our provincial forests. They are not found in a White Paper which begins by accepting the "virtual elimination of competitive bidding for Crown timber" as permanent policy or on lands managed by a big company that benefits from those policies.

One complex system substituted for another is only an illusion of change because profits are still guaranteed and competition denied. The switch may fool some, but fewer people are going to be fooled than the government figures. We're not all stumped by stumpage. — Paul George, Vancouver.

REPORTS and MAILING LISTS
PROFESSIONALLY PREPARED
USING ADVANCED WORD PROCESSING SYSTEMS
also: Maintenance of client lists, Manuscripts, Theses, Mass mailing, Reports, Contracts, Manuals, Price Lists, Lists of Directories
Our Word Processing Service Bureau keyboards your documents and stores them on magnetic discs to allow editing changes and revisions without retyping of each page. This increases productivity cuts costs and enhances the quality of your finished product. Pages can be printed at 540 words per minute with right hand justification if desired. Mailing lists and client files can be merged with form letters to produce individual personalized letters. Files can be sorted and searched for specific clients and information.

Gas, oil industry spending soars

OTTAWA (CP) — Capital spending by the petroleum and natural gas industry from extraction to marketing is up sharply from a year ago, with dramatic increases especially since 1975, figures from Statistics Canada has indicated.

The agency projection says spending on construction, machinery and equipment for petroleum and natural gas extraction in 1980 is up 32.2 per cent to $5 billion compared with $3.7 billion a year earlier.

Meanwhile, spending on energy-related transportation, including rail, water and pipelines is up an estimated 73.7 per cent at $459.3 million from $264.3 million last year.

Spending on natural gas distribution construction and equipment is up only 14.6 per cent at $286.6 million from $250 million in 1979.

Finally, petroleum and coal products industries are estimated to spend 28.5 per cent more at $356.9 million compared with $277.6 million in 1979 while natural gas processing plants are to spend 49.9 per cent more at $346.3 million compared with $230.3 million in 1979.

Markets wind up with minor losses

By GAIL LEM
The Canadian Press

A bitter fight between buyers and sellers left Canada's major stock markets with minor losses this week.

Analysts say investors should consider the market a trading one until it makes a decisive move out of its churning pattern — and some say that may not occur until the federal Liberal government introduces a budget.

At Toronto, the 300-stock index closed the week down 3.10 points or .14 per cent to 2194.08.

Montreal's composite index slipped 3.52 points or .96 per cent to finish the week at 364.19, while the industrial index fell 6.84 points or 1.72 per cent to 394.03.

At Vancouver, which lacks a composite index, trading continued at an active pace throughout the week even though there were few notable winners in the list of price changes.

Alberta's decision to unilaterally raise the price of its crude oil by $2 a barrel helped spark a flurry of profit-taking Thursday. Toronto's oil and gas index suffered its sixth-worst weekly drop on records dating back to Jan. 1, 1971, shedding 241.02 points or 4.69 per cent to 4892.72.

But analysts said the price increase was incidental to the market's activity, coming as it did on the heels of a weakening price for oils on the world spot market.

Richard Hallisey of First Marathon Securities Ltd. of Toronto said the softer spot price was the result of a short-term oil glut.

But Alberta's $2 increase was simply not enough, he said, predicting that the stock market will be polarized by extremes until the introduction of a federal budget, expected about November.

Hallisey said there is massive speculative potantial in the key oil stocks, especially of those compnaies with interests offshore Newfoundland and in the Beaufort Sea.

Offsetting that, he said, is a risk of deteriorating fundamentals, which he blamed in part to "a basic policy of confrontation" between the federal and provincial governments.

Although the long-term outlook for oils is bullish, he said, even companies such as Bow Valley Industries, Dome Petroleum, Aquitaine of Canada and Gulf Canada now have been "reduced to trading situations on drill holes."

"On a trading basis, any significant weakness is a buying opportunity," Hallisey said. "But there's volatility ahead as well."

Chris Tidd, a technical analyst with Odlum Brown and T. B. Read Ltd. of Vancouver, said there's "no sign at the moment that there is going to be a signficant correction in the Canadian market."

The key level for the Canadian market is the 2200 level on the TSE composite index, at which "buyers and sellers are having a bitter fight," Tidd said.

Until volume, which has continued to be relatively light since the March sell-off, picks up substantially, it is difficult to make a prediction on the market, he said.

Will 'J' car mean more jobs?

OSHAWA, Ont. (UPC) — Canadian production of General Motors' new "J" car will aid Canada's slumping auto industry, but it was not certain if the development will alleviate present layoffs, says the auto manufacturer.

Company spokesman Pat Kehoe says a plant now assembling full-size cars in Oshawa, Ont. would be converted in mid-1982 to produce the new compact model.

However, Kehoe said he could not speculate on what effect production of the "J" car would have on employment in the domestic auto industry. GM now has almost 1,400 employees on layoff out of a total workforce of about 40,000.

Cost of converting the plant was estimated at $100 million, which GM said would be part a $2.25 billion investment in Canada over the next three years.

Kehoe said the new vehicle would be a "world car," meaning it can be assembled and parts made for it in any country with car-manufacturing capabilities.

GM also announced it would produce parts for the "J" car in its other plant in Oshawa, and in plants in Windsor and St. Catharines.

MAKE A COMMITMENT TO SUCCESS.

Job competition is tough. The men and women who land the best jobs are those who have taken the time to attain skilled professional training. If you'd like to share in their success, the Certified General Accountants' program can help.

The CGA program is a highly respected and professional financial training program that can prepare you for a successful career in accounting, taxation, auditing, computer systems, finance and public practice.

Developed at the University of B.C., in co-operation with the Faculty of Commerce and Business Administration, the CGA program is designed to provide men and women interested in financial management with the opportunity to become a recognized professional while they continue to work full time in a related area of the business community. This concurrent work and study program will give you needed experience and credentials to qualify for senior appointments and future success.

All the necessary courses can be completed by lecture or correspondence and registration is open until August 20th. If you need more information or if you would like to talk to someone about your future career prospects as a CGA, contact:

Life cheap and getting cheaper as violence grows in the cities

By CHISHOLM MACDONALD

TORONTO (CP) — "It's crazy," said the police officer, sickened by the gory slayings. "People are being killed for less and less these days.

"Life is cheap now and getting cheaper."

The Sunday calm of the residential street was more sombre than usual that recent morning and residents spoke in hushed terms of their slain neighbors as four mutilated bodies were removed from a cosy bungalow to the morgue.

Robbery was the suspected motive.

Across town on the same weekend, two elderly men — one a First World War amputee — were beaten viciously by a young man at a hostel. Robbery again, said police.

Violent crime in Metropolitan Toronto would appear to be on the increase.

As of July 27, there were 30 slayings this year compared with 24 the same period last year. As of July 23, there were 6,562 reported cases of assault and wounding compared with 6,123 the previous period, 97 reported rapes compared with 129, 59 bank robberies compared with 31, 271 purse-snatchings compared with 232, and 859 other holdups compared with 725.

However, Police Chief Jack Ackroyd, who took over the top job this year, doesn't like to interpret year-to-year or month-to-month crime statistics as a pattern. He prefers to look at long-range trends.

For example, he said, total crime in Toronto increased by 80 to 90 per cent during the 1960s and by only 40 to 50 per cent during the 1970s.

"We can't establish a pattern for the 1980s by six-month statistics.

"And there's no single cause or cure for crime. We can't just pull out a band-aid and apply it to a single area."

But Ackroyd noted there appears to be more crime by younger people and a greater number of reported cases of assault and wounding.

"But I would hope we can establish a better trend in this decade," he said. "For example, there will be fewer boys and girls in the 16- to 18-age group."

However, the statistics he dislikes show even younger offenders. Violent crimes by juveniles under 16 rose 13 per cent in Toronto last year.

Sgt. Pat Post, head of the police youth bureau, described it as "nothing less than frightening."

"Ten years ago it was almost unheard of for one child to attack another with a knife," he said, noting an increasing number of juveniles involved in knife attacks, shootings and sexual offences.

Sgt. Post said violent young offenders are "street-wise, dangerous criminals," who commit carefully planned, sophisticated crimes.

"They are bored, restless and lacking in all respect for law and authority."

Other cities across the country have problems as well, although on a lower scale in some cases.

As of July 29, there were six slayings in Winnipeg this year, the same as in the corresponding 1979 period. However, robberies with violence increased by 30 per cent during the first five months, assaults by 30 per cent and rapes by 29 per cent.

Montreal recorded 21 slayings in the first half of 1980 compared with 34 in the first half of last year. There were also 133 rapes and 4,061 robberies there this year. For all of 1979, Montreal had 74 slayings, 269 rapes and 7,066 robberies.

And then there's Charlottetown, where Police Chief Charles Ready said there is "almost no violent crime, except common assaults of the domestic type."

There hasn't been a slaying there in more than two years.

But Toronto has had some grisly ones this year.

A policeman was wounded and then held hostage for more than an hour by two gunmen during a bungled restaurant holdup. He died several hours later in hospital.

A 35-year-old woman lawyer was stabbed to death hours after she was admitted to the bar.

A six-year-old girl was raped and strangled.

A Brink's guard was shot and killed and another wounded in what police described as "totally unnecessary shooting" for the money the robbers took.

A recent article in The Saturday Review paraphrases a former Bronx police chief's opinions on violent crime.

"Desperation overwhelms morality and the law. (But) as the poor increasingly resort to their desperate solutions, more fortunate youths adopt the same measure to accomplish their own ends.

"Robbing and killing fill the emptiness caused, not by hunger but by boredom and a lack of purpose in their lives. The cancer that begins in the burned-out buildings of our cities metastasizes to the rest of society."

Metastasis is a medical term meaning the shifting of a disease from one part of a body to another.

Recognizing the seriousness of the problem, York University in Toronto has recently started a wide-ranging study of violence in society.

LaMarsh returns home

TORONTO (CP) — Judy LaMarsh has been released from Princess Margaret Hospital, where she was being treated for cancer, and has returned to her Toronto home.

Hospital officials said Friday that Miss LaMarsh, who was released Thursday, was doing well and her condition was described as fine.

Miss LaMarsh was bestowed the insignia of the Order of Canada by Gov.-Gen. Ed Schreyer on July 22 during a brief ceremony at the hospital attended by close friends and officials.

Miss LaMarsh — lawyer, author, professor, broadcaster and federal cabinet minister in the Liberal administration of the late Lester Pearson — said in a recent interview her plans for the future may include a fourth book tentatively called No Regrets.

Eagle's wings clipped again

OTTAWA (CP) — Eagle Sarmont, the would-be daredevil who was grounded last week when the transport department refused him permission to fly from Canada across the North Atlantic in a motorized hang glider, has had his wings clipped again.

Transport department spokesman Dave Austin said Friday that the department has decided not to permit Sarmont to fly back to the United States from his roost in Baie Comeau, Que.

The decision was made because the flight would contravene Canadian flight regulations, Austin said, adding that he could not be more specific than that.

Sarmont, from California, had originally flown two weeks ago to Baie Comeau, a town 350 kilometres northeast of Quebec along the St. Lawrence River, from Farmingdale, N.Y., despite an order not to from the United States Federal Aviation Administration.

Sarmont had planned to fly across northern Quebec, Labrador and Baffin Island to Paris in his contraption, named The Spirit of California.

Ferret's foe jailed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Patrick Rankin, who was attacked by a ferret when he broke into a house the day he was released from prison, was sentenced Friday to 15 months in jail.

The 29-year-old man had pleaded guilty to charges of housebreaking, enter and theft.

Court was told Rankin was surprised by an angry mother ferret when he climbed through a window into a second floor sunroom July 21.

LET'S TALK REAL ESTATE

YOUR RETIREMENT SAVINGS PLANS

should include consideration of your principle residence as part of your retirement investment portfolio. Consider this — if you bought your home in Victoria five years ago, its market value today is likely approaching double the price you paid for it — in other words for the past five years your investment in your home has grown in excess of 15% each year and this growth is completely TAX FREE. Perhaps you should consider a move to a better home now in order to enjoy its amenities now and still increase your NET WORTH for your retirement.

"THE WESSEX"
GRACIOUS LIVING IN OAK BAY

If you have been dreaming of building an elegant home in a beautiful natural environment that retains the convenience of nearby schools and shopping areas, look no further than "The Wessex" in Oak Bay.

Nestled in the wooded surroundings of the Henderson-Lansdowne area, twenty-seven spacious single-family lots will be sold by public auction on a one-per-person basis before the end of this summer.

The rapidly diminishing supply of land ensures that this development will be one of the last of its kind to be undertaken in the Oak Bay area.

The upset prices will include full servicing: sanitary and storm sewers, watermains, underground wiring, sidewalk installation, landscaping and fencing along Foul Bay Road, and ornamental street lighting.

The 6,094 yard Uplands Golf Club is within easy walking distance, and the University of Victoria campus is less than a mile away.

Complete information packages are available at the Oak Bay Municipal Hall.

B.C. won't require stickers

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. will not follow Ontario's lead of asking supermarket chains with electronic scanner checkouts to keep individual price tags on products, Jim Nielsen, minister of consumer and corporate affairs, said Friday.

Nielsen said supermarkets are not obliged to place price tags on all items and advised consumers who want individual price tags to shop where they are used.

"We're not going to make 400,000 regulations to force people to shop a certain way," Nielsen said in an interview. "Consumers who don't like it without price tags can shop elsewhere."

Stickers are not needed by the scanning device which records prices from a code on food wrappers. In some stores using the system, prices appear only on the supermarket shelf.

The Ontario government has asked supermarket chains to respond to a government survey that showed consumers support the scanning system but oppose the removal of individual price stickers.

The supermarket chains — Dominion, Loblaws and Steinberg's — have agreed to keep the price stickers.

Cryobiology experts meet here

Experts from Europe, the U.S. and Canada will gather at the University of Victoria Aug. 5-8 for a conference on cryobiology, the study of biological changes at low temperatures.

More than 100 papers have been submitted on such general topics as accidental hypothermia in man, transplantation and cryobiology, cold tolerance in plants and animals, freeze drying of bacteria and viruses and fundamental and cellular aspects of freezing and thawing.

UVic biologists Dr. Michael Ashwood-Smith, Dr. Richard Ring and Dr. John Haward organized the conference as part of the 17th annual meeting of the Society of Cryobiology.

Keynote speakers include Dr. Ranier Storb of the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Centre in Seattle; Dr. K.E. Cooper of the University of Calgary; Dr. Theodor M. Fliedner of the University of Ulm, Germany; Dr. John Farrant of Northwick Park Hospital, London, England; Dr. Donald Greiff of the Wisconsin Medical College, Milwaukee and Dr. Peter Steponkus of Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

Anyone interested in more information on the conference or wanting to attend can call Dr. Ashwood-Smith at 477-6911, local 4729.

Before the judge

A 23-year-old Victoria man was jailed Friday for nine months after he pleaded guilty to theft and fraud charges in provincial court.

In addition, Paul Carson, of 615 Toronto, was placed on two years probation to ordered to make restitution for an estimated $400 worth of bad cheques he wrote between May 17 and May 28.

The theft charges involved both a color television and cassette recorder taken from a downtown stereo store where Carson was employed as a salesman. Both items were subsequently pawned.

The court was told that Carson has a long history of emotional and personal diffulties but had made attempts to overcome them although recongizing he still needed counselling.

Judge Lorne Pearce told Carson his counsel's summation had spared him a much longer prison sentence.

A 44-year-old city man was given a seven day jail term for breach of probation.

Marvin Patterson, of 2812 Douglas, was given two years probation for a November breaking and entering conviction in Nanaimo and ordered at that time to abstain from alcohol.

Patterson was charged after police were called to a Douglas Street address Thursday where Patterson was found in possession of alcohol. Subsequent breathalyser tests produced readings of .24 and .21.

A 27-year-old Nanaimo man with what Crown prosecutor Nick Lang described as an unenviable record, was given a suspended sentence after he pleaded guilty to a charge of being unlawfully at large.

Morris Johnny was placed on one year's probation.

The court was told that Johnny was in his last days of a 14-month sentence when he failed to return to the Vancouver Island Regional Correctional Centre after being on a day-pass to seek work.

Martin Kellington, 30, of 221 Gorge East, was fined $750 after pleading guilty to an impaired driving charge laid in Kamloops.

A break through in heating efficiency

For those who have a masonry fireplace and know it sends most of the heat up the chimney. Fresh Air Fireplaces has the solution the Renaissance Circulation System. Converter. It will transform your present masonry fireplace into an efficient, economical heat source. Available in a variety of sizes, it is easily installed in the firebox of most existing fireplaces.

Its operation is simple and unique — a controlled air intake at the bottom of the unit allows fresh air to enter the hollow bottom base, where it is heated, expands and rises in tubes that direct the heat into your home, not up the chimney.

The attractive glass doors serve two purposes: they eliminate most smoke, soot and sparks from entering your home and they prevent heated room air from escaping up the chimney.

Science moving bionic era closer

By BRENDA DALGLISH

The bionic man with perfectly functioning artifical limbs may still be only a fictional creature but modern science and technology is bringing the concept closer and closer.

Friday the first myo-electric forearm and hand manufactured in the city was fitted to a young Victorian by John Girling of the Victoria Prosthetic Lab in the Garth Homer Achievement Centre.

The recipient of the electric device — Oriano Belusic — lost his arm and was blinded as a result of a bomb explosion several years ago.

He's a student and hopes to go into computer work and Girling says there should be no problems.

"The hand will perform quite well in that kind of job although it wouldn't be suited to more physical types of work," he said.

Although a few other Victorians have similar artifical arms, they were made elsewhere.

Girling, who has been in Victoria since the beginning of this year, has made about 60 artifical limbs for people since opening the private clinic.

"It's like buying a pair of shoes, they may fit in the store but when you get them home you start to notice where they rub."

The hand, which looked quite lifelike from a distance, is operated by slight movements of two muscles in the arm of the amputee.

By lightly flexing one of the muscles, an electric current is activated causing the hand to open or close.

"The user gradually learns to open and close the hand applying just the right amount of pressure so that he can even grasp fragile objects like a paper cup," explained Girling.

The electric parts of the hand and its cosmetic cover — a rubber-like covering patterned to resemble skin — are manufactured elsewhere but the crucial connection that joins the prosthesis to the amputee's stump must be custom made for the individual.

The device fitted Friday cost $3,300 and was paid for by Pharmacare and the War Amps.

The key to making an artifical arm function well, is to make certain it's attached snugly but not too tightly, Girling said.

Because they aren't attached to the body like natural limbs, it's also important that the weight be as little as possible.

One of the problems with most artifical arms is that the weight tends to be located towards the hand end of the prosthesis.

If the weight, which comes mainly from the electric and mechanical parts, could be shifted to an area closer to the stump, the prosthesis is better balanced and easier to handle.

Girling also manufactures artifical legs. He says about 80 per cent of amputees have lost their lower limbs because the most common reasons for amputation are related to vascular problems.

People who have been amputated above the knee or elbow have much more difficulty because technology can't reproduce and operate a joint nearly as well as nature.

Girling finds the job of making artifical limbs challenging and rewarding.

It requires ingenuity, craftsmanship and art.

"Unfortunately, no matter how well we get them to work they're never as good as the real thing," he said.

But Girling says if there's one thing he's learned working with amputees, it's to never say something is impossible.

"If someone asked if you could run from the maritimes to Ontario on an artifical leg, you'd say it was impossible but Terry Fox is doing it," he said.

Government moves on trucking safety

The provincial government has moved to crack down on unsafe transport trucks through amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act.

Bill 44, introduced in the legislature Friday by Highways Minister Alex Fraser, includes a provision allowing cabinet to make regulations covering every aspect of the capability of a vehicle to retain or contain its load.

The bill also authorizes weighmasters and inspectors as peace officers to remove defective vehicles from the highways.

Fraser said this will result in highway inspection programs being more effective as a method for improving highway safety standards.

In April, Fraser released a report which said that of 3,200 commercial vehicles inspected in a three-month period, 88 per cent had deficiencies and 190 were immediately taken off the road.

Other amendents include:

—Making it an offence for an employer to hire a driver who is not properly licensed for the truck he is expected to operate;

—Giving municipalities the authority to adopt bylaws allowing for parking of small vehicles such as mopeds in designated street areas, and;

—Placing motorized wheelchairs which travel on roadways under the jurisdiction of the Motor Vehicle Act.

Saanich Fair gets set

After 111 years, the Saanich Fair is as buoyant as ever and plans are proceeding for the 112th edition of the event Aug. 30-Sept. 1.

Catalogues and entry forms are being handed out at the fairground office between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays and the deadline to enter your favorite home-made jam or handicraft or anything else in the extensive list of competitions at the fair is 9 p.m. Aug. 22.

The only exceptions are the 4-H, cattle and goat competitions, for which the dealine is Aug. 15.

The fair features displays of heavy horses and miniature donkeys on all three days.

There are also exhibits of horses, cattle, goats, sheep, poultry, flowers, home arts and a wide variety of other thins.

Opening-day features are an old-time fiddling contest and a square-dance demonstration.

It's all in the book

Uncertain if you can keep chickens? Perplexed by how to get rid of a swarm of wasps in your backyard? Curious about bus passes, allotment gardens, heritage building grants or illegal suites?

Answers to these and other questions are now yours for the asking in a handy 22-page booklet called Contact.

Prepared by Victoria Ald. Ron McKenzie, the free booklet is being distributed through neighborhood groups and business associations.

McKenzie put the booklet together because he says in his years on city council he frequently found the public didn't know where to go with its problems or who to contact.

City hall switchboard operator Pat Cairns gave him two pages of questions most often asked by callers. That provided the basis. McKenzie did the rest.

Hospital workers warn they'll strike over pay

. . .agreement breached

Angry members of the Hospital Employees' Union have threatened province-wide strike action if negotiated pay increases are not immediately put into effect.

Jack Gerow, HEU secretary-business manager made the threat after the Health Labor Relations Association, representing 110 hospitals in B.C., said it does not intend to give all union workers the eight per cent wage hike that went into effect Friday.

Gerow said the HLRA has advised member hospitals that only those workers whose jobs have already been classified — about 70 per cent of the membership — will be entitled to the full increase.

The other 30 per cent will only get a four per cent increase pending completion of their job classifications.

"This is a fundamental and provocative breach of the collective agreement and it's going to cause irreparable damage," Gerow warned.

The 21,700-member union had anticipated trouble at its June convention and passed a resolution calling for strike action if any members were denied the full increase.

The union's executive has scheduled an emergency meeting for Aug. 15, the first payday on which the hikes would show up.

Gerow couldn't say what action would be taken. It could mean picket lines, sit-ins or other work slowdowns and interruptions.

All 110 hospitals, including the three in Greater Victoria, would be affected.

The union had agreed in its 1980-81 contract with the association to a new classification system replacing an inadequate job evaluation program set up several years ago to eliminate sex and job descrimination in the industry.

The system meant finding proper classifications for about 30 per cent of the membership.

Gerow said the HLRA informed its member hospitals there was uncertainty about some provisions in the agreement and that until those matters are cleared up the unclassified workers would be limited to only a four per cent raise.

But Gerow said the agreement, as far as he was concerned, made it clear everyone was entitled to the eight per cent increase.

The raise is one of several included in the two-year agreement that will increase some employees' pay by almost 53 per cent upon completion.

Gerow said the latest action was characteristic of the HLRA and its president, Chester Hooper.

"We are hopeful it is the last double-cross," he said.

New family act draws criticism

NDP human resources critic Rosemary Brown said Friday B.C.'s new Family and Child Services Act deals specifically with children in crisis situations and does nothing at all to establish basic rights for children.

Ms. Brown said she is happy that the failure to report cases of child abuse has been made an offence and that Indian chiefs have to be notified of protection hearings, but said the bill does not address many of the concerns expressed in reaction to a white paper released in 1978.

She said it fails to look at the question of legitimacy of children and the subsidization of foster homes and adoption centres.

Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy said the reworking of the act will keep children taken into custody from drifting into the "never-never land" of procedural wrangles.

Bill 45, introduced in the legislature by Mrs. McCarthy, includes a section which will expedite custody hearings.

Like the current act, the bill specifies that the cases of children apprehended by welfare officials must be presented to a court within seven days.

However, the bill would require the courts to fix a date within 45 days for a hearing to determine if the child is in need of protection. There currently is no limit on how long the courts can take to decide the fate of a child.

Mrs. McCarthy said this will help ensure early planning for the child's future.

The bill also spells out procedures in which the superintendent of family and child services can intervene when a child is in need of protection and makes it an offence for a citizen not to report cases of suspected abuse.

Mrs. McCarthy said the bill provides for the right of every child to protection from abuse and neglect.

"But at the same time, it supports the integrity of the family as it clearly spells out limits on state intervention in family life," she said.

Narcotics stolen in break-in

A large quantity of drugs was stolen early today in a break-in at Western Drug Mart, 1913 Sooke Road.

Colwood RCMP said a glass door was kicked in and a locked cabinet containing restricted and narcotic drugs rifled.

The missing drugs included 400 tablets and multi-dose vials of demoral, 120 ounces of novohistex, five 10 cc bottles of talwin and five grams of morphine sulphate powder.

Also taken by the burglar were a gram of cocaine and four to six 15 ml vials of cophylac expectorant drops.

Stevenson leads Cuban gold rush

MOSCOW (AP) — Teofilo Stevenson capped a Cuban gold rush at the Olympic boxing tournament today by scoring an unimpressive 4-1 decision over a Soviet opponent to win his third straight heavyweight championship.

Five other Cubans won gold medals while two had to settle for silver. It was a bad day for the Soviets.

Light flyweight Shamil Sabyrov won the first bout of the day but then the six other Soviet finalists all lost.

It was a feat rather than a fight for Stevenson, who became the first man ever to win three gold medals in the same weight class. The other triple Olympic boxing champion was Laslo Papp, here as the Hungarian coach. He was the middleweight champion in 1948 and the light middleweight winner in the 1952 and 1956.

Stevenson, winning his 11th straight Olympic fight, failed to land his vaunted right against squat, muscular Pyotr Zaev although the Cuban did get home a good right uppercut in the third round. But mostly the Cuban jabbed his opponent, who kept his hands high and would lunge in with looping rights.

Judges from Nigeria, Mexico and Austria all scored it 59-58 for the Cuban, while the judge from Algeria gave it to Stevenson 60-57. Zaev was favored by the Nicaraguan judge 59-58.

The Cubans finished with six golds, two silvers and two bronze medals, while the Soviet Union had to settle for one gold, six silvers and one bronze.

On Friday, world records fell in two events, three 1976 Olympic champions reclaimed their titles and little Miruts Yifter ran his taller opponents into the ground for the second time in the Games in the 5,000 metres.

But it was the duel between two British runners in the men's 1,500-metres final that lived up to its advance billing Friday as the dramatic highlight of the closing day of track and field.

And this time it was Sebastian Coe, a humiliated loser to Steve Ovett in the 800 final last Saturday, who pulled away in the stretch while Ovett failed to match his finishing burst and settled for a bronze medal.

While the time was an unimpressive three minutes 38.4 seconds, nowhere near the world record of 3:32.1 which the two Britons share, there was a world track record was set earlier in the day as Barbel Wockl duplicated her performance in the 1976 Olympics by anchoring East Germany to victory in the women's 4x100-metre relay in 41.60 seconds to go with her individual victory Wednesday in the 200 metres.

Gerd Wessig, who was added to the East German team only two weeks ago, upset defending champion Jacek Wszola in the high jump with a leap of 2.36 metres, a centimetre above the world record the Pole had shared with East German Dietmar Moegensburg. It made a total of six world marks to fall during the track and field competition.

Wszola cleared 2.31 to take the silver medal.

The other two East German winners had been there before. Evelin Jahl broke the Games mark she set in Montreal four years ago to win the women's discus with a throw of 69.96 metres and Waldemar Cierpinski repeated his victory in the marathon.

Tatiana Kazankina of the Soviet Union comfortably defended her title in the women's 1,500 in 3:56.6, eclipsing the Games record of 3:59.2 she had set in her semifinal. Christine Wartenberg of East Germany took the silver medal ahead of Nadezhda Olizarenko, the Russian who had beaten Kazankina in the 800 metres last Sunday.

As expected, the Soviet Union and East Germany were the big winners in track and field as the Russians won 15 events and the East Germans 11. Britain had three winners, Ethiopia, Italy and Poland two apiece and Cuba one.

Over-all, the Russians had 77 gold medals to 43 for East Germany. Hungary and Italy were next with seven apiece.

Yifter's victory in the 5,000 metres was almost a carbon copy of his earlier triumph in the 10,000 as he lay back while his Ethiopian team-mates set the early pace and took command in the last 200 metres. The time of 13:21.0 compared with the Games mark of 13:20.35.

The Ethiopian air force officer is undefeated since the 1976 Olympics, in which he did not race because of the African boycott. He won the 5,000 and 10,000 in the 1977 and 1979 World Cups.

Lasse Viren of Finland, winner of the 5,000 and 10,000 at the last two Olympics and a badly beaten fifth at the longer distance this time, passed up the 5,000 to compete in the marathon and failed to finish.

Soviet men and East German women dominated the 500-metre canoeing finals, East Germany winning the women's kayak singles and pairs while the Russians took the men's kayak singles and pairs and Canadian singles. Laszlo Foltan and Istvan Vaskuti of Hungary won the men's Canadian pairs.

Vladimir Parfenovich was a double winner, outpaddling Australian John Sumegi in the kayak singles and combining with Russian team-mate Sergei Chukhrai in the pairs.

Elisabeth Theurer, riding Cherie, won Austria's first gold medal of the Games in the individual dressage competition, outscoring the three Russian riders who had combined to win the tem event the preceding day.

French judoka Thierry Rey defeated Jose Rodriguez of Cuba in the final of the 60-kilogram competition and the Soviet Union completed a volleyball sweep when its team downed Bulgaria 3-1 in the men's final.

Going into the final day of the archery tournament Russians held the first two places in both men's and women's competition.

(Results are on page 15)

ON WAY TO GOLD for second time, Ethiopia's tiny Miruts Yifter (191) takes command in home stretch of 5,000-metre final Friday at Moscow Olympics. Yifter, who won 10,000-metre event Monday, was followed to tape by Tanzanian Suleiman Nyambui (649) and third-place Kaarlo Maanika (208) of Finalnd.

Sandersón leads Expos back to top

Times News Services

Scott Sanderson pitched a superb three-hitter Friday as Montreal Expos downed Atlanta Braves 4-1 in a National League baseball game before 30,168 appreciative Montreal fans at Olympic stadium.

The crowd accorded the 24-year-old righthander a standing ovation as he struck out pinch-hitter Biff Pocoroba to seal the victory, the Expos' fourth in a row.

The victory was Sanderson's 11th of the year, which tied him for the club lead with Steve Rogers, and was his sixth complete game of the season.

The victory moved Expos a fraction of a percentage point ahead of Pittsburgh Pirates, who were beaten 1-0 by a hot San Diego Padre team that ran its winning streak to six games.

Exotic betting is what harness public prefers

Although it still has to be determined elsewhere whether exotic wagers are morally good for racing, the bettors here appear to like them. And that should be all that really matters, shouldn't it? According to the mutuel pattern, gimmick betting is clearly what the public wants.

For example, on Tuesday at Sandown there was $21,326 wagered on the triactor in the 10th race and only $2,477 on win ($1,266), place ($772) and show ($439). In addition, more people wager on exactors on every other race than on win, place and show. On Tuesday, the first nine-race mutuel total was $86,459 with $64,778 being wagered on the exactors and $21,681 on win, place and show.

The total mutuel handle for the evening was $110,262 of which $86,104 was exotic wagering.

Sure, the risk is greater, but the lure of the big payoff is always there. And if people are going to go to the races, they are going there primarily to bet and to spend their money however they want. Not that exactor wagering is always the best bet, but who's to tell a punter what to do with his money?

Lately there have been stories suggesting that racing officials in the United States are taking a critical look at the types of wagers that have become popular in the last decade. Even some track owners, who profit directly from triactors, trifectas and other exotic bets, say they don't like them.

There are two basic arguments against them. One is purely economic. Race tracks (and governments) depend on the circulation of money through their betting windows; triactors, it is said, take money out of general circulation and put it into the hands of a few. Because so few people win triactors or trifectas, tracks are knocking some of their customers out of the action.

Another objection is that big payoffs encourage dishonesty. (The St. Valentine's Day fix that rocked Maryland racing occurred in a triple race. Much of the larceny masterminded by self-confessed race-fixer Tony Ciulla occurred in trifecta events.

However, the economic arguments against exotic wagering are misleading and even bogus. Tracks obviously would not offer triactors if they were not good for business. While they may take some money out of circulation, the gimmick bets also lure people to the track who wouldn't come otherwise. So give them what they want. That's the key.

One Florida dog track offers its customers a full smorgasboard of betting opportunities: win, place, show, quinella, exacta, trifecta on every race. That track finds that win, place and show betting accounts for about 10 percent of its handle. Trifectas bring in 40 percent of the business.

General manager Jim Keeling of Sandown is all for the gimmick bets, naturally, and next week local punters may get another option. It is planned to institute the daily double on the first two races which would be in addition to the exactors. Track officials want to see how it is received and, if it is popular, may use it at Cloverdale this fall.

As to the integrity of racing, that is the job of racing commissoners to supervise. They should judge the sport so that the public gets a fair shake and not ban exotic wagering simply because they don't know what else to do.

Meanwhile, for the numbers players, facts are that No 1 has been the most productive post with 70 winners in the first 41 days at Sandown and it also has been in the exactor the most, or 32.9 per cent of the time. No. 3 is right behind in the matter of victories with 68 with No. 7 the lowest at 21. No. 2 is next in exactor percentages at 32.4 with No. 4 at 31.6 and No. 3 at 31.3.

The obvious to be gleaned from this, of course, is that numbers players have a better chance if their favorite number is under 5.

As for winning exactor combinations, 1-3 has scored 15 times, 1-2, 2-3, and 3-4 14 times, and 3-1 13 times. That old bugaboo 8-7 had still to show earlier this week.

Nobody can tell from the figures, however, what an exactor (or a triactor) will pay. So do your thing your way, have fun and, as the man told you before:

Don't bet any more money than you can afford to lose.

G'nite all.

Stevens' bat rings hot tune for Blues

Paul Stevens has been doing his share for Victoria and his 'Blues Brothers' now are surging back into contention in the Northwest Baseball League's Northern Division.

Acquired as a utility player and coach, the 25-year-old from Chicago has been a consistent producer at bat since joining the Blues a few weeks ago.

The switch-hitter, who has been hitting over .350 since joining the club, didn't hurt his average Friday. He went three-for-four with a pair of singles and a triple to drive in three runs as the Blues out-sluggged Central Oregon Phillies 13-8 at Royal Athletic Park.

It was an important victory. With Walla Walla Padres upsetting division-leading Bellingham 10-2 Friday, the Blues closed to within 5½ games of first place. Victoria kept a half game ahead of third-place Walla Walla.

The Blues, who concluded their series with the Phils this afternoon, appear to be building for a big, make-or-break week. Walla Walla moves into town for a three-game stand that starts Sunday evening and then the Mariners follow.

Playing-manager Jim Gattis is pleased with his team's play in recent days.

Stevens, of course, is one reason. But some of his Blues Brothers also helped.

Jack Uhey cracked a two-run double and Joe Lorenz cracked an equally-important two-run double, with two out, to highlight an eight-run fourth inning. The Blues never looked back.

Catcher Don Hyman contributed a pair of doubles to Victoria's 13-hit barrage.

Rip Rollins and Juan Samuel accounted for the brunt of the Phils' attack. Rollins cranked out a towering, three-run homer over the left field fence. There was no doubt about the authenticity of that blow.

Samuel, however, was credit with a line-drive, two-run homer in the eighth when the ball glanced off a light standard. Some of the Blues insisted, however, that the ball hit the post below the top of the fence and should not have been ruled a homer.

Mike Otto, with help from newcomer Rob Butler, took the pitching decision.

Desite their second straight win, the Blues are not without problems.

Outfielder Nick Belmonte, who had been hitting over .300 until injuring a knee, has been released and is expected to undergo surgery this weekend.

In addition, switch-hitting first-baseman Gary Humpston, also hitting around the .300 mark, is a worry. He also injured a knee last week and is to undergo a medical examination today.

(Linescore on page 16).

Weekend in sports

Continuing action in both the Northwest Baseball League and the softball Super Series form the main attractions for Greater Vicsports enthusiasts during the remaining portion of this holiday weekend.

Also on the schedule when the weekend sports load on television is not quite as heavy as usual, are automobile-racing action, harness racing and cricket.

TONIGHT

Victoria Budgets play Portland Ray Bristowes at Athletic Park at 7, meet them again on Sunday at 1 p.m. And in another softball Super Series doubleheader Monday, Budgets play Decatur, Ill., at 1 p.m.

Waiters will serve but still search

Times News Services

Tony Waiters, named to succeed John Best as president and general manager of Vancouver Whitecaps Sept. 1, says he'll also stay on as coach of the North American Soccer League club should the need arise.

Waiters, who is also the team manager, said the Whitecaps have been searching for a coach since Bob McNab was relieved of that job two months ago.

Waiters said he'd like to name a new coach by the end of the season but he has set no time limit.

"Looking is one thing," he said. "Availability is another."

Houston Astros pitcher J.R. Richard remained in hospital in improved condition today, another chapter in a series of crises faced by the Astros pitching staff during its history.

Richard underwent emergency surgery Wednesday to remove a blood clot from the right side of his neck after he collapsed at a workout.

The National League's 1980 starting all-star pitcher had experienced weakness in his left arm and leg following the surgery but an Astros official said Friday the condition was improving.

The Astros pitching staff already had experienced its share of tragedies before Richard's collapse.

Don Wilson, who pitched no-hitters 1968 and 1969 and narrowly missed a third, was found dead in his car in the garage of his southwest Houston home in 1975. Police said death was the result of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Jim Umbricht acquired by the team when it was called the Colt .45s in the 1961 expansion draft, underwent surgery for a malignant groin tumor in early 1963. He died a year and a day after the surgery.

Players, coaches and others travelling with New York Yankees have been innoculated to prevent the spread of hepatitis.

Officials of the American League baseball club disclosed Thursday that third baseman Graig Nettles had contacted the contagious disease and, as a precautionary measure, everyone who might have been in contact with Nettles was innoculated with gamma globulin, a temporary protection from a number of infectious diseases, including hepatitis.

Nettles returned to New York today and will be admitted to hospital for tests and evaluation.

Nina, Wendy in semis of Canadian tourney

OTTAWA (CP) — Stephane Bonneau of Quebec City continued as the giant-killer Friday by bouncing top seed Rejean Genois and grabbing a spot in today's semi-finals in the Belisle Canadian tennis championships.

Bonneau, seeded No. 13, beat Genois, also of Quebec City, 7-6, 4-6, 6-4 and now faces Ottawa's Martin Wostenholme, the event's seventh seed who surpised Ottawa's fourth-ranked Dale Power 6-1, 6-1.

In the other men's semi-final, Toronto's Gregg Halder went against Francois Synaeghal of Montreal.

In women's singles, top seed Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa faces No. 3 seed Toronto's Wendy Barlow, formerly of Victoria, in the semi-final round. No. 4 seed Karen Dewis of London, Ont., tests No. 2 Nina Bland of Victoria in the other match.

Bland, winner of the Ontario and Quebec open titles in the previous two weekends, downed Helene Pelletier of Quebec.

IT'S WARM WORK for Howard Twitty, who wipes brow on sleeeve as he keeps hot golf streak going Friday in Philadelphia Classic. Winner last weekend, Twitty fired 66 for 36-hole total of 130, 12 under par and good for a two-shot lead over Mark Hayes.

Last-minute goal gives Canada win

DALLAS (AP) — Mike Zacharuk of Vancouver scored with just less than a minute remaining in regulation time Friday night to give Canada a 1-0 win over Puerto Rico in the opening round of the Confederation of North and Central American and Caribbean Association of Football qualifying tournament for the world youth soccer championship.

Trinidad-Tobago and Jamaica played to a scoreless tie in the other match Friday in the tournament sponsored by the North, Central America and Caribbean Soccer Confederation.

Puerto Rico will play Trinidad-Tobago and Canada will play Guatamala on Sunday afternoon.

In other tournament play in Princeton, N.J., midfielder John Stollmeyer scored on a penalty kick to help pace the United States to a 5-0 victory over Barbados.

World medley record

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Bill Barrett of Alpharetta, Ga., set a world's record in the 200-metre individual medley preliminaries Friday before winning the final at the United States swimming championships.

Barrett, 6-feet 2 and and 185 pounds, was clocked in two minutes, 3.24 seconds, beating the record of Jesse Vassallo, who finished second in the final.

In the individual medley, competitors swim a lap of butterfly, backstroke, breaststroke and freestyle.

Tracy Caulkins, 17, of Nashville won her fourth race of the championships with a meet record of 2:14.64 in the women's 200-metre medley.

Second loss for Seasprays

BRAMPTON, Ont. — Victoria Seasprays have their work cut out for them if they hope to qualify for the semi-final round in the Canadian midget lacrosse championship.

Host Brampton clipped Seasprays 14-10 Friday. Victoria now has a 1-2, won-lost record with two games remaining in the 10-team, round-robin preliminary competition.

Twitty continues to race at sixty

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Howard Twitty is getting a taste of what it's like to be a golf superstar as he continues his hot shooting pace this week at the $250,000 Philadelphia golf tournament.

"At least I know for a few weeks how Tom Watson feels every week," Twitty said after increasing his lead to two strokes Friday with a two-round tournament record 130, 12 strokes under par.

Twitty is on one of the hottest streaks of the Professional Golfers' Association tour this year, shooting in the 60s 13 of his last 14 rounds and posting 57 under par in his last 158 holes.

Despite his torrid shooting, Twitty, adding a five-under 66 to go with his opening 64, leads the Philadelphia tournament by just two strokes over Mark Hayes.

Twitty, who is 22nd on the money list with $109,981, said he wasn't impressed with his two-round record.

"I'm only interested in Sunday records," said Twitty. "That's what counts."

Gar Hamilton of Toronto shot a second-round 70 for a total of 137, seven strokes behind Twitty. The only other Canadian — Dave Barr of Kelowna — failed to make the cut after soaring to a 76 for a 150.

CHANGES DICTATED

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco Giants of the National Baseball League swapped catchers on their disabled list, taking Mike Sadek off and putting Milt May on. May has an injured rib cage and will be sidelined for 15 days.

Tour rookies impressive

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Although Donna Caponi Young shot a sizzling 68 for the first-round lead, rookie pro Patty Sheehan gathered most of the attention as she made a strong Ladies Professional Golfers' Association debut.

The Reno, Nev., resident shot a 70 to stand just two strokes away from Young entering the second round today of the 54-hole, $100,000 LPGA tournament.

Brenda Lunsford of Winnipeg was also made a strong pro debut firing a 71, three strokes off the pace.

Sheehan is regarded by LPGA officials — and by current members of the tour — as a possible future star. She showed why Friday, although admitting to feeling unprepared for the sudden success.

"I haven't gotten into the routine of a pro yet," said Miss Sheehan, 23, who led the qualifiers in the recent LPGA qualifying school. "In fact, I don't know what a pro routine is."

Playing what she called a "very routine round", Young — who is having the best season of her 16 years on the LPGA tour — is a shot ahead of three tour veterans. A stroke off the pace entering the second round today after shooting 69s were Sandra Post, Patty Hayes and Joyce Kazmierski.

Post found a big improvement in her play from a year ago.

"My round this year was 10 shots better than the first round last year," Post said. "I was miserable here then."

The other Canadian in the tournament — Cathy Sherk of Port Colbourne, Ont., — shot a 76.

The first round proved less than successful for three former Wheeling winners. Jane Blalock, the 1976 and 1978 champion, soared to a five-over-par 77. Defending champion Debbie Massey was five shots off the lead at 73, while 1977 champion Debbie Autsin didn't even get to play. She was forced to withdraw because of an ankle injury that she sutained a week ago while jogging in New York.

Hudon pulling away

The race for driving honors in the harness meet at Sandown Raceway no longer is a race.

The meet's leading reinsman, Joe Hudon scored three triumphs for the second straight day Friday to boost his victory total to 81, 31 ahead of runnerup Grant Hollingsworth and 34 up on third-place Keith Quinlan.

Hudon won with Who Don in the fifth, Little Pence in the seventh and Easy Van in the eighth.

In winning, both Who Don and Easy Van were guided to the fastest mile times of their careers — 2:06/2 and 2:05, respectively. Combat Osborne, with Tom Burke in the sulky, also raced to a new career mark (2:08) in winning the sixth.

Hollingsworth recorded his only win of the day when favored Governors Star Boy won the featured ninth race.

A total of 1,101 fans pushed $98,704 through the mutuels but could "strike it rich" in only three of the 10 races. Only Senga Maytime, the first-race winner who paid $15.20; Pason Ell Roy, returning $36.90 in the second, and Pop McKlye, paying $13.80 in the third, paid off in double figures.

Racing resumed this afternoon. Another afternoon session also is scheduled for Monday, B.C. Day.

Norman repeats as champ

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., scored four birdies Friday to win the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association seniors title for the second consecutive year with a three-under-par 69.

The leader throughout the 54-hole tournament, Norman earned $1,000 with his five-under 211 total, finishing six shots ahead of Niagara Falls' Bill Kozak in the tournament for golfers 50 years and over.

Kozak, who closed with a 73 for his 217, wound up two shots ahead of Al Balding of Toronto, with a 74 Friday.

Host pro John Henrick and Jack Kay of Toronto had 223 and Norm Smith of Toronto finished at 226.

Savard appeal denied

Times News Services

The only hope Centre Square has of running in the $2,011,000 Woodrow Wilson Stakes at East Rutherford, N.J., next Wednesday is to first win a court case.

The two-year-old colt, owned by defenceman Serge Savard of the National Hockey League's Montreal Canadiens, lost a decision Friday before the New Jersey Racing Commission disqualifying the standardbred from the richest event in thoroughbred or harness racing history.

Centre Square's driver, John Kopas of Ilderton, Ont., said Savard indicated he would appeal to a civil court if he got a negative ruling from the state panel.

The ruling upheld a decision of Meadowlands track judges who said Centre Square impeded Joe G. Hanover in one of four elimination heats last Wednesday. Centre Square finished first in the $20,000 race, but was disqualified and placed fourth. Surmo Hanover, a 20-1 shot driven by Bill Herman, was declared the official winner.

"After reviewing videotapes and hearing testimony, I am satisfied that there was a violation, and the rulings of the judges and the state steward are affirmed," ruled commissioner Thomas Connery.

He said the decision was difficult, but he could not "ignore the testimony of the experts."

The track judges ruled that the outside wheel of Centre Square's sulky, driven by Kopas, passed under Joe G. Hanover's vehicle, causing driver George Sholty to drop back to avoid an accident.

Kopas was suspended for five days immediately after the race.

The judges indicated that even without a formal complaint, they would have made an inquiry into the race because of the sharpness in the way Centre Square cut through a pack of horses toward the outside.

Meanwhile, two owners of Niatross have filed suit in Buffalo to void contracts allowing a New Jersey stock broker to sell interests in the famed three-year-old pacer.

QUESTION: What can a Crisis Line worker do about the isolation and loneliness callers sometimes feel?

ANSWER: NEED Crisis Line volunteers are specially trained to listen in a caring and supportive manner to callers who feel there is no one around to share their concerns with. By talking openly about loneliness, callers are often times helped to look at areas in their life where they can find support. NEED Crisis Line wants to be a support for you.

QUESTION: Who uses NEED Crisis Line?

ANSWER: We get calls from all kinds of people, all age groups, both men and women. We are here for everyone, and we want everyone to know that. People just like you call NEED!

WHY ARE WE LOCKED OUT?

Local 280 Vancouver Island Brewery Workers wish you to know

We took a strike vote some weeks ago but did not serve our notice as we wished to then, and still wish to bargain a settlement but the Companies who chose to act through a mediator and not bargain face to face with us then chose to break off talks by serving lock out notice.

The Company has said the Union Members were denied their right to vote on the offer. On Friday, July 25, 1980 Local 280's Committee took the package before a special meeting when a secret ballot vote was taken and the package rejected. This rejection was supported by 100% of the membership.

While inflation is now over 10% and rising the wage offer is 9.9% in the first year, 9% in the second year and 8.2% in the third year. This offer is not being made to all employees of the Company.

The Company is seeking to freeze the probationary employees wage rate of 1978 until 1983. We feel that for us to sign an agreement with this clause in it, would be unfairly representing this group of employees. We feel that equal pay for equal work.

The Company also seeks the right to tell any employee that he has to work overtime whether he wishes to or not, no matter how much it would infringe on an employees free time.

The employees have already worked seventy days since the end of the last contract and the Company has said there will be no retroactive pay for this period.

The pension plan as offered would give a reduction in an employees pension cheque as compared to our present plan. The Company was asked for an explanation of this and as yet has not come forward.

Restrictions to help save salmon stocks

New restrictions on sports anglers and commercial salmon trollers will be imposed starting Aug. 15 and continuing until Oct. 31 in the outside waters off the Nitinat Bar where the Juan de Fuca commercial net fishing zone starts.

Commercial salmon fishing will be closed in the area from Tsusiat Falls to a fishing boundary sign one mile east of the Nitinat Bar (around the surf line where the net area starts) and inside a line running from Pachena Point to Carmanah Point.

In that same area, sport anglers will be restricted to two chinooks a day longer than 30 inches in length, or no more than four salmon in the aggregate.

The action is taken in the interests of conservation of chinook salmon stocks in the Nitinat watershed.

Other Nitinat sport and commercial fishing closures include the Nitinat Bar area and Narrows from Aug. 4 until further notice; Nitinat Lake at the Campus Creek area; and all tidal and non-tidal waters of the Nitinat River from Aug. 10 until Aug. 31, plus the usual existing closure of the Nitinat River from Sept. 1 to Oct. 20.

In Alberni Inlet all salmon fishing has been closed in Nahmint Bay and Nahmint River from Aug. 1 to Oct. 31 in the interests of conservation of Nahmint River chinook salmon stocks.

Powell captures Mayhew Trophy

Alf Powell of Uplands fired a net 65 on his home course Friday to capture the Mayhew Trophy in the Vancouver Island Seniors Golf Association's annual Bob Mayhew tournament.

Frank Unwin, also of Uplands, was second with 66.

Low gross honors went to Harry Donaldson of Gorge Vale, who rebounded from a front-nine 44 with a par 35 on the back nine. His 80 placed him one shot ahead of Russ MacFarlane of Royal Colwood and a pair of Victoria Club members, Gord Verley and Bill Thompson.

THE U.N. IS WRONG —
THE WEST BANK
BELONGS TO ISRAEL

"And in that day will I (God) make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it." Zechariah 12:3.

Unfortunately the United States voted for the U.N. resolution which condemned Israel's settlements on the West Bank. It calls on Israel to "dismantle the existing settlements" in the territories acquired in the 1967 war. This would also include the Jewish quarter of old Jerusalem. Later, President Carter said he did not realize Jerusalem was involved in the resolution.

The U.N. debate was prompted by an Israeli decision to move Jews into Hebron. What irony: Hebron is one of the four "Holy Cities" of Judaism which for close to 4000 years sustained a continuous Jewish settlement that was nearly decimated by Arab terrorists in 1929. Who could question the Jews historic right to settle there?

Some facts of history must be restated. Jordan, contrary to the 1947 U.N. partition plan for Palestine, seized the West Bank and old Jerusalem during the 1948 war in which 7 Arab nations failed in their attempt to destroy the new Israeli State founded by the U.N. When Jordan attacked Israel during the 1967 war, the Israelis took the West Bank and old Jerusalem, which were never legally Jordan's.

In 1922 the League of Nations recognized the legal, moral, and historic right of the Jewish people to a national home in Palestine, including the West Bank and Jerusalem. Since then vast oil reserves were discovered in Arab lands. If the Jews had a right to the West Bank Jerusalem in 1922, that right is valid today. But the nations are compromising Israel's rights for their own oil interests. But there is a higher dimension in this issue — Divine Providence. The new Israeli State is a miracle of history prophesied in the Bible. It's boundaries, which include the West Bank, were foretold (Gen. 15:18-21, Jer. 16:13-15, Zech. 10:9-10). It's reclamation of waste lands (Amos 9:14), climatic changes (Zech. 12:5-6) were prophesied. Eventually the Arabs will recognize Israel's rights. Then Israel shall be "a blessing in the midst of the earth." Isaiah 19:24.

'Free' Iran shah's dying wish

CAIRO (AP) — The deposed shah of Iran, in deathbed instructions to his wife, named Crown Prince Cyrus Reza to the Peacock Throne and asked that his own remains be entombed with those of his slain generals "after the liberation of Iran," Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported Friday.

It quoted former empress Farah Diba as saying in a statement, "In his last days, as he lay sick, he at various times said words I took as recommendations, and wrote down in the form of a message" to the Iranian people.

Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, forced to flee Iran in January, 1979, at the climax of a revolution directed by Moslem fundamentalist Ayatollah Khomeini, died Sunday Cairo.

The agency said Farah Diba reported that in one of his final statements, the ex-monarch said: "I commend the great Iranian people into the hands of the crown prince. God protect him. And this is my last wish."

Hundreds of officers in the shah's imperial army were executed following the revolution and scores of others have gone before firing squads in recent weeks because of an alleged plot against Khomeini's government.

The Cairo news agency reported the ex-shah told his wife he was "in exile, feeling the whip of fate," and added:

"What a strange coincidence: My heart stops beating as the hearts of the brave officers who were trying to save the land were being exposed to the hail of bullets from the enemies of Iran.

"I explain this coincidence as the solid spiritual relationship that exists between me and this army . . . . To maintain this relationship ever glorious, I recommend that my remains be buried with them, in their tombs, after the liberation of Iran."

Crown Prince Cyrus Reza, 19, joined Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in leading the mourners through the streets of downtown Cairo on Tuesday in his father's funeral procession. He was a student this year at Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., and received military flight training in the United States. He was named crown prince 12 years ago.

The news agency quoted Farah Diba as saying Pahlavi urged the crown prince to remember Iran's independence was founded on nationalism and freedom of religion.

Meanwhile, in Otisville, N.Y, 172 pro-Khomeini Iranians arrested in Washington entered a federal prison quietly at dawn today to wait for the government to determine whether they are in the United States illegally.

The scene at the correctional facility in southeastern New York differed from earlier displays by the Iranians, who were among 193 demonstrators apprehended Sunday in Washington while celebrating the death of the deposed shah.

At the urging of state department officials, the city of Washington on Friday dropped disorderly-conduct charges against the Iranians and turned them over to immigration authorities to determine whether they should be deported. They will be detained until a decision is made, officials said.

Actor Martin dies at 61

MARTIN

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Actor Strother Martin, a grizzled sourdough from 30 years of westerns who was perhaps best known as the prison warden in Cool Hand Luke, died in his hometown Friday after suffering a heart attack, the Ventura County deputy coroner said. He was 61.

It was Martin's sneery line to Paul Newman and other prisoners — "What we have here is a failure to communicate" — that most film fans remember best about his role in Cool Hand Luke.

Martin also appeared in True Grit and Rooster Cogburn with John Wayne, Shenandoah with James Stewart, Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid with Newman and Robert Redford, Slap Shot, again with Paul Newman and The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance.

Martin, who often played a grizzled drifter in westerns for 30 years, was born March 23, 1919, in Kokomo, Ind. He is survived by his wife, Helen.

'It's an eerie quiet' say Orlando police

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Downtown streets were calm early today and police returned to routine patrols in the west side neighborhood that was racked by racial disturbances earlier this week.

"I just hope they're not lulling us into a false security," said Ben Crabbe, a reserve officer with the Orlando police department.

Authorities early today and late Friday reported only a handful of the complaints they normally get on weekend nights.

"It's an eerie quiet," said police spokesman Rick deTreville. "This has been a quieter Friday night than most. I think we could document that by the number of service calls we had."

A 20-block barricade remained posted Friday night.

DeTreville said police have arrested about 60 people since early Wednesday when violence broke out following the arrest of a grand-larceny suspect by white policemen at a bar in the black section of downtown Orlando. A policeman's car was set ablaze and gangs of roving blacks took to the streets hurling rocks and bottles at passing cars and pedestrians. No shots were fired in connection with the disturbance and the only injuries reported were minor.

Slugfest at snail pace

ELMA, Wash. (AP) — When Elma throws a slugfest, it's not a prize fight. It's a race, the 2nd Annual International Slug Race.

The oddsmakers' favorite is Grant Miller, who squirmed past Ick and Super Slick last year.

Police are cordoning off the main street in this southwestern Washington community for today's race. And the slimy snail-without-a-shell speedster that slithers across the finish line first will get the city's Derby trophy.

Eight slugs in the centre of a one-metre circle of moistened plywood will compete, and the racer nearest the edge after five minutes is declared the winner.

Cuban sentenced for 1970 hijack

MACON, Ga. (AP) — A Cuban refugee woman was sentenced Friday to 20 years in prison after she pleaded guilty to air piracy for the hijacking of a Delta Air Lines airplane to Havana in 1970.

U.S. District Judge Wilbur Owens imposed the sentence Friday on Graciela Quesada Zomara, who fled Cuba during last May's exodus of refugees to the United States. But it will be up to a Federal Paroles Commission to determine how much, if any, of the sentence the 38-year-old woman serves.

Mrs. Zomara was arrested in May by FBI agents at a refugee camp at Fort Chaffee, Ark. She had confessed that she was wanted for the skyjacking.

According to a federal indictment, Mrs. Zomara hijacked the plane at gunpoint May 25, 1970, and forced the crew to fly to Cuba. She was indicted by federal authorities in Georgia after it was determined that the skyjacking occurred over central Georgia.

Mrs. Zomara had originally fled to the United States from Cuba in 1966. During her arraignment July 2, she said she commandeered the plane 10 years ago in a desperate attempt to see her family after both U.S. and Cuban authorities denied her permission to return to her homeland.

Carter admits giving cable to Billy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter gave his brother a confidential U.S. state department cable after all and even added a personal note praising Billy Carter for "a good job under the 'dry' circumstances" on his trip to Libya in 1978, the White House says.

The disclosure late Friday night came just a day after White House press secretary Jody Powell said there was no indication the president had read government cables on the Libyan trip or given them to his brother.

Earlier Friday, Billy Carter recanted his denial and said he did have one state department cable and he assumed it came from "someone in the White House."

The cable, which Powell said was mailed to the president's brother Oct. 11, 1978, said there had been "no negative fallout from Billy Carter's visit to Tripoli."

"In fact we would rate it a very positive event."

On the upper right-hand side of the page, the president printed: "To Billy. You did a good job under the 'dry' circumstances! Jimmy."

The reference was to Libya's observance of the Moslem ban on alcohol and Billy Carter's fondness at the time for beer.

Powell said that as far as he could determine, the cable was the only one sent to Billy Carter.

Powell said the White House discovered late Friday afternoon "after extensive effort" that the president had given a copy of the cable to Billy Carter.

After inquiries from the White House, Billy Carter's lawyers — Henry Ruth and Stephen Pollak — sent the copy to the president's aides, Powell said.

The president was notified of the discovery shortly before he left for his Camp David, Md., retreat. He instructed his aides to release the information, Powell said.

The cable, from the U.S. charge d'affaires in Tripoli to the state department, was the only one of seven released by the White House on Thursday that had been classified "Confidential." Five others were marked "For Limited Official Use" and one was unclassified.

Powell said Carter broke no law by giving his brother a confidential cable. "The president has the authority, if he chooses, to declassify information," the press secretary said. "He can do it, as many other people in government do, in the action of relaying it to someone else."

In Plains, Ga., Billy Carter said: "If the cable I saw and the news I read was classified, then I would hate to see some of the s--- they have classified in Washington."

He said he had denied on Thursday receiving any cables because he didn't realize the one he had was anything more than a memo from a U.S. diplomat.

Powell said the cable was sent initially to the president's secretary, Susan Clough, from Tom Beard, a liaison officer between the White House and state department.

Powell said neither the president, Ms. Clough nor Beard "remembered the incident or the existence of the note prior to (Friday) afternoon."

Billy Carter was forced by the justice department to register as an agent of Libya on July 14. At the same time, he said that he has received $220,000 of what he described as a $500,000 loan from the radical Arab government.

Believe it or not Ripley is wrong

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — An Ohio tourist chose not to believe Ripley's Believe It Or Not and — believe it or not — the tourist was right.

It took two years homework but Ron Siebert, 35, a mathematics teacher from Rocky River, Ohio, has convinced Ripley's officials that a statistical puzzle exhibited in their 11 museums around the world is not as unbelievable as they claim.

The display, which involves five lettered children's blocks, said: "All the people on the earth working day and night for a million years could not arrange such blocks into all possible combinations.

Museum founder Robert Ripley made that claim more than 50 years ago but now officials plan to remove the displays.

It seems Siebert became inquisitive and after intense calculations at home, figured it would take only one person two years and four months to arrange the blocks.

French athletes plea for political jailed

MOSCOW (UPI) — Four French athletes today handed a senior Soviet Olympics official a joint statement appealing for the release of all prisoners of conscience in Soviet jails.

Vladimir Popov, first deputy chairman of the Olympic Games Organizing Committee, said at a news conference later that he told the athletes there are no prisoners of conscience in the Soviet Union.

"If there are prisoners, they are, as in any other civilized state, in custody for their criminal actions," Popov said.

No specific prisoners were named during the discussion, he said.

"The nature of the discussion was very frank and sincere," Popov said.

The French party was led by middle-distance runner Jose Marajo of the French Antilles, who had announced before the Games that he would make some kind of political protest during the Olympics.

His unspecified protest was expected to concern last December's Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, which led to a partial boycott of the Games by Western nations, led by the United States.

"The question of Afghanistan was not raised by either side," Popov said, however.

The other members were women's relay runner Laurence Grandrieux, sprinter Joseph Arame and relay runner Philippe Dupont.

Adam, Eve, not Steve preacher chides gays

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A convention of 500 homosexuals in this Bible Belt city has generated bomb threats, protest letters, a barrage of phone calls and aroused the ire of a Baptist preacher who says: "God did not make Adam and Steve, God made Adam and Eve."

"As American citizens, they have the right to have this conference, but just because they have the legal right, they do not have the moral right," said Rev. Charles Britt, pastor of the Thrifthaven Baptist Church.

Britt planned to stage an anti-homosexual rally today near the Holiday Inn-Rivermont where the three-day Southeast Conference of Lesbians and Gay Men was being held.

The conference opened Friday amid increased police security. But gay spokesman Bill Johnson said: "We are not expecting any trouble."

Johnson said the convention-goers won't pay much attention to the protest. They will be attending seminars and lectures about religious teachings on homosexuality and legal rights of homosexuals, among other issues. The meeting also included religious services.

New Albert Nipon dresses at Gibson's . . .

There's a new vitality at every level in the Albert Nipon dresses for fall which were put on display at Gibson's this week . . . Fresh new colors . . . Tomato-Red . . . Egg-plant-Purple . . . Spinach Green . . . a vegetable garden of colors, in fact! . . . Separates are pulled together . . . There are plaids . . . striped . . . Starched collar dressing . . . Pretty prints with chemise look can be worn with, or without, their accompanying belts . . . Two-piece striped dresses with tucked fronts are superbly put-together separates . . . Tops can be worn as blouses with your suit or trousers . . . A detachable starched white collar is a striking feature on a tucked front dress . . . and for a different look there's a mandarin collar underneath . . . Polyester chiffon, polyester and cotton, and silk and acetate are the fabrics used for these beautifully simple Albert Nipon dresses . . . See them soon . . . you'll like them! . . . New at Gibson's, too, are the cleverly-tailored stretch corduroy pants from France, bearing the Gerard-Pasquier label . . . These come in Black Forest Brown and in Honey Almond Cream . . . colors to blend with every top you own! . . . And as for fit . . . well, all we can say is SUPERB! . . . Gibson's, 708 View St., 384-5913.

Exciting new home fabric collection . . .

We realize we wrote about Standard Furniture's Drapery Dept. a couple of weeks ago . . . but at that time they hadn't yet received their "New Country Gear" collection from the U.S. . . . Now that it's here we share their excitement about it and we're sure you will too when you see it! . . . Drapery dept. Mgr. Mr. Bader ordered the collection when he was in New York this spring, really pulled a coup because this is exclusive to Standard right now . . . not only in Victoria but in all of Canada! . . . The collection consists of six distinct patterns and a plain in Scotchguarded 100% cotton . . . all of which co-ordinate with each other and with the heavier cotton and rayon upholstery fabric . . . Standard has selected three color families for these . . . Beige tones, blues and rose . . . This design-on-design concept is one of the biggest things in the U.S. today . . . and from the New Country Gear collection really exciting groupings can be put together in the same color fabrics . . . Draperies . . . slipcovers . . . bedspreads . . . upholstery . . . (You might even make a stunning skirt from one of the prints!) . . . All these fabrics are exceptionally well priced . . . just $12.95 for the prints . . . $11.95 for the plains . . . and $28.95 for the upholstery fabrics . . . Go see them and plan a terrific new look for your home from the New Country Gear Collection . . . Standard Furniture Co., 737 Yates St., 382-5111.

More bargains in sheepskin coats! . . .

Another shipment of luxurious sheepskin jackets . . . along with a few full-length sheepskin coats . . . has just been unpacked at Alcheringa . . . and our advice to you . . . if you crave one of these beautiful coats from New Zealand . . . is to run, not walk, to Alcheringa because there are some fantastic bargains at last year's prices! Although the average price is just under $400 . . . there are several in the $225 range . . . so this is clearly the time to buy! . . . Hats and mitts to match most coats to complete the outfit . . . We also saw one or two sample coats made of deer suede with an incredibly soft feel . . . and almost as incredible, they're actually washable . . . will give many years of hard wear while retaining their soft luxurious feel even after repeated washings! . . . Semi-fitted style with covered buttons and tie belt, in different deer shades of brown . . . We also noticed a 3-pce. washable deer suede suit which would be delightful to own! . . . And some soft and cuddly white lambskin vests, one with a hat to match . . . There are still a few sheepskin vests on sale . . . And for people who appreciate artifacts . . . a fantastic assortment of masks and figures, etc. from Papua, New Guinea, at . . . Alcheringa, 616 Trounce Alley, 383-8224.

Pumps step out prettily for fall . . .

Now that Munday's summer sale is over . . . the store has taken on an exciting appearance with its display of new shoes for fall . . . This week we concentrated on the Amalfi pumps which have just arrived . . . All new patterns this season . . . they have the traditional Amalfi elegance . . . and the little unexpected touches which make Amalfi shoes stand out in a crowd . . . "Trevis" is a high-heeled V-throat pump in either wine or black suede . . . with a tiny leaf trim at the back of the heel . . . $120 . . . "Lou" is the same pattern with a sling back . . . in either fawn or black kid, priced at $110 . . . Same price for "Zimarro" a rolled edge pump in navy or black kid, with two different heel-heights . . . either high, or the lower continental heel . . . "Diga" is a dressy two-tone suede pump with scallop trim on vamp and side of heel . . . In two shades of grey, or fawn and brown combinations . . . $120 . . . "Camerino" is a sportier pump in pig suede with leather sling back an lower stacked heel . . . Wine and Impala . . . priced at $95 . . . Another sling with scallops on one side of the vamp and continental heel is called "Walli" . . . Fawn or wine suede . . . $120 . . . "Merv" . . . also with continetal heel . . . has scallops across the vamp . . . comes in wine, navy, chocolate brown and black, at $120 . . . Autumn fashions with flair . . .

Our visit to Eaton's Signature Shop last Monday certainly proved to be rewarding! . . . We saw some delightful hand-crocheted Vali sweaters in muted tones . . . A 2-pce. black silk taffeta Vali Design dress . . . size 10 and the only one of its kind, priced at $335 . . . Swingy grey pleated skirts at $165 . . . and a dreamy oyster polyester chiffon blouse with lace cuffs and jabot . . . all of these from Vali . . . From Auckie Sanft there's a wrap coat in brown or raspberry tweed . . . A semi-fitted black wool coat with velvet mandarin collar . . . both tagged at $385 . . . And a double-breasted grey coat with mandarin collar, side detailing and separate scarf, is $450 . . . New Auckie Sanft suits include a single-breasted brown tweed, priced at $375 . . . Ditto a grey flannel at $395 . . . and another single-breasted grey flannel with a pleated skirt . . . $425 . . . Two lovely wool boucle coats from Dejac of Paris . . . These have braid piping all around as well as around the armhole . . . $595 . . . A wool and cashmere coat in either red or grey, is priced at $495 . . . and there's a very good looking suit in brown-black-grey paisley polyester, with quilted jacket and pleated skirt . . . A "one-only" size 14 with a $525 price-tag at . . . Eaton's Signature Shop, 382-7141, loc. 242.

Fall Bleyles now at Charmante's . . .

And now's the time to see them and make your selection because Bleyle garments have a way of disappearing fast once the good word gets out! . . . Charmante's 100% wool Bleyle co-ordinates for fall come in grey, camel and bark . . . this latter a nice dark brown . . . Plus tone-on-tone checks in camel and bone and bark and bone, in skirts only . . . styled with a wrap-over slit in front . . . Skirts in the plain colors are very prettily styled with two deep tucks creating a front panel effect flattering to any figure . . . The two-button blazer . . . in camel or bark . . . is a bit shorter than in previous years . . . Very trim and smartly tailored . . . Slacks come in each of the plain colors . . . Nothing tops off a Bleyle outfit like a Hooper blouse . . . and some beauties have also arrived in this shipment . . . Colors, of course, are perfect matches or complements for the Bleyle blazers, skirts and pants . . . There are shirt style blouses in champagne and bark . . . A pretty style with an eyelet collar and eyelet shoulder detailing . . . A shadow striped champagne blouse with mandarin neck, and two styles of print blouses . . . a classic shirt with shallower collar, and a tailored blouse with a tie neck . . . Charmante's, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-1555.

Spend Christmas in the Bahamas! . . .

Want to have a really different Christmas this year? . . . Then visit Paulin's and ask them to tell you about New Horizon's one and two-week holiday packages in Nassau . . . capital city of the Bahamas, and a tropical paradise if ever we saw one! . . . Several years since we were there ourselves, but we've fond memories of this lively, historic, cosmopolitan city on a tropical island ringed with fine beaches . . . And the Shopping on Bay St. still makes us drool! . . . Christmas departure date from Vancouver is Dec. 20 . . . while the New Year's Bargain Departure on December 27 allows you to deduct $120 per person from the regular package price! . . . There's a choice of six hotels to stay in, and the cost of the holiday depends upon which one you select . . . Costs . . . which range from $807 to $1199 for one week, two sharing a room . . . include roundtrip transportation by scheduled services from Vancouver . . . Greeting at Nassau Airport and transportation to and from your hotel or villa . . . 7 or 14 nights at the accommodation of your choice . . . Breakfast daily except at the Coral Harbour Beach Villas . . . but there's a U-Drive car for 2 days with a 7-day holiday, or 4 days with a 14-day holiday at this latter . . . And those travelling on Dec. 20 or Dec. 27 will be invited to a special Welcome to Nassau Luncheon! . . . Paulin Travel, 532 Broughton St., 382-9168.

Piggybacking a plus for pupils

WALL

By AB KENT

They call it piggybacking the classroom load or two teachers for the price of one.

And it's growing in popularity as pupils decline in Greater Victoria School District.

For the past three years there has been class-sharing in District 61, says assistant superintendent of personnel Glenn Wall.

Wall said about 20 teachers now work half-time filling 10 elementary school jobs.

"It's working out perfectly. In a period of declining enrolment you are able to employ that many more people," he said.

For some teachers, half-time work is all they want in the first place.

But for those with little seniority facing lay-off, half-time work is better than none at all.

Last year three full-time jobs were shared by six teachers.

An example, Wall says, are those teachers returning from maternity leave who don't want to work full-time.

School principals like the arrangement because it raises the energy level.

Instead of one teacher who must stretch his output over a full day of teaching, a class gets two fresh teachers a day and a more dynamic atmosphere.

In some cases it has been found the morning teacher remains in the school for at least part of the afternoon preparing for the next morning's classes, a kind of bonus for the youngsters.

"The children get the best of both worlds," Wall said.

Class-sharing occurs almost entirely at the elementary level — kindergarten to Grade 8 — because timetabling in the secondary grades does not lend itself to the practice.

Doubling has aroused the interest of other school districts like the Gulf Islands, where trustees are considering a proposal from the teachers' association.

The proposal is backed by the suggestion that having two teachers share a class could help reduce stress, one of the hazards of their profession.

Cairn dogtrots but setter lags

By Dr. FRANK MILLER

Dear Dr. Miller

When I jog with my cairn terrier and my Gordon Setter, the cairn does a dogtrot but the setter only a fast walk, Is the cairn getting too much exercise? Is the setter getting enough?

C. F.

Dear C. F.:

Consult with your canine's doctor to find out. Probably, though your answer would depend upon the physical condition of your dogs and how far they went. If they were both completely healthy specimens to begin with, then certainly the cairn would be tired first. A fast walk can be excellent exercise however. And if the setter happens to be generally more sedate for reasons of age or physical condition, anyway, then by happy coincidence both canines can be receiving the right workout.

Dear Dr. Miller

Before coming to bed at night she's got to stop and count her canary's droppings! She said this was your idea. She read it in your column. What's going on here?

J. F.

Dear J. F.:

While it doesn't necessarily have to be done before bedtime, or on special occasions at all, counting caged bird droppings is indeed desirable. By making such a count once or twice a week, or more frequently if there's any question about the bird's general condition, the owner's able to determine whether the eliminations appear normal and whether the bird is eating a normal quantity of food. If the daily dropping count averages 40 and it dwindles down to 20 or less, the bird is obviously eating less and therefore a checkup is indicated. The counting chore then is ot an exercise for eccentrics but one of the most efficient ways of keeping track of a pet bird's health.

Dogs aren't the only pets affected by hot humid weather. Cats, too, particularly long hairs or those with shortened muzzles such as Persians, can become dangerously overheated. Cats don't normally pant to hold down body temperature. When you see a pussycat panting, it's likely overheating and needs help in finding a cool spot, a cold shower or some other aid in getting its own body temperature down. Some tend to be overly casual about supplying their cats with water, particularly since some cats seem to drink so little most of the year. During really hot weather however most felines need the extra fluids to keep from dehydrating, so keep clean water constantly available.

Knitting patterns often had interesting story to tell

The Isles of Aran which are off the west coast of Ireland and on the edge of Galway Bay are well known even today for their intricate knitting patterns.

For years the stitches and patterns were never written down, but handed on from mother to daughter by word of mouth. In this way, certain stitches and patterns became associated with certain families. Life in those days was very hard for a fisherman, many were swept overboard in storms, and very often it was only by means of the sweater that identifications could be made.

The stitches sometines have very interesting names and reasons for them. The cables of course represent rope and for a number of yeats were actually known as rope stitches. Zig-zag stitch stemmed from the paths up the cliffs or for lightning; double zig-zag was known in Scotland as "marriage lines" or "ups and downs".

Diamonds, usually worked in reverse stocking stitch, or in seed or moss stitch, represents the mesh of the fishing nets; while "print o' the hoof" — hoof marks in the sand, is the double plait or braid stitch. "Hit and miss" is a double moss or seed stitch, while sand or shingle is the single seed or moss stitch that we know today.

Many of the designs in the old days could be associated with certain parts of the country, or even a particular town, and particular patterns and stitches could be associated with certain families.

On the east coast of Yorkshire in England, the people are descended from Viking stock (many hundreds of years ago), but many of the words used until quite recently showed this heritage. "Mask" is the Norwegian word for stitch, and herring-mask and net-mask are the names of two stitches that have been used for hundreds of years.

Knitting needles are still called "pins" even to this day; stitches are referred to as "loo-ups" and are reckoned by "t'score".

This week's pattern is a beautiful crochet shawl for wear over your summer dresses and to look glamorous during the festive winter season. It truly is a lovely work of art and one that will be admired by all your friends.

Simple filet crochet is easy to do andyou'll find this shawl very quick to crochet. The deep fringe sets it off to perfection.

They build — and fly own planes

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ron Nethercott, one of the 32 members of the Bay of Quinte Aeromodellers Club, builds and flies his own planes, from Second World War vintage planes to gliders. He has lost track of how many he has completed and currently has 20 in his home. Nethercott says dedicia-tion and precision are required to build planes that fly, some of which take up to two years to complete.

Bicycle riders: Arrive alive

The Capital Region Safety Council is offering courses throughout August

The Capital Region Safety Council is zeroing in on bicycle safety.

Courses are being offered at parks and recreation facilities, the Saanich public safety building and the Tom Thumb Safety Village on a rotating basis during August.

Each course operates from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and involves traffic laws, rules of the road, maintenance and riding practice, says council manager K.J. Wyatt.

"The majority of bicycles checked are found to be unsafe, and many of them could be made safe if maintenance had been carried out on a regular basis. Parents should take a greater interest in ensuring their child's bicycle is safe," said Wyatt.

"Although the Safe Bicycling Course teaches the rudiments of safety, only practice and correction of faults will ensure that a youngster has the the knowledge and skills to safely operate a bicycle in traffic."

He said repeated training helps to reinforce knowledge and perfect skills but parents need to take an active part to ensure their children follow what they have been taught.

Wyatt said some of the common faults of children riding bicycles are a lack of concentration on being a safe rider, failing to stop at red lights and stop signs, riding on the wrong side of the road, failing to see road signs and failure to signal.

"Many seem to fail to realize the consequence of their actions if the motorist also is not concentrating on his or her driving task."

There are also many adult cyclists who blatantly contravene the laws when they should know better, he said.

"Some of these negligent adults seem to have little respect for motorists or little concern for their own safety."

He said if a bicyclist is to "arrive alive," he or she must practise defensive riding and do everything possible to avoid a collision with motorists — for a good reason: the cyclist always loses.

Rising number of fallers

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Robert Galway is seeing a particular type of patient these days — the do-it-yourselfer.

The Toronto orthopedic surgeon says he is worried about the rising number of serious ladder accidents. Ladder injuries have accounted for almost 50 of his patients in less than a year, 20 of them since mid-June.

One was a 77-year-old man who died from injuries sustained in a fall while inspecting his roof. The fall crushed his pelvis and internal organs.

Galway said the patients he has seen come from all walks of life and many are elderly. He suggested that rising costs combined with the difficulty of getting handymen encourages inexperienced people to try to do their own household jobs.

Another patient was Dr. Robert Stachula, a Toronto family doctor, who fell 1.5 metres from a ladder while painting his cottage.

The fall was enough for Stachula to fracture bones in both feet.

"It's the shock of suddenly being sick when you are so healthy," Stachula says. "I've always been healthy and all of a sudden I can't walk."

Stachula was lucky. He will be back to work in a few weeks. Some of Galway's patients weren't so fortunate.

Two patients are quadriplegics — men totally paralysed from the neck down who will never work again.

Canada's mint short of cents

OTTAWA (CP) — A penny shortage has hit the Royal Canadian Mint, probably the fault of overflowing piggy banks.

The mint is three months behind in its penny coinage and can't keep up with orders from banks, a spokesman said Thursday.

She said demand for the one-cent pieces is heavier than usual this year.

Dear Abby:

My beloved wife of 42 years recently died after a long and painful terminal illness. I feel that she was kept alive much too long after it became obvious that there was no hope for her recovery. If you had ever watched a beautiful 130-pound woman reduced to a 79-pound skeleton, you would understand my feelings. She begged for months to die, and we who loved her suffered with her.

How I wish my dear wife had signed the Living Will you mentioned in your column. When I told my doctor I wanted to obtain a Living Will instructing all those who loved me that they were not to keep me alive should I fall victim to a terminal illness and there was no reasonable hope for my recovery, he said, "You don't need one because California is one of the 10 states that have the Natural Death Act."

Is this true?

Planning Ahead

Dear Planning:

No. You need a document specifically pepared for the state in which you live because the law in each state differs slightly.

The 10 states that have the Natural Death Act are: Arkansas, California, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon, Texas and Washington.

The society for the Right to Die, 250 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019, has prepared forms and guidelines specifically designed for each of the above states. It will send you the proper form on request. There is no charge for the document, but the society is a non-profit organization, so please send a few dollars to cover the cost of the document and mailing.

If you live in one of the other 40 states (Many of which now have bills pending), you will be sent a Living Will declaration to sign as evidence of your wishes. Meanwhile your name will be recorded and the society will send you a proper form if and when the law is enacted in your state.

Dear Abby:

I have never seen a problem hike mine in your column, and it's a tough one. For the last two years my fiance and I have lived together, so it is assumed by everyone who knows us that we will be married. (We probably will, although no date has been set.)

The problem is his kid sister. More than once she has said, "When are you two getting married? I can't wait to be a bridesmaid."

Abby, how do I let her know that I am not planning to ask her to be in my wedding party? I hate to come right out and tell her because I don't want to hurt her feelings.

Thanks for a snappy comeback.

J.

Dear J.:

More than a "snappy" comeback, you need a gentle and diplomatic way of letting the "kid sister" down. It's unfair to let her assume that she'll be in the wedding party if she's not going to be.

The next time she mentions it, tell her the truth. The longer you put it off, the more disappoitned she'll be.

Dear Abby:

I am 18 and very much in love for the first time in my life. Michael is 21, and a more honest and decent guy I've never met. He doesn't drink or smoke and he's working to put himself through college.

So what's the problem? My father doesn't like Michael. And why doesn't he like him? Because Michael doesn't look you straight in the eye when he talks to you.

Abby, Michael is shy and it's hard for him to look people in the eye, but that doesn't mean he doesn't have good character.

Don't you think my father is wrong for holding this against Michael?

Loves Michael

Dear Loves:

Yes! The world is full of charming crooks who can look you in the eye and lie through their teeth if there's something to be gained by it.

Abby loves to get your letters. Write directly to Dear Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Be sure to enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope if you wish a personal reply.

'Young' MDs may be fine

your health

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

My mother and father are both in their early 70s. They live in a senior citizens complex. Two young doctors are called in whenever anyone becomes sick. We have no way of finding out how competent the doctors are. Wouldn't it be better if a specialist in diseases of the elderly could be assigned to such projects?

Mrs. A.A.J.

Dear Mrs. J.:

I'm certain that the two "young" doctors who are affiliated with your parents' residence have undoubtedly been screened and have been found capable enough to handle the routine and emergency situations that will arise. It is easy to check on their qualifications and their training. Remember that doctors in such a situation almost invariably surround themselves with specialists in all fields who are on call when needed.

Because of the increase of the number of elderly people there has been an increased interest in the specialty of geriatrics. It is true that all physicians can usually handle most of the problems of the elderly, yet I believe that physicians who are specially trained in diseases of the aging are better equipped to handle both their physical and emotional problems.

Not all doctors have the "geriatric makeup." It really requires a very special attitude of sympathetic understanding and patience to handle the vexing problems of the elderly. When the pressures of practice become great, the elderly, with their multiple complaints, may be brushed off with a degree of casualness.

In the residency programs in my hospitals, I have found that there are some residents who simply cannot emphatically project themselves into the problems of the elderly. This may be due to their own psychological makeup. There are other young resident doctors who are tender and caring and patient and can be depended on to explore the patients' problems and to give them the comforting reassurance that is so necessary at this age.

If you get the feedback that your parents are being treated in an offhand way, then it becomes essential for you to explore all the possibilities in the community to supply them with the medical help you feel they deserve. There undoubtedly are available geriatric specialists who will offer them medical and emotional support.

Consider this important fact: The two "young doctors," you can be sure, have a special interest in the elderly. For, if they did not, they undoubtedly would have sought other areas to continue their practice. A direct discussion with them will probably give you the reassurance you need that your parents are in good medical hands.

Dr. Coleman welcomes questions from readers. Write to him in care of the Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, V8W 2N4.

What to do with lumps of yellowish fat clinging to thighs, ribs, etc. of a plump fryer? Think of those lumps as adding a rich flavoring for poultry stuffing, soups, casseroles. Freeze the fat; when needed for rich chicken flavoring, simmer with water.

The most important step for growing tomatoes could be chosing a variety resistant to as many of the common diseases (wilt, nematodes, etc.) as possible. Some tomato types are even resistant to cracks and bursting caused when dry weather alternates with wet periods. A nurseryman knows the disease resistant seedlings.

A little rhubarb? A few fresh strawberries? And you can't eat them before they spoil? Freeze them uncooked. Wash a dry rhubarb pieces and place in an airtight container without sugar. Strawberries can be sliced and mixed with sugar (1 cup per pound of berries) and frozen.

your horoscope

By SYDNEY OMARR

Sunday, August 3, 1980

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Financial prospects improve. Questions are answered. Elements of timing, luck ride with you. Gemini and Sagittarius persons figure prominently. You get chance to expand base of operations. A "valuable" gift is on the way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar cycle high; take initiative, imprint style, make personal appearances and fresh starts. Judgment, intuition are on target — you select quality material and can rebuild on a more solid structure. Scorpio and Aquarius persons figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your qualities of perception surge to forefront. You know what is to occur — and instinctively you will do what is necessary. Accent on secrets, special meetings, visit involving individual confined to home or hospital.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Family member makes gesture that means, "Let's stop hurting each other!" Be receptive, restore domestic harmony. Some of your fondest hopes and wishes could become realities. Recent business investment pays dividends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on understanding full dimensions of project. Define terms, perceive needs of one willing to give you a "major opportunity." Pisces and Virgo natives figure prominently. Be realistic concerning promises — protect reputation, steer away from get-rich-quick schemes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Favorable lunar aspect coincides with journey, education, philosophical concepts, publishing and ability to overcome language, distance barriers. Your position is strong — others know it and may attempt to disrupt your plans. Success arouses envy as well as admiration.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Close out old accounts. Take positive steps toward new goals, directions. Accent on leases, interest rates, stock transactions, financial rating of one who wants to "do business." Aries and another Libran figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Obtain valid hint from Libra message. You have chance to reach agreement which would guarantee you greater degree of independence. Emphasis on revising contract or "arrangement." You deserve a new deal!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Check inventory. Be aware of assets and deficits. Bring sense of direction into focus. Work, service, basic issues command attention. Cancer, Leo, Aquarius natives play significant roles. Individual who taught you in past makes reappearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Numerous activities prove stimulating, could also lead to scattering of efforts. Accent on emotional responses, speculation, holiday spirit and romance. Gemini and Sagittarius persons figure in your personal scenario.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Factual information dominates. Don't attempt to duck basic issues. Emphasis on home, property, long-term agreement. Escape hatch is available, but it would be more advantageous to work within rules and regulations. Respond accordingly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Trips, calls, news which encourages creative changes — these dominate scenario. Exciting contacts, relationships prove stimulating. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play important roles. Gain indicated through written word.

IF AUGUST 3 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY ... you have sense of showmanship and humor. You are creative, artistic and tend to have a weight problem. You travel, paint and write. You love luxury and often spend money as fast as you earn it. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. Current cycle points to a "new kind" of home life — also going into business for yourself. If single, marriage could be in picture. If married, there might be an addition to family. You are attractive; members of opposite sex find you a fascinating challenge. During August, you make fascinating contacts and could fall madly in love.

Monday, August 4, 1980

ARIES (March 21-April 9): You gain greater freedom of choice. You can dismantle base and rebuild, you can make inquiries and take a short journey. Aquarius, Scorpio and Leo persons play significant roles. Relative is bearer of good news.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Exchange of ideas could result in profit. Know it, present concepts in creative, graphic manner. Member of opposite sex becomes ally and sends your self-esteem soaring. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Stick with number 5.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): News regarding property values, family members and special gift purchase is highlighted. Accent initiative, originality, personal appearances and a confident, dynamic manner. Moon in your sign coincides with excellent timing and judgment that is on target.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Much that occurs could be shrouded in mystery. Bring priorities into sharp, clear focus. Be positive of terms, legal agreements. You can get backing of one who rates high in special organization. Pisces, Virgo persons play key roles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emotional involvement intensifies. Past commitments bear fruit. Money and love dominate your personal scenario. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently. Moon position highlights friends wishes and fulfillment of aspirations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You gain added recognition — superior lifts roadblock to progress. One you admire will seek your counsel. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. Grand opportunity exists to improve distribution and display of product.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Make new starts in new directions. You encounter creative, stimulating individual who makes you appreciate your own positive qualities. Leo, Aquarius natives play significant roles. Imprint style.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22-Nov. 21): Decision due concerning home, career and direction. You sense what is going to occur; prepare accordingly. Be aware of basic issues, necessities and employment opportunities. Cancer, Leo, Aquarius natives figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid direct confrontations. Don't rush decisions, Know that waiting game works in your favor. A variety of relationships dominate scenario. Gemini, and another Sagittarian figure prominently. Long-distance communication verifies legal concept.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): dig beneath surface indications; insist on quality and bypass bargain-basement material. Co-worker or one who shares interests will play prominent role. Special project proves "a winner."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Affair of heart dominates; relationship intensifies and you learn where you stand with member of opposite sex. Accent on young persons, significant changes and ways to complete long-standing tasks. Check small print.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Obtain hint from Capricorn message. Improve security measures. Remove any safety hazards in connection with current residence. Be specific, separate fact from fiction — obtain professional property appraisal.

IF AUGUST 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY ... you have sense of drama and confidence in your ability to "beat the odds." You are capable of expressing yourself in creative, unorthodox manner. You had a sense of destiny at a relatively early age. You might have been separated from one of both parents, in an actual or psychological sense. Many of your contemporaries consider you rebellious. You do not follow the crowd. You stand tall for principles and are willing to accept consequences. Aquarius, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. Many of your views will be vindicated in August. Travel and accelerated social life indicated for you in September.

Tuesday, August 5, 1980

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Flurry of messages, calls and visits could dominate your personal scenario. Accent on change, travel and a variety of ideas. Member of opposite sex figures prominently and you will be dealing with Gemini, Sagittarius persons.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Come to financial terms with one who can aid in beautifying surroundings. Accent on basic values, family member who is willing to make major concession. Another Taurus, a Libra and a Scorpio play significant roles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You get to heart of matters — you learn who has been telling truth and which versions have been "blowing smoke rings." Face facts as they are — steer away from any tendency towards self-deception. Pisces, Virgo natives play key roles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Organize material; utilize lessons learned in recent past. Special relationship bears fruit. You are given access to confidential data. You can now deal from position of strength. Know it and proceed with quiet confidence.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Completion of cycle is indicated; you are praised, "reviewed" and you define perimeters of a relationship. Aries, Libra persons figure in scenario. Accent on desire, aspirations and fulfillment of major hopes and wishes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Profitable new deal is on agenda. You'll have chance to be more independent, creative and daring. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Prestige is on upswing and your reputation is enhanced. One who "pulls strings" takes a liking to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Change of scenery proves beneficial. Gain new perspectives. Look beyond the immediate — perceive potential. A long-awaited decision affecting legal status will be favorable. Cancer, Capricorn, Aquarius persons figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Dig deep, go below surface indications. If persistent, you hit jackpot. Accent on locating what had been lost, missing or stolen. One close to you, including mate or partner, relates information which can be transformed into profit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be frank in presenting opinions to those who seek your counsel. You'll be asked numerous questions. Key is to be generous without becoming involved with one who "winks at the law." Read between the lines, detect subtle nuances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Meaningful compliments received concerning style and manner of presenting views. Gain indicated from written word. Be ready for change, travel and a variety of opinions. In matters of speculation, stick with number 5.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Obtain valuable hint from Capricorn message. Accent on payments, collections and receiving credit long overdue. Emphasis on work, recreation and additional knowledge concerning diet, nutrition. Important domestic adjustment proves favorable.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Individual who seemed indifferent will now prove to be an enthusiastic supporter. You could receive a business or stock "tip" which should be seriously considered. Mystery clouds are removed — you perceive potential and are able to obtain excellent terms.

IF AUGUST 5 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY ... you are charming, active, perceptive and have an insatiable curiosity. You are able to express yourself through written and spoken word — many people rely on your counsel. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. A significant change occurs in October and could include travel. You are stubborn, sensual and willing to stand tall for convictions. You are attracted to the arts and could move in "circle of celebrities." In November, you remodel or beautify surroundings. During that month, domestic adjustment occurs and you might be considering a change of residence.

Stores yield on tags

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario supermarket chains have bowed to the will of the consumer and will keep individual price stickers on products, the Ontario consumer and commercial relations minister said Friday.

Frank Drea said the supermarkets — Dominion, Loblaws and Steinberg's (Miracle Food Mart) — had been asked to respond to a government survey that showed consumers basically support an electronic scanning system at the checkout desk but oppose the removal of individual price stickers.

Stickers are not needed by the scanning device, which records prices from markings on food wrappers. In stores using the system, prices appear only on the supermarket shelf.

Drea told the Ontario legislature in June that consumers oppose the lack of individual pricing because it makes comparison shopping difficult and prevents shoppers from keeping track of price changes.

Gardeners' August not all hammocks, picnics garden notes

by helen chesnut

This past spring, many of us who garden fairly extensively thought of August as some remote point in the future when the island weather would be perfect and there would be a hiatus in the demands our plantings place upon our green thumbs.

But, lo, with the arrival of August we find there are many small backyard jobs that should be done to keep up the general health and beauty of the garden and to make the fall and next spring season a little more enjoyable. In short, this month isn't going to be all hammocks and picnics.

If those nasty weeds have got you down and you're contemplating the use of some sort of weed killer, stop for a moment and weigh the labor-saving advantage against the potential harm. Sprays will often drift about and many prized plantings at their peak right now will wilt.

Tomatoes are most often sent into a perpetual slump from drifting herbicies and even trees and shrubs can be adversely affected if they extend their roots where you are applying a spray.

If you have spots in your garden or patio or balcony containers that tend to dry out between waterings, see if you can scrounge some sort of mulch that will be easy and inexpensive. Lawn clippings are an old standby, placed in thin layers at a time between the rows or around the plants, but do make sure they haven't had a weed-killer treatment for at least the past two weeks. Other materials may include wood chips and sawdust, shredded bark or seaweed. The mulch will help retain moisture and keep the soil cool.

Of course, there's the never-ending task of keeping the old flowers picked off annuals to ensure a longer blooming display and if you never seem to get the time to do this conscientiously, it's a great jog for a youngster who is anticipating that allowance Saturday morning.

It is most important to keep your trailer perennials well supported. If you want those extra large, dazzling blooms, try your hand at a bit of disbudding — even if you disbud just one or two specimens, it would give you a good idea whether it is worth the results to you.

Of course, if you want masses of color in the garden, leave the buds alone. But for big, showy blooms on your dahlias and chrysanthemums (and peonies, earlier in the season), try a bit of disbudding. All you do is remove all the buds on the side of each stem, leaving only the terminal or top bud. All the stem's energy will go into producing a single gigantic bloom at the top of the stem.

Tomatoes should be cut off at the top, once five fruiting trusses have developed. Any furhter truss development will not likely have time to develop and ripen its fruits. And keep your tomato plants staked for larger and better fruit.

None of these little chores so far has been particularly onerous but to get into something just a mite heavier, now is a good time to clean up your strawberry bed. Keep it uncrowded and every few years it's a good idea to prepare a new strawberry bed in a new site.

Without destroying the old one, set up a couple of rows of first runners in a different spot. The new bed will be producing the spring after next at which time you can dig up the old bed without ever having missed a strawberry season. Besides, it keeps the slugs guessing.

Having destroying the old one, set up a couple of rows of first runners in a different spot. The new bed will be producing the spring after next at which time you can dig up the old bed without ever having missed a strawberry season. Besides, it keeps the slugs guessing.

Having dealt with the strawberry bed, it's as well not to ignore the raspberry plantation. First off, remove all raspberry canes that have fruited ths season, best done as soon as picking is over.

If the canes are crowded, thin them out now and cut the tops off any that have grown unmanageably tall. This will give better air circulation to next year's fruiting canes and allow them to ripen and harden up for winter.

And at all costs do remember to keep the beans picked. If the pods are allowed to age, the plants will stop producing long before they would if properly attended to.

SO THAT'S WHY they're called boxer shorts, eh? Well, not really but as it happens in this case Bobby Sox, a boxer, is sporting shorts in what owner Kim Rath, 14, of Lethbridge calls a "precautionary measure."

Dirty old Edmonton?

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton is very dirty. That's the verdict after a litter pollution reading by Outdoors Unlittered, a non-profit litter-prevention organization supported by the Alberta environment department.

An index of 10 means extreme pollution. The index for Edmonton was nine.

The reading will be taken daily until Aug. 8, says Cindy Kucey, project coordinator for Outdoors Unlittered. She said the campaign is to make people aware of their bad habits and stop them.

$95,000 missing

LACOMBE, Alta. (CP) — Mayor John Olthius has turned detective in an attempt to track down a missing $95,000 cheque from the Alberta 75th anniversary commission.

Town council is growing worried about the missing cheque, to be used to pay for anniversary projects in this town about 15 kilometres north of Red Deer.

Its disappearance has put a number of projects on hold.

"Firstly, we haven't got it," Mayor Olthius said, "and secondly, we were told the cheque had been mailed, and we put a tracer on it."

Without the money, the town can not pay its share of some anniversary projects. About $3,000 of the grant has already been spent.

New radio station

MORDEN, Man. (CP) — Manitoba's newest radio station, CISV, went on the air Friday.

The station is broadcasting from a new studio, about 100 kilometres southwest of Winnipeg, to listeners in the Pembina valley, including the towns of Winkler, Morden and Carman.

The station is operating with a power of 10,000 watts and transmits at 1530 kiloherz on the AM dial.

Unfortunate fraud

MORDEN, Man. (CP) — A local farmer was defrauded of $46,000 recently by a person claiming to be a fortune teller, Morden police said.

The farmer met the so-called fortune teller in Portage la Prairie where he was told he was possessed by an evil spirit, police said. He was told his money was the cause of his bad luck.

The fortune teller then instructed him to take his savings from the bank and deliver it to a Morden home which police said was rented.

The farmer was told to recover the money the next morning and his luck wold change. But, when he went to the home, the money and the fortune teller were gone.

Perspectives

By Rev. John A. Davidson

How many of us Canadians are as concerned about famine in Africa and in the Indian sub-continent as we are about rising food costs at home? Does not our fussing over weight-losing diets have ironical undertones in a world in which two-thirds of the people go to bed hungry every night?

Some people in Canada do not have sufficient food, but most of us have more than we need. Public health authorities have said that more of us suffer from obesity than from malnutrition.

The problem of widespread hunger has been with mankind since the beginnings of history, but in our time it has acquired a new dimension of challenge, for famine is now technologically obsolete. As John F. Kennedy said when he was president of the United States, now, for the first time in history, we have the technology to provide sufficient food for all persons in the world and it is only a question of the will to do so.

Hunger, with the threat of hunger, is one of the main causes of revolutionary discontent in our time. What kinds of political decisions would you make if you and your family and most of the people in your community suffered from chronic malnutrition? As Bertrand Russell once asked, "If one man offers you democracy and another offers you a bag of grain, at what stage of starvation will you prefer the grain to the vote?"

The most dangerous enemy democracy has today is in the acute, nagging, dehumanizing poverty of so many of the world's people. We have more to fear from widespread hunger than we have from totalitarian ideologies. The external aid and relief programs of our government, and similar programs of our churches and international charitable organizations, are probably more significant for our national security, in the long run, than all the things that can be done by our department of national defence.

But calculating self-interest—foreign aid given primarily as a sort of bribe to keep the restless natives docile—is morally indefensible and, as a matter of strategy, doomed to falure. Political realism may demand that we take that kind of motivation seriously, for it may be the only kind that appeals to some of the prosperous and over-fed. But a nation's foreign policy without a dominant strain of genuine compassion in it will be, in the end, and unproductive and evil policy.

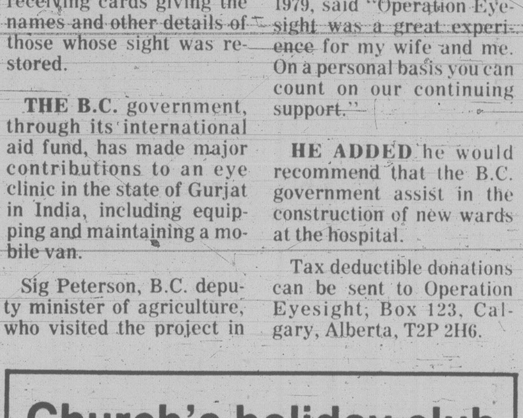
The compassion to which we are called is not merely a matter of nice emotions and splendid rhetoric; it is a matter of action, action that must often by sacrificial. In these times compassion—the word means, literally, suffering with—demands that we sacrifice some of our affluence and comfort. We may have to take some of the raisins and cherries out of our fruitcake, perhaps even reduce our consumption of cake, if other people are to have enough bread.

"For when I was hungry you gave me nothing to eat." Those words (Matthew 25:42), words of divine condemnation, ought to shatter the complacency that settles so easily on the consciences of so many of us comfortable Christians.

(Davidson is minister of Dominion-Chalmers United Church, Ottawa.)

Givers of vision eye far horizons

FULL OF smiles now she can see is Padma (lotus flower) from South India.



MOBILE eye clinic bus donated by government and people of B.C.

Operation Eyesight Universal, the Canadian-based organization that has given the gift of sight to several hundred thousand destitute people, most of them children, in Asia, Africa and Latin America, is launching a new appeal to help it expand operations.

Local organizer Bish Bhagwanani said in an interview the organization, now represented by more than 30 projects in 11 countries, hopes to expand into Uganda and Equador this year.

IT RECENTLY was awarded a $10,000 grant from the provincial government's foreign aid fund, and hopes for another $25,000 this fall, but relies largely on individual donations which are matched dollar for dollar by the federal government.

Founded in Calgary in 1963 by businessman-turned-international crusader Art Jenkyns after he heard a speech by Canadian medical missionary Dr. Ben Gullison, who served blind destitutes in India for more than 40 years, the organization has grown from a tiny $1,000 a year operation to one with a budget of more than $1 million.

IN 1979, with the help of volunteers and six mobile eye units, the low-overhead operation opened more than 40,000 blind eyes and prevented many, many more thousands from going blind through education programs.

"But there are more than 40 million people in the poorer parts of the world who could receive the gift of sight if those of us who live in wealth and comfort could hear the pleas," said Bhagwanani in a recent interview.

"Can you imagine the joy of a child who sees his mother for the first time?

"THE STORY of OEU is a story of continued miracles. And miracles of sight cost little—$25 pays for surgery on both eyes, 10 days hospitalization and glasses. Here, the same operation costs well over $1,000.

"It is a shame that a person has to live his or her whole life in total darkness just for lack of this small amount."

He said Operation Eyesight is a person-to-person program, with the donors receiving cards giving the names and other details of those whose sight was restored.

THE B.C. government, through its international aid fund, has made major contributions to an eye clinic in the state of Gurjat in India, including equipping and maintaining a mobile van.

Sig Peterson, B.C. deputy minister of agriculture, who visited the project in 1979, said "Operation Eyesight was a great experience for my wife and me. On a personal basis you can count on our continuing support."

HE ADDED he would recommend that the B.C. government assist in the construction of new wards at the hospital.

Tax deductible donations can be sent to Operation Eyesight, Box 123, Calgary, Alberta, T2P 2H6.

Adventists maintain history at Camp Hope Lodge

Camp meeting tradition holds lessons for today

The religious camp meetings of the early 1800s were a strange phenomenon on the U.S. frontier but they produced lasting results of great value.

Today's brick and blacktop megalopoli are such a far cry from a tent-and-wagon camp meeting that they seem to belong in a different world.

BUT FRONTIER camp meetings are so much part of North America that no one can fully understand the United States of today who neglects to study them.

Camp meetings did more to make Americans a people with high moral standards than did almost anything else in the 200 years of the nation's history.

Although historians have tended to treat the camp meetings lightly, a closer look reveals they were institutions which would have great significance in today's world.

MINISTERS OF all denominations flocked in from far and near. Each meeting was kept up night and day. Thousands heard of the event, and came on foot, on horseback, in carriages and wagons. Sometimes as many as 25,000 people attended a single session.

Stands were erected in the woods from which preachers of different churches proclaimed repentance to God and faith in Jesus Christ.

It was not unusual for four to seven preachers to be addressing the listening thousands at the same time from different stands erected for the purpose—a modern-day version of the Old Testament "heavenly fire" spread in almost every direction, it was said by truthful witnessess.

THE CAMPFIRES burned brightly through the midnight hours. The voice of a preacher pierced the mountain air, calling sinners to tremble before God, and come forward in repentance lest "the everlasting fires of hell engulf you forever."

Circuit-riding preachers were constantly in the saddle. They comforted the sorrowful, boldly denounced sin, and brought law and order to the frontier.

Camp meetings did much to establish the United States of America as a predominantly law-abiding church-going Protestant nation.

One begins to see why camp meetings were such exciting occasions, why the people came back year after year. And one begins to see, too, why the lessons taught at camp meetings sank into middle-class America and have persisted so long.

ALTHOUGH THE early fervor and the physical demonstrations of the frontier camp meetings have gone, various church denominations still find delight and a time for physical and spiritual refreshment in an annual drawing apart from the routine of day-by-day work, and join together with family, relatives and other church friends for a week to ten days in the summer months.

One of these denominations is the Seventh-day Adventists, who have a permanent campground complex in the hills near Hope, and the past two weeks the quiet campgrounds have taken on an atmosphere of hectic activity.

A wide range of 15 guest speakers from Canada and the U.S. are conducting the major services for the seniors, youth and children divisions, during the 10-day concourse which started last weekend and finishes Sunday.

THE SPEAKERS' roster includes such notables personalities as H.M.S. Richards Jr., speaker for the Voice of Prophecy religious radio and television program, accompanied by the King Heralds male quartet.

Throughout this week workshops were conducted each afternoon, for leaders and those who work with the children's divisions, called Sabbath School Workshop.

But all is not study and work. There was time for planned and free recreation, and a variety of choirs and musical groups and soloists which added pleasure to each program.

Colourful pagents by returning missionaries in native costumes of the countries where they have been serving, tell of the triumphs and heartaches of gospel work in foreign fields.

THERE WERE two mission families at this camp meeting, the Rainda family from Sopas Adventist Hospital in Papua-New Guinea, and the Moores family from Taiwan.

Throughout the week, campers' temporal needs were well supplied by the camp store, a well-equipped store of vegetarian foodstuffs, fresh and canned, fresh vegetables, fruit and dairy and bakery products.

A fully-stocked bookstore, business office, and an office staff to help the many problems which are always present in caring for a large number of people, and public telephone service were provided.

The Camp Hope Lodge houses more than 200 senior citizens, a modern complex with furnished rooms self-contained with modern conveniences, large spacious lounge rooms, chapel, office and cafeteria which serves a vegetarian menu.

VICTORIA CHURCH communications secretary, Kathleen Piper, said attendance was expected to surpass last year's record of 5,000 on the weekends, with those who are camping on the grounds reaching 3,000.

Two junior and teen-age camps had just finished, and following this general camp, another camp will convene immediately, for blind children of any denominaton. Those wishing information on this camp should call 477-6941.

Church Chronicles

The ninth in the summer series of gospel services in Beacon Hill Park at the Cameron Bandshell Sunday at 7 p.m. will be conducted by Oak Bay United Church, a new entry into the ranks of churches participating in these special services.

The service will be conducted and the gospel message delivered by the associate pastor, Rev. Angus Jack.

Music will be by a mixed choir under church organist Bob Kroeger, and singers in two solos, two duets, and a youth group with guitar accompaniment. A musical prelude will start at 6:45 p.m.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) has set up a fund to help refugees of any religion throughout the world.

Since 1975 the church has helped its members and their families who became refugees from Southeast Asia but says that, with the over-all refugee situation worsening it is extending that service to others, regardless of religious affiliation.

That is the approach of most other church sponsorships and aid to refugees.

The Healey Willan Centennial recital series at Christ Church Cathedral today features Sacred Songs for High Voice and Organ. Norma Selwood will be the soprano. Norman Hurrle on organ will play the Prelude and Fugue in C minor introduction and Passacaglia and Fugue in E-Flat minor. Recitals are given at 4 p.m. each Saturday during July and August.

Iran's leader 'failure in faith'

> Therefore proclaim to all a woeful doom, save those who embrace the true faith and do good works; for theirs is an unfailing recompense.
> —KORAN 84:25.

How would you react if the federal government proclaimed that since the Bible contained no reference to automobiles, this form of transportation would be banned in Canada?

While this sounds absurd, there is a nation today experiencing this kind of religious fanaticism. That nation is Iran under the leadership of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

IRAN IS more than an enigma—a throwback to an earlier age before the rise of modern science, technology and secularism.

Iran is a nation bent on a path of destruction and terror in the name of religion.

Like its sister religions, Judaism and Christianity, Islam is a tradition which emphasizes strict adherence to the will of God. Indeed, the very term Islam means surrender to God.

In Islam, God or Allah is viewed as both compassionate and merciful, a loving deity who created humanity and who steps into human history so that all can know and obey the divine will.

Although the Koran (the scripture for Muslims), contains many references to punishment, the loving nature of Allah is emphasized throughout.

WHAT WE see unfolding in Iran is a perversion of the ethos of historical Islam. Those who do not obey the Shi'ite religious leaders are dismissed as agents of the devil. The call is for all citizens to hand over their freedom to Khomeini, and the consequences of this are already well known.

First, those who were connected with the deposed shah were singled out for justice—Khomeini style. Many military, secret police and political leaders were executed. Socialists and Marxists came under persecution as did liberal democrats.

Religious and nationalist groups whose loyalty to the regime was suspected, along with Baha'is, Kurds and Arabs, have come under incessant attack. The central artifact of the Baha'i faith has been destroyed, although the spirit of the modernist religion lives on.

WHO IS Khomeini and why has he been given such sweeping powers?

To understand the latter question, two factors should be considered: the former shah's regime and the tension between Shi'ite Islam and modern Western thought.

For over a quarter of a century, Iran was ruled by the shah. During this period, the nation received military and technical aid from the U.S.

Iran was propped up by the Americans to stem Soviet expansion. The shah's anti-communist stand was assured, as were Iran's oil supplies to the U.S.

In his desire to modernize Iran, the shah bought billions of dollars worth of U.S. military and technological hardware.

BUT IRAN had very serious problems that became evident as pressures on the shah to step down increased. An orthodox and conservative Muslim society was being forced to adopt Western technology and Western secularism. The shah's government brought reforms to a reluctant people who resisted the breakdown of family ties and social traditions. Cities such as Tehran grew in population at the expense of the villages.

Against the shah's modernization program and his terror stood Marxists, democrats, national groups and, of course, the religious leaders of Iran.

The head of the latter was Khomeini, who had lived in exile for 15 years. When the shah fled, Khomeini returned in triumph as spiritual leader. Immediately he became the driving force behind the new provisional government.

IN HIS zeal to destroy all vestiges of the shah's regime, Khomeini and his colleagues thrust Iran into new crises. Women were ordered to put on the traditinal veil in public. Such decadent pastimes as rock music and hairdressing were banned. Anything seen as contrary to the Koran was condemned and eliminated. With his tacit permission, some 50 hostages were seized and are still being held by Muslim militants.

No nation can turn back the clock to what it believes is a pristine state of innocence. Secularism cannot be challenged by the methods chosen by Khomeini and his followers. Women in Iran will not accept the reintroduction of the custom of purda, the veil worn in public.

Moreover, Islam as a vibrant, living faith cannot be reduced to handmaiden status by orthodox groups seeking radical changes in their society.

RELIGION CAN be one of the most, if not the most, powerful of all human feelings. Perhaps more than any other feeling, religion gives a person absolute meaning. It has provoked astonishing heights in understanding and love and is found in the depths of human experience.

But religion can also be used to provoke less noble actions. When coupled with the forces of nationalism, religion can produce terrifying results as we have witnessed in both Ireland and Lebanon.

When the current revolution in Iran fails it will not be due to the nature of Islam. Rather, it will be due to the perversion of the faith.

The author, Robert Gallagher, is an instructor in the department of religious studies of Capilano College, North Vancouver.

Top-drawer 'Queen Mum' marks 80th birthday

By FRANK MacKEY

LONDON (CP) — Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother fondly called the Queen Mum by her subjects, celebrates her 80th birthday Monday.

That makes her the same age as Britain's Labor party but the tributes paid to her in pictures, speech and print clearly show her as the top drawer.

"It's very difficult to fall in love with committees or policies but the Queen Mother has shown a human face which has called out the loyalty and the sense of belonging without which a nation loses its heart and disintegrates," said the Archbishop of Canterbury, Robert Runcie, at a special service for her July 15.

Her "human face," particularly during the difficult days of the Second World War when she toured bombed areas and attended the sick and wounded with a smile, endeared her to Britons as the woman who was not about to let royal status starch the life, the fun and the easy grace out of her.

"You sure are a great queen picker," an American senator complimented King George VI during a 1939 royal tour of Canada and the United States, about his wife — born Elizabeth Angela Marguerite Bowes-Lyon on Aug. 4, 1900, eighth in a family of nine children.

She and "Bertie," the shy and stammering Duke of York, were married April 26, 1923. The new duchess came down with whooping cough on their honeymoon — "so unromantic" wrote the duke to his mother.

They had no inkling then that 13 years later, by the famous abdication of the duke's older brother, King Edward VIII, to marry American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson, Bertie and Elizabeth would become reluctantly but dutifully king and queen.

Within a few years of that Dec. 11, 1936, abdication, the Queen who played the piano, loved gardening and fishing and who was to develop a royal taste for horse racing, was firing a .303-calibre rifle and .38-calibre revolver in the Buckingham Palace grounds. It was wartime.

She turned down a suggestion that her children, the present Queen Elizabeth, born April 21, 1926, and Princess Margaret, born Aug. 21, 1930, should be sent to safety in Canada until the war ended.

"The children cannot go without me," she said. "And I cannot possibly leave without the king and he would never go."

Equally memorable is her reaction to the enemy bombing of Buckingham Palace, Sept. 13, 1940. "I'm glad we've been bombed," she said. "It makes me feel we can look the East End in the face."

That quote was the headline on a tribute to the Queen Mother by actor-author David Niven printed in the Daily Mirror newspaper last week.

Niven's tribute was only one of scores of articles, books, magazines and newspaper supplements which have been published in her honor.

A favorite of painters and photographers, the Queen Mother is also the subject of an exhibition at the National Portrait Gallery, almost next door to Canada House, containing 149 photographs, 12 paintings and her wedding dress.

Widowed since 1952, the Queen Mother has nevertheless kept up a dizzy round of public appearances.

She spent last week at Sandringham and attended the Kings Lynn Festival, a spokesman at Clarence House, the Queen Mother's London residence, said Thursday.

She will spend her birthday at Clarence House and attend a ballet performance at the Royal Opera House in the evening.

rock

By ISSAC WILLIAMS

Fritz woke up with a start, he had dozed off at his desk again. "Must have been those martinis I had for lunch. I gotta learn to stop at three." He realized his intercom was buzzing.

It was The Boss and he sounded mad. "Fritz, get in here!"

As he crossed the hall to The Boss' plush office Fritz wished — as he usually did at times like this — that he was back selling shoes.

The Boss got straight to the point. (When you spend three weeks out of every month in Hawaii you have to work fast.)

"Fritz, I want some Canadian acts. My informants tell me that Canadian music is hot now, and head office wants some product to market down South. I want you to go out and sign up some of this Canadian talent."

"But Boss, I'm getting a little old to be running around listening to rock groups. Can't you send someone else in the A & R Department . . ." Fritz remembered that he was the last member of the A & R team — cutbacks had claimed the rest.

"What about that group that sounds like The Beatles, ah . . . Klaatu or something. They just finished a new album.

"I admit it is pretty boring music but the title Endangered Species should get the ecology crowd and we could start the Beatles-in-disguise rumors again."

"No Fritz. Klaatu has had it and I want some new bands — but no punk groups, you understand. They are just too messy and radio stations won't touch 'em. Now go!"

Fritz went straight to his favourite bar and told Joe the bartender his problems. Joe, still in his twenties, was young enough to be Fritz's son and he poured a mean martini and he also knew a lot about music.

"Canadian bands? Sure Fritz, we get them in here all the time. Tonight we got one that is just great. Jenson Interceptor, been playing in Alberta for years. Got two girl singers and sound just like Heart and you know how big Heart is. They can play some soft stuff for the evening crowd and then later on really let loose. Why don't you stick around and hear them tonight"

"No," said Fritz, "I got work to do — but tell them if they want to make an album to come out to the studio tomorrow. Any other tips?"

"Well there's one we had last week — a little raunchy though. Call themselves Toronto. They got two girl singers as well and sound like Heart singing Foreigner songs — and you know how big they are, eh? You want me to send them around as well Fritz?"

The next day in the studio, while waiting for Jenson Interceptor and Toronto to show, Fritz was approached by one of the members of the studio band — a group called Straight Lines.

"I hear you are looking for some Canadian music. Well, me and the boys have got a master already made and its great. Sounds just as good as The Doobie Brothers and Toto and you know how good they are!"

That night Fritz went home with a big smile on his face. In a big envelope he had the masters for three hot Canadian Albums, Jenson Interceptor, Looking For Trouble by Toronto, and Straight Lines. Unfortunately he stopped at the bar to celebrate and had one (or five) too many, and when he left he forgot the envelope. Later that night, when he was cleaning up Joe threw the envelope in the garbage . . .

Well, we can dream — can't we?

Movies moving into B.C.

By DEB van der GRACHT

BURNABY (UPC) — An abandoned Tudor-style mansion in Burnaby played host to some interesting guests recently — Capt. James T. Kirk of Star Trek, Dr. Kingsfield of Paper Chase fame and Helen Keller, among them.

Actually, it was William Shatner, John Houseman and Patty Duke-Astin, the actors who made those characters come alive, who wandered through the mansion's rooms for three weeks.

They were in town to shoot the latest of a growing number of movies to be filmed in British Columbia — ABC's made-for-television thriller, The Babysitter.

"It's the story of an 18-year-old girl who shows up at the home of a married couple with a child, offers to babysit and starts to control the family," explains producer David Garcia.

Shatner and Duke-Astin play father and mother to 12-year-old Quinn Cummings, the child actor that made her mark in The Goodbye Girl.

John Houseman, who in his own words plays "a snoopy doctor-friend of Shatner's," discovers the babysitter, played by 23-year-old Stephanie Zimbalist, is psychotic and has already killed another family.

The movie, which took three weeks to shoot at an estimated cost of about $1.8 million (U.S.), will be shown the week, if not the night, of Halloween.

B.C.'s popularity as a location for shooting feature and made-for-TV movies has soared in the last two years, "The Babysitter" is only one of some 25 films being shot in the province this year and expected to put nearly $200 million into the economy.

In the past two years, the province has provided the backdrop for some 364 feature films, television programs and commercials — more than anywhere outside of New York and California.

HOMEGROWN MUSIC SOCIETY will stage a free concert this Monday at Beacon Hill Park's Cameron Bandshell with an entertaining mixture of blues, reggae and bluegrass. The bands will be Uncle Wiggly's Hot Shoes Blues Band, Refugee and the Clams. Music for the society's fourteenth free concert will carry on all afternoon, say organizers. Musicians, clockwise in rehearsal at the bandshell from bottom left, are the Hometown Kid Eugene Evans, Stephanie Hamilton, Matt Vause, Richard King, Wayne Sheridan, Veronica Jones, Tim van Alstine and Desmond Phillips at the piano.

Kate Reid ties up strange new play

By JAMES NELSON

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Kate Reid, Canada's most honored actress, almost single-handedly pulls together a strange play of pathos and wit, John Guare's Bosoms and Neglect, the latest production to open at the 28th Stratford Festival.

It is the double story of a proud, blind old woman afflicted with breast cancer, and her 40-year-old bookworm son Scooper, a man who has had many women in his life but no deep love.

Produced in both New York and Chicago last season, this first Canadian production is directed by Mel Shapiro.

U.S. critics have hailed Guare as a bright new star in American theatre, and though nothing is done to "Canadianize" this production except to use Canadian actors, the show raises a question about the differing tastes of Canadian and U.S. audiences.

Few Canadian audiences, it seems, manage to find enjoyable humor in physical or mental illness to the way U.S. audiences seem to do. This play has been described as a hilarious comedy by its promoters, but Friday night's opening performance in the 1,100-seat Avon Theatre was by no means rocking with laughter.

The story about Henny, played by Reid, is that she has concealed an ulcerous sore in her left breast for two years, and is suffering other ailments — "My bladder fell out," she says. Her son, played by Ray Jewers, insists on calling a doctor, who rushes her to hospital for emergency surgery.

Scene two finds Scooper in the apartment of a fellow-patient of a psychiatrist, an attractive girl who lives in the fantasy of the rare books she collects. They have been going to the same psychiatrist for years for essentially the same reason — to find why it is that neither of them can find a mate.

The scene turns nasty when in a fit of rage, Deirdre, played by Patricia Collins, stabs Scooper. All three, of course, wind up in the same hospital.

The play is oddly constructed, but Gare brings all the threads together in the hospital when Scooper finally begins to break down his mother's reluctance to talk about herself. The dramatic twist, however, comes only after Scooper has left the blind old woman's room.

Reid, who has been playing leading roles in Stratford Festivals off and on since 1959, has won award nominations for her work on Broadway and in U.S. films, as well as numerous awards in Canada, including membership in the Order of Canada.

Her depiction of the old woman hiding behind the curtains of her apartment, pinning her money to them with an assortment of clips so she'll know their worth by feel, is dead on.

In her hospital bed, she scowls or smiles like an angel to make her points as a demanding patient. Her eyes dart about, but in that unseeing fashion characteristic of the blind. And her dramatic timing with Guare's script is superb.

Jewers is in his first season here but has been a member of the National Arts Centre theatre company for three seasons, after playing in British and Canadian television. He plays Scooper with some of the marks of an overgrown lout given to cringing against the wall, or tucking his feet up in a chair, trying to hide himself from the realities of the world.

Miss Collins returns to the festival for the first time since 1974.

She is a slim, pert little Dierdre, dressed in business-like black as a book seller — but concealing a slit-to-the-waist sexy black underslip, which Scooper discovers in their first encounter.

Guare's script is modern, with a few four-letter Anglo-Saxonisms sprinkled through it quite naturally, and a proclivity for having two people on stage talking along quite different lines of thought, showing how their separate minds work, but not really connecting in conversation.

Some of the lines hardly come natural." How many people now actually say "Eight years, and all gone for naught?"

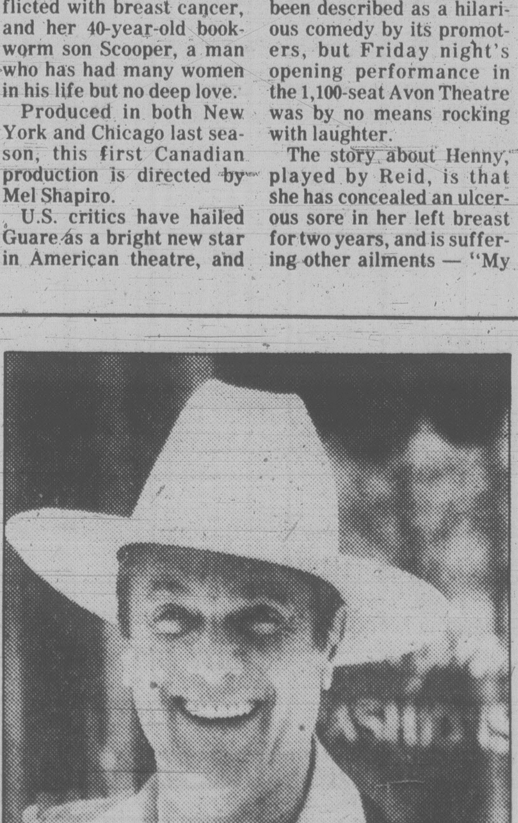
Actor Tony Curtis, like film star Greta Garbo in another era, "vants to be alone." Curtis, split from his third wife, is living a reclusive life. "I am completely alone," he said. I don't even have any help living in. If you can't face being alone, you wind up drunk or a drug addict and pretty sick. And still alone, thinking of suicide. I used to drink. I took drugs. Then I pulled myself back."

Playboy has a team of photographers in Toronto taking skin shots of model Mandy Hallson to accompany an article on Canada's film industry. Hallson, 18, will be making her screen debut in Your Ticket Is No Longer Valid, shot last year in Montreal starring Richard Harris, Jeanne Moreau and George Peppard.

The life of surrealist artist Salvador Dali, 76, seems as bizarre as his paintings. He is suffering from acute paranoia and sometimes crawls on the floor saying "I am a snail," some of his friends confirmed in northeast Spain. But his wife Gala, 89, said rumors are being spread about Dali because of "jealousy and stupidity."

Guitarist Liona Boyd is coy about her weekend aboard the Mediterranean yacht of billionaire sheik Adnan Kahashoggi. The Toronto musician was flown from Toronto to perform at a weekend birthday bash for a friend of the Saudi Arabian. But Miss Boyd, a favorite of prime minister Pierre Trudeau, conceded the week-end was "exotic," adding "the yacht is huge, it's beautiful; like a James Bond set — everything's run electronically.



Curtis . . . a star in solitude

Toronto scriptwriter Richard Alan Simmons has an idea he hopes will pull the NBC-TV network out of the bottom drawer of the Nielsen ratings. Simmons has proposed filming 100 hours called Gangster Chronicles which NBC has snapped up. Simmons said the project is "the story of organized crime and how it came to America, and it's also the story of the very personal lives of families."

ABC has signed veteran political correspondent Robert Trout to team with the network's Bob Walker in coverage of the Democratic National Convention beginning Aug. 11 in New York ... Francis Ford Coppola's next film, One From the Heart, will co-star Frederoc Forrest, Teri Garr and Raul Julia ... Carol Lynley will be in Toronto next week filming a production titled Speak of the Devil ... Goldie Hawn is co-starring again with Chevy Chase, this time in Neil Simon's Seems Like Old Times.

New Belfry outlook, director: a blend of moods

By AUDREY JOHNSON

James Roy cannot be described as settled in Victoria yet — his furniture and effects are still en route from Ontario. But he has already observed the local arts scene and likes what he sees.

"People back east told me, 'there's not much to do in Victoria' but I find them quite wrong."

"On the contrary" he says, "with two professional theatres and several non-professional; the university, Camosun college, symphony, festivals, opera, dance ... it's a busy scene."

The new young artistic director of The Belfry Theatre took over offically on Friday. But he has already done a good deal more than observe the situation.

Between a former visit early in the summer and his arrival a week ago he has defined a policy and set up Belfry's 1980-81 season, keeping it in character with what former artistic director Don Shipley had established during his tenure. That is, a blend of moods, some emphasis on Canadian work, one Broadway highlight and one musical revue show.

In detail the four productions are:

— I'll Be Back Before Midnight, a thriller by Canadian playwright Peter Colley (Oct. 2)

— Ever Loving, by Margaret Hollingsworth, a brand-new comedy-drama by the Vancouver writer (Nov.13)

— On Golden Pond, a bittersweet comedy that was a Broadway hit of last season (Jan. 22)

— A musical revue which has the working title, Gershwin, and which is based on the composer's music in general. Its production dates are early spring.

Of the thriller, which has been successfully produced in the east, Roy says that he considers it "more suspenseful" than Deathtrap, much as he enjoys that play. The Gershwin musical is to be done in a co-production situation with Western Canada Theatre of Kamloops. The two professional companies will share costs and have equal input in creation and production. It will preview in Kamlmops before moving to Victoria.

Roy is looking forward to tying Belfry into the general art activities of Greater Victoria.

"That will be my main area of pursuit for the next few years," he says. "There are for example a lot of good writers living here; it's great for a theatre to be able to work directly with writers.

"I'd like to do a musical with emphasis on dance, working possibly with Constantine Darling (Spectrum Dance Theatre's artistic director and choreographer.)"

Roy contemplates the idea of co-operating with University of Victoria and Camosun College theatre departments. Carl Hare has already come up with an idea that interests him.

James Roy . . . he finds that the critics were wrong

Concerning the Belfry, a one-time church at the corner of Gladstone and Fernwood, Roy calls it an exciting space that will be challenging to work in.

Installation of seats recently acquired from the demolished Capitol Theatre may lead to expansion, at least by 40 to 60 seats, he says. They will be installed in time for the fall opening.

Like many true-blue theatre people, James Roy is more than willing to settle for a space that has dramatic possibilities and an atmosphere of intimacy even if he has to cope with fairly serious problems. Like the backstage space at the Belfry. There really isn't any.

"One dressing room, and by placing the set a little forward we get a minimal cross-over; that's it."

But it doesn't phase him. He points out that the Belfry has coped with notable success in the past — many thanks to the ingenuity of designers and crew — and there is no reason why it can't continue to do so.

Those who saw the fine professional sets for Private Lives, Da, Spoke Song, for example, would agree with him.

Roy is a quietly confident person whose accomplishments up to this time, properly contribute to an assurance that is however, devoid of conceit.

Interest in theatre for this western Ontarian began with The Glass Menagerie, seen as a Grade 9 student. It was his first 'live' play and it made him an overnight theatre buff.

He followed up by participating in high school productions, studied design and directing at York University and achieved an Honors B.A.

A season spent in England working with the Duke's Playhouse company in Lancaster, introduced him to British theatrical tradition which in turn provided a perspective on what was happening in Canada.

Returning to Toronto Roy worked with Paul Thompson and Theatre Passe Muraille for a productive period before starting his own theatre in Blyth, Ont. That was in 1975.

Blyth was a tiny little town, population 900. But it had a real theatre that would accommodate slightly more than half that population.

Some people considered it a foolish venture but Roy went ahead with his plan, instituting a policy of quality plays and new material. The Blyth Festival took root and grew out of Roy's initial venture.

In 1979 20,000 people came to see the plays in a theatre that had been expanded and improved. "It has certainly made a great difference to the town in many ways," says Roy.

All over Canada theatre has moved rapidly ahead since it got going in the late '60s, he comments.

"At the present time there are about 160 professional theatres across the country. Something between 500 and 1,000 people are making a living in the theatre; not a good living but a tolerable one."

Roy is not only a dedicated theatre man; he has a clear philosophy concerning the theatre and is also a pragmatist.

"I don't believe theatre should exist in any ivory tower," he says. "It must never look down on its audience for the audience is the one reason for its existence.

"And when you speak of the audience you are also speaking of the community. It's really a two-way street. The community offers the theatre all kinds of experience — resource material — which the theatre uses and returns in the form of entertainment, exploration, insight. The interplay involves the schools in a very important way when theatre is brought to the schools and school classes attend the theatre."

James Roy is settling in Victoria with his wife.

"She writes plays," he tells you, "under her maiden name, Anne Chislett. She had one produced at this year's Kawartha Festival.

"We take it in turn to support each other. Last year she was supporting me. Now it's my turn to support her while she settles down to some solid writing."

Asked about directors for the coming season, Roy says that he plans to direct the first three plays himself. "About the musical, I'm not sure yet. I'd like to bring Don Shipley back to do that if possible."

There will also be some incoming shows but these are yet to be decided he says.

Bastion drops class, sprouts wings

audrey johnson

A change has taken place in the announced Bastion Theatre season. Instead of the January-February production of The Ruling Class, artistic director Ed Stephenson has procured Arthur Kopit's play, Wings for the theatre's 10th anniversary season.

Wings will star actress Ann Casson who was previously seen in Bastion's production of The Shadow Box. She is a member of a celebrated English theatrical family, being the daughter of Dame Sybil Thorndike and Sir Lewis Casson. She has appeared in leading roles with major companies on both sides of the Atlantic.

Kopit's play is a look into the world of a woman who has experiencjed a stroke and for whom language and thought have lost all meaning. Wings is the story of her triumphant struggle back. The New York Times called the play "a voyage of illumination."

In Edmonton's Northern Light Theatre production last winter, Casson was described as "simply magnificent" by CBC Stereo Morning. It is this production which will appear in the Bastion season as part of a nation-wide tour.

Two accomplished musicians who have been members of the Victoria Symphony's professional core for several seasons are leaving this summer for new positions with the Calgary Philharmonic.

They are Susan and Scott Eddlemon. Susan has been assistant concert master of the Victoria Symphony and goes to Calgary as associate concert master, a position she says will include assigned duties and responsibilities which make the job more satisfactory.

Scott will take up a similar position to the one he held here as principal timpany and percussion.

The pay is, of course, better but Susan leaves the impression that this was not a paramount consideration.

"We like Victoria and would really like to have stayed here," she says.

Recently the young violinist completed her doctoral thesis with the New York Juilliard School.

Desbarats faces axe

TORONTO (CP) — The Global Television Network has decided not to renew the contract of Ottawa bureau chief Peter Desbarats when it expires at the end of the month.

Bruce Garvey, executive editor of Global, said Desbarats "lent himself more to a commentary role and we want a harder news approach."

Desbarats, the author of several books, has been with the network since it went on the air in January, 1974.

Garvey also said general reporter Valerie Chavossy will leave the network Aug. 31.

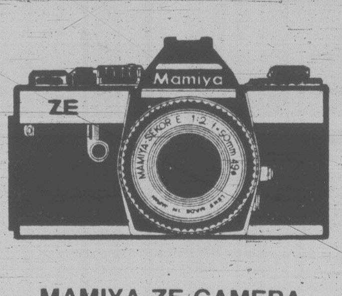
WIN A summerfunthing

Play it daily and be eligible to win weekly prizes. It's easy and it's fun — just follow the instructions below . . .

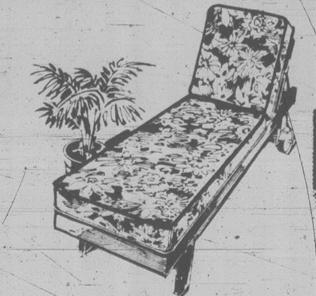
THIS WEEK'S PRIZES

1st



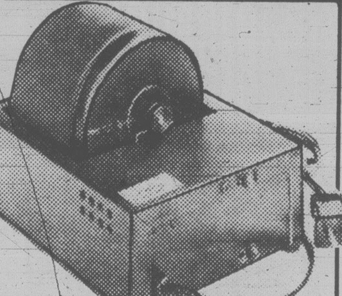
MAMIYA ZE CAMERA, LENS, AND CASE

2nd



REDWOOD GARDEN LOUNGE

3rd



NOISELESS ROCK TUMBLER AND ACCESSORIES
(2 to be won)

HOW TO PLAY

Locked inside the "SUMMERFUNTHING" safe are many valuable prizes. Some of those prizes could be yours if you find the correct PASSWORD that opens the combination lock. It's an exciting game that's fun and easy to enter. The instructions on the dial give you the position of the letters in the "SUMMERFUNTHING" PASSWORD. All you have to do is find the first letter to start. For instance, suppose you started at the letter E and the instructions read 2nd LETTER-FOUR COUNTER CLOCKWISE. Count four spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter E and you arrive at the letter A. The next instruction reads 3rd LETTER-EIGHT COUNTER CLOCKWISE, so count off eight spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter A and you arrive at the letter S. Finally the 4th letter. SIX CLOCKWISE means you count in a clockwise direction from the letter S and you arrive at the letter Y. In this example the PASSWORD is the word E-A-S-Y. To give you another clue and to add to the interest, each day's password is scrambled and you will find it at the bottom of the illustration.

GAME RULES

1. Winners will be chosen by random drawing from all valid entries. All winners must answer a skill testing question.
2. Winners from the previous week will be published in the Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist.
3. It is not necessary for contestants to buy the Colonist or Times to enter the SUMMERFUNTHING contest. An exact drawing of the entry form printed in the Colonist or Times may be made on a plain piece of paper. Note: copies produced by any other process will not be accepted.
4. The SUMMERFUNTHING judges will have the final decision on any interpretation of Game rules.
5. As a condition of receiving prizes, recipients agree to allow publication of their names and pictures in the Colonist or Times for no additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all rules. No prize substitutions.
6. The contest is open to all readers of the Daily Colonist and Victoria Times on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands. Employees of Victoria Press and their immediate families are not eligible to enter.
7. In fairness to all, the Colonist or Times cannot answer questions or respond to phone calls or letters regarding THE SUMMERFUNTHING CONTEST.
8. All winners will be determined by a random draw from all valid entries.

HOW TO ENTER

Complete the puzzle and fill in the "PASSWORD" on the entry form. Clip out the entry form and send it to us in an envelope with the puzzle number printed in the top left hand corner of the envelope. (As illustrated.)

Be sure to include your name, address and phone number on the entry form.

Enter as many times as you wish but make sure each entry is in a separate envelope.

Mail your entries to:

Victoria Press
2621 Douglas St.
Monday through Friday
8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

A new puzzle will appear each day, but the weekly winners will be selected from all entries submitted for the previous week's puzzles.

To be eligible, your entry must be received by 5:30 p.m. on the Thursday following the week the puzzle was published.
Enter daily, or as often as you wish, but be sure each entry is submitted in a separate envelope.

Canada officially protests Israeli Jerusalem decision

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has formally protested the Israeli decision to officially make Jerusalem, including the occupied Arab section, Israel's capital.

External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan said in a statement Friday the law passed by the Israeli Knesset this week is "unhelpful to the peace process, particularly at a time when efforts are being made to achieve an agreement on interim autonomy measures for the Palestinians."

Meanwhile, an Arab League spokesman here said the nine Arab ambassadors in Ottawa "deeply regret" Canada's vote in the United Nations this week against a resolution calling for Israel to withdraw from all occupied territories by Nov. 15.

He said the Arab ambassadors stated they consider Canada's stand "is unlikely to contribute to the strengthening of Arab-Canada relations, nor does it help in finding a just, durable and comprehensive solution to the Middle East conflict."

The Arab statement was the sharpest since last summer's uproar over the Conservative government's plan to move the Canadian Embassy in Israel to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv. The government later reversed that plan.

The demand for Israeli withdrawal was approved by the UN General Assembly. But Canadian Ambassador Michel Dupuy said the resolution was not balanced.

"It nowhere acknowledges the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the states of the area," he said. "It prejudges the outcome of negotiations."

On the Knesset decision to make Jerusalem Israel's capital, MacGuigan said "Canada does not recognize the validity of Israel's annexation of East Jerusalem," the city's Arab sector.

"We believe that the issue of Jerusalem, one of the most sensitive in the Arab-Israeli dispute, must be settled by negotiation in the context of an over-all peace settlement," he said.

"It cannot be decided by unilateral actions. Canada will maintain its present policy and practices regarding East Jerusalem, including the avoidance of official contacts with the Israeli authorities there."

Israel occupied Arab-held East Jerusalem during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Arab countries do not recognize Israeli occupation of Jerusalem, a holy city for Moslems, Jews and Christians.

A THREE-WAY TIE AT U.S. CHAMPIONSHIP

Californians Walter Browne of Berkeley and Larry Christiansen of Modesto and Larry Evans of Reno scored 7½ points each out of 12 to tie for the U.S. Title in two matches played at Thiel College, Greenville, Pa.

The event started on June 11 and finished on June 29.

The tournament attracted fans from all over the United States who wanted to see the sharp new generation of players in action.

Yasser Seirawan of Seattle, Junior Champion of the World, lost a heartbreaker in the final round against Vitaly Zaltsman of New York. This cost him a tie for first place.

Grandmaster Christiansen led most of the way, but ran into an unexpected defeat at the hands of "Big Joe" Bradford of Austin, Texas, the lowest-rated player in the event but a man who surprised everyone by scalping a number of the favorites.

Larry Evans, though absent from the national scene for a number of years, made a splendid comeback. Experience does count!

Walter Browne, a fierce battler, showed fine stamina after losing in the third round against Christiansen.

The team for the Chess Olympics in Malta, later on this year, will be chosen from the top placed participants. Here are the rest of the rankings. Seven points: Seirawan, Leonid Shamkovich. Six points: Anatoly Lein, Vitaly Zaltsman. Five points: Pal Benko, Peter Biyasas, Jow Bradford, Robert Tyrne and John Peters. Four and a half points: Arthur Bisguier.

One of the disappointments in this tournament came about because of an injury. Promising Mark Diesen of Silver Springs, Md., fell and suffered dental damage that forced his retirement from the field early in the contest.

Here's a game between winners:

What is the Memorial Society of B.C.?
The Memorial Society of B.C. is a group of people of all ages and from all walks of life who have joined together to assure dignity, simplicity and economy in their funeral arrangements through advance planning.

What are the objectives of the Memorial Society of B.C.?
The objectives of the Society are to:
- promote simple, dignified funeral rites,
- assist members in pre-planning the kind of funeral rites they prefer, through contracts the Society holds with specific undertakers,
- provide members with simple services at pre-determined low cost.

How does the Memorial Society of B.C. work for you?
Upon joining, members are given Designation Forms to record their wishes. These are filed with a Society undertaker.
There are no restrictions. You may choose cremation or burial, as well as the type and location of service.

On joining the Memorial Society of B.C. you will receive:
- Membership Card showing the undertaker to call when bereavement occurs.
- Designation Form to record your wishes.

Squid dumpers jailed

CANSO, N.S. (CP) — Police arrested 48 fishermen and their union's local organizer Friday after the fishermen dumped tons of squid on the highway to protest low prices from local processors.

Those arrested were taken to the jail at Guysborough and fined $28 each for refusing to obey police orders to clear the fish off the road.

Ron Stockton, local organizer for the Maritime Fishermen's Union, said in an interview the men were warned by police about mid-day that they would be arrested if they failed to clear the mess, but nothing was done.

Police arrived in the afternoon with cars and a van and carted the men off to jail. It was the second such squid dumping incident in a week.

The fishermen have been involved in a dispute over prices with Canso Seafoods Ltd.

A grubby family

BLOOD RELATIONS: The Rise and Fall of the du Ponts of Delaware, by Leonard Mosley. McClelland and Stewart. $21.95.

The most significant thing about Blood Relations is that it does not include a bibliography, and the astonishing reason is that although the du Pont family has, since the 1920s, been the world's wealthiest clan (richer than the Rockefellers, the Mellons or the Guggenheims) no one has ever written a book about them. And the reason for that is because all attempts have been foiled by a conspiracy of silence.

Leonard Mosley has never flinched from a challenge, whether it was as a war correspondent parachuting into Normandy on D-Day with the first attack wave, or as a biographer ferretting out information about secretive people like Emperor Hirohito, Charles Lindbergh, and John Foster Dulles, so a little matter like a du Pont obsession would never deter him. On the contrary, it clearly acted as a spur, and I am happy to report that his labors have resulted in an engrossing family saga which, in the circumstances, is far more than anyone could have dared to expect.

The story opens with the arrival in the United States from France in 1800 of Pierre Samuel du Pont, his second wife, his two sons and their wives and, most important of all, some cousins. To succeed in a new country it is useful to have capital and at least one influential friend, and the elder du Pont possessed both. In short order the family settled in Delaware and began manufacturing gunpowder, and within a year the new company became the official supplier of gunpowder to the U.S. Army and Navy, thanks to instructions issued by the influential friend — none other than President Jefferson!

The firm prospered, expanded its operations and was nicely balanced to take full advantage of the opportunity offered by the Civil War, during which it supported Lincoln and the North. After that war, the du Ponts persuaded all rival firms to enter into a price-fixing agreement and to divide the country into commercial territories. In this gunpowder plot all were equal but the du Ponts were more equal than the others, and over the years all rivals were either bankrupted or absorbed until the du Ponts enjoyed the monopoly they always intended to have.

Du Pont gunpowder played a major role in practically every war fought anywhere in the world. Business was business and the firm would sometimes supply opposing sides with fine impartiality — as it did in the Crimean War. But it was the First World War that brought the du Ponts riches beyond their wildest dreams by allowing them to produce and sell more gunpowder every day than had been manufactured and sold during the whole of the Civil War. By 1918, the company's trade with the Allies brought in $3 million daily, and profits topped $100 million a year.

The war made multi-millionaires of all members of the family, whether they worked or not, and the then head of the firm, another Pierre Samuel du Pont (referred to throughout the book as PS) was personally $55 million richer than he had been in 1913.

At this time a triumvirate of cousins controlled the firm (with PS as leader) and one of them, Coleman du Pont, dreamed of forming a global explosives combine consisting of Nobel in France, Nobel (later Imperial Chemical Industries) in England, and I. G. Farben and Krupps in Germany. The idea was to control the world market. Coleman saw himself as head of the combine, allowing kings and presidents to wage war only with his permission. How power corrupts!

The dream, like the dreamer, never got anywhere because PS eased his cousins out and replaced them with his two young brothers, who always deferred to him. They, like the rest of his immediate family, were totally beholden to him, and by squirrelling away their combined fortunes in a holding company that controlled 52 per cent of all du Pont shares he made himself undisputed dictator of the by now multifaceted du Pont empire which included, among other enterprises, General Motors.

It is difficult not to focus on money when dealing with the du Ponts, for the two are indivisible, but, fortunately, Leonard Mosley is more interested in people than balance sheets and he has managed to portray this filthy rich clan as human beings, many of them wart-encrusted. Because the clan is so large and each generation confusingly names its offspring after fathers, mothers, uncles and aunts, the result is rather akin to a Russian novel.

Right from the start the du Ponts realized that the family was both its responsibility and its strength: the company looked after everyone, but each family unit was expected to produce sons for the business. And to ensure tight family control, du Ponts were expected to marry cousins. In addition, each family was allocated a lavish company house (from which it could be evicted at will). And as all income was derived from shares in the company, the company's interest was paramount, and no one rocked the boat by divulging anything to anyone outside the family.

By 1916, PS had extended control to the entire state of Delaware. The company owned the newspapers, collected the tolls along the turnpikes, operated what schools existed, and manipulated state and local governments. It also had a member of the family in the U.S. Senate and made sure that Delaware's congressmen voted as the family wished. It goes without saying that the company's control of the state's courts was virtually absolute. It was a blatant example of feudalism.

Mosley makes clear that despite being the richest family group in the world, the du Ponts were incredibly provincial and hardly stirred outside Delaware. It is not surprising really, for in Delaware their money bought everyone and scandal could so easily be hushed up. And there was plenty to hush up over the years, everything from insanity, cruelty, malevolence, even murder, to womanizing (showgirls were rented in bulk!) and shady financial deals.

This unpleasant family was able to get away with anything: in the few areas where outright bribes didn't work the fixing was carried out by the Bishop of Delaware — himself a du Pont!

The leading character in Mosley's book is PS, the shy, introverted genius who guided the firm's destiny through the period encompassing both world wars, and who built up the chemical side of the business which was responsible for the discovery of scores of new products, including nylon. And what a horror he was! Not the least of his sins was keeping an adoring cousin waiting 23 years before he married her, then refusing to consummate the union and at the same time tormenting her with his ardent devotion to his young male chauffeur.

Du Pont did very nicely out of the Second World War. Profits — not earnings, profits — amounted to $876 million, of which family stockholders received $288 million in dividends. PS would have been worth $450 million at his death in 1954 if he hadn't previously distributed his fortune among brothers, nephews and nieces to avoid estate taxes.

Fate has decreed that those who worship gold be denied real happiness and, by and large, the du Ponts, like Croesus of old, were an unhappy and unfulfilled lot. And PS must have been the unhappiest of them all, for before he died the du Pont empire was broken up by anti-trust legislation; it was found that there were no longer any du Ponts capable of heading the firm; and, worst of all, PS, for all his wealth, did not possess, and never had possessed, a single friend in whom he could confide.

Blood Relations is Leonard Mosley at his best. Apart from gaining access to all of the du Pont letters and papers never before made available to any outsider, he has employed his considerable skill as a journalist and researcher to piece together the dramatic story of this astonishing family.

There are still as many du Ponts in Delaware as ever, and they are still as rich, but their separation from the family enterprise has diminished their influence, power and importance. The secretive family didn't realize that its sole interest to the world at large was in its history, and they should be grateful to Mosley — who had to wrench it out of them — for telling it so incisively and well. And it didn't cost them a cent!

Science fiction

Pohl proves mastery again

By JULIAN REID

TALES OF PIRX THE PILOT, by Stanislaw Lem. Academic Press. $11.75.

THE VERY SLOW TIME MACHINE, by Ian Watson. Clarke, Irwin. $14.95.

TRANSFIGURATIONS, by Michael Bishop. Academic Press. $14.25.

THE MERMAN'S CHILDREN, by Poul anderson. Academic Press. $15.95.

BEYOND THE BLUE EVENT HORIZON, by Frederik Pohl. Random House. $12.50.

Stanislaw Lem of Poland is unquestionably one of the world's foremost living science-fiction writers. So the first English-language publication of one of his books is a noteworthy event — even when the original dates back to the 1960s, and even then ranked among his lesser works.

Competently translated by Louis Iribane, Tales of Pirx the Pilot gives us the author of Solaris, The Cyberiad and The Futurological Congress in a relatively unambitious and undemanding mood. These five incidents in the career of Star-Pilot Pirx (a sixth and later episode, "The Hunt," was included in Lem's brilliant 1977 collection, Mortal Engines) have an old-fashioned air about them — perhaps because their echnology has an endearingly dated feel, much like that of American space-adventures from the 1940s and 1950s. But never mind: they are no less entertaining for that.

Superficially at least, protagonist Pirx is a kind of Hornblower of the spaceways — not unlike Malcolm Jameson's Bullard of the Space Patrol or A. Bertram Chandler's rum-running Captain Grimes, but somewhat more awkward and more self-consciously introspective. The stories in which he is cast are mostly well-handled but unexceptional problem-pieces, tinctured with a distinctive note of philosophical irony.

Falling somewhere midway between The Invincible and The Star Diaries in the Lem canon, all five are good reading, but only the concluding novella, "Terminus," is really outstanding. This richly-evocative mood piece is that rare thing — a legitimately rationalized science-fictional ghost story. It alone is worth the price of the book.

Lem has few rivals in the genre when it comes to intellectual and conceptual brilliance — but among those few is Britain's Ian Watson, author of such impressive but ultimately unsatisfactory assays into speculative metaphysics as The Embedding, The Jonah Kit, The Martian Inca and Miracle Visitors. Like Lem's book, however, Watson's first collection of short stories, The Very Slow Time Machine, does less than full justice to his natural bent and talents.

Of the 13 stories included here, only four — "Immune Dreams," "A Time-Span to Conjure With," "The Event Horizon," and the delectably-titled "On Cooking the First Hero in Spring" — reflect the deep-reaching metaphysical preoccupations of his novels, and none of these is unambiguously successful. Most of the remaining pieces are self-consciously clever, self-indulgently bleak and rather hysterically overwrought — though one, "Thy Blood Like Milk," transcends its flaws to emerge as a powerfully disturbing sadistic-erotic vision, very much in the vein of Harlan Ellison.

Best of the lot is the splendid title novelette, a striking blend of time-travel and messianic theology which is probably Watson's finest work to date. But the collection as a whole is decidedly disappointing, considering the promise shown in the pages of his novels.

Michael Bishop is a young American writer perhaps even more gifted than Watson, to whom his new novel, Transfigurations, is admiringly dedicated. He is also, as his earlier books demonstrate, a good deal more accomplished as a literary artist — which makes his latest effort even more of a disappointment.

Transfigurations is a sequel to Bishop's brilliant 1973 novella, "Death and Designation Among the Asadi," which is incorporated bodily into it and takes up most of its first quarter. But after that fine start it's downhill all the way.

The original novella, ostensibly the edited field-report of a lone anthropologist studying an unsettlingly human-yet-inhuman race, remains splendidly disturbing, thanks to its oblique presentation and its air of ominously unresolved mystery. The new chapters, by contrast, are mainly devoted to explaining that mystery away — and in a manner more ingenious than convincing.

The overall result is an acceptable but rather pointless other-worldly adventure, which holds the reader's attention loosely but never manages to grip it. It is hardly worthy of the author of A Little Knowledge or Catacomb Years.

POHL . . . sequel to Gateway

Equally disappointing, though in a somewhat different way, is Poul Anderson's ambitious attempt at epic fantasy, The Merman's Children. Here the conception is splendid: in the turbulent closing years of the 13th century, a family of merfolk — the last of the soul-less but well-nigh-immortal denizens of Faerie, who have been exorcised from our world by the intolerant zealotry of the spreading Christian faith — quit the now-inhospitable shores of Denmark in search of a new home. But alas, the treatment of this inherently powerful theme is generally limp and lifeless, with even the scenes of fighting decidedly half-hearted and perfunctory — hardly what one would expect in a Poul Anderson tale. The result is less a developed novel than a flat, unrealized sketch, uninvolving, unrewarding and thoroughly unmemorable.

It is a relief to turn from such letdowns to Frederik Pohl's Beyond the Blue Event Horizon, a resoundingly successful sequel to the same author's brilliant Gateway. To be sure, this new novel isn't quite the equal of its predecessor, which handily and deservedly wrapped up the genre's coveted "triple crown": the Hugo, Nebula and John W. Campbell Memorial Awards for the best SF novel of 1977. The difference, however, is purely a matter of superlatives: Gateway still stands in a class by itself, as one of the finest SF novels ever, whereas its sequal is merely absolutely and unstintingly first-rate.

A technical tour de force, Gateway achieved a remarkable blend of emotional and imaginative intensity by fusing the mechanistic motifs of hardcore SF with the introspective probings of Freudian psychoanalysis. Its sequel, by contrast, sacrifices emotive intensity for imaginative expansiveness.

Once more we make the acquaintance of Robinette Broadhead and his psychiatric computer-program, Sigfrid von Shrink: but this time they are only two of a half-dozen major protagonists, all caught up together in a complex and endlessly inventive plot which builds at last to a truly staggering climactic revelation. (This revelation, incidentally, leaves the doors open for yet another sequel. One can only hope that Pohl will be prompt in providing it!)

The only serious flaw in Beyond the Blue Event Horizon is its ridiculous title. Apart from that, this book is a splendid embodjment of the conceptual and imaginative richness which distinguish the best science-fiction from all other species of contemporary literature. It serves to consolidate Pohl's already well-established position alongside Lem, Ursula K. LeGuin and a select little handful of others as one of the reigning masters of this predictably unpredictable genre.

Those silent men have tales to tell

By WALTER KELLYTHORNE

CHINA MEN, by Maxine Hong Kingston. Random House. $13.95.

"In 1903 my father was born in San Francisco, where my grandmother had come disguised as a man. Or, Chinese women once magical, she gave birth at a distance . . . Or the men of those days had the power to have babies . . . my father nevertheless turned up in San Francisco an American citizen.

"He was also married at a distance. My mother and a few farm women went out into the chicken yard, and said words over . . . a fierce rooster, red of comb and feathers, then she went back inside, married, a wife. She laughs telling this wedding story; he doesn't say one way or the other."

Nor, it seems, does he say much about anything else. Nor, really, do the other men — grandfathers and uncles — of her family that Maxine Hong Kingston encounters. But then, perhaps they do — in their own ways, in their own times.

Memoir, biography, fantasy, fiction?

Kingston's father, mocked by his wife as a "piece of liver", "poet", "scholar' was apparently cheated out of his prosperous New York laundry by his partners (we see him, before his fall, dancing in a brand new suit down some glittering big-city street; we also see him being poked by a "demon" doctor in an immigration shed; and we see him hiding in a crate in some freighter's hold. Apparently.). Her great-grand father of the Sandalwood Mountains, Bak Goong, made a dollar a day planting and cutting sugar cane in Hawaii.

A dollar a day if he was lucky, that is. The men's pay was docked for any number of petty reasons, but the one that irritated Bak Goong the most was the ban on talking.

So Bak Goong, a talkative man, developed a series of coughs to cover his expressions of contempt for the overseer who rule his life in the fields.

It was Ah Goong, Kingston's Sierra Navada great-grandfather, who perhaps understood best both the nature of the new land he was in and the connection it shared with his homeland — and with any other land.

As in British Columbia, it was the Chinese who made the railroad across the American mountains:

"After tunnelling into granite for about three years, Ah Goong understood the immovability of the earth. Men change, men die, weather changes, but a mountain is the same as permanence and time."

Uncle Bun understood only that the American authorities were saving all the garbage they collected; one day they we going to capture him and feed him all the garbage. Why?

"Because of my talk about communism."

Uncle Bun returned eventually to China — the new one.

But the old China is here, in this book: the land of Tang Ao, captured as he comes into the Land of Women; the land of the Ghostmate and her traps for the young man far from home; the land of Tu Tzu-chun, who overcame everything but love; and the land of Lo Bun Sun the shipwrecked sailor whose life on a deserted island parallels that of one of our own mythological men.

"You fix yourself in the present," Kingston addresses her father, "but I want to hear the stories about the rest of your life . . ."

Whether any parent can ever tell their child about "the rest" of their life is a moot point; what we have are tales. And wonderful tales they are, fit for retelling to any child who will listen.

The birds of Alaska

By HAROLD HOSFORD

THE ALASKAN BIRD SKETCHES OF OLAUS MURIE, compiled and edited by Margaret Murie. Alaska Northwest Publishing Company. $14.50.

Olaus Murie died in 1963. With his passing, North America lost one of its most respected voices of conservation. But our loss was not total; Murie left a legacy in writing that will contribute to our understanding of the land and how we influence its well-being long after the man himself has become but a dim memory. One of the elements of this legacy is a book — The Alaskan Bird Sketches of Olaus Murie — compiled and edited posthumously by Murie's widow, Margaret.

Alaskan Bird Sketches is a selection of Murie's field sketches and paintings, accompanied by excerpts from his field notes, of the birds that were so much a part of his life in Alaska. While many of these pictures lack the finish of some of our better-known bird artists, there is an attractive spontaneity to them that stimulates the imagination and conjures up pictures of the misty islands of the north and the vast deltas of the rivers of Alaska — the scenes of much of Murie's work.

Olaus Murie may be a voice from another era, but books such as The Alaskan Bird Sketches will do much to rekindle interest in this man who spoke for wilderness when such spokesmen were rare.

CUPW boosts Parrot salary

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal workers gave their union leader Jean-Claude Parrot a $3,000 salary increase Friday, a day after denying him a $5,000 raise at their national convention.

The move was part of a package of policies presented by the executive of the 23,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers as a compromise to end growing splits among the 283 delegates that jeopardized the success of the convention and the unity of the members in the union's four regions.

The increase, amounting to a 9.3-per-cent raise instead of the 17.6-per-cent raise rejected Thursday, brings Parrot's annual salary to $33,120.37. On top of that he'll get the same increase mail dispatchers get during the next three years under the union's future contracts with the government.

The splits among delegations from the four regions reached a peak late Thursday night when the Quebec members walked out in a protest, throwing the convention into disarray and forcing a nearly all-night executive meeting where the compromise policies were worked out.

Most of them were adopted despite bitter accusations from a minority of delegates that democracy in the union had been destroyed and that Quebec members were allowed to bully the executive and blackmail members from other regions into endorsing policies they had earlier opposed.

While many executive members were the target of criticism during the five-day meeting, all — except those who did not run again — were re-elected to lead the union for another three-year term.

Despite dramatic dissension on key issues — Atlantic members termed the day the blackest in the union's history — Parrot took the events with a grain of salt in the end.

He told reporters the union's constitution was strengthened and members have a high degree of solidarity despite the rowdy debates. He was confident there would be unity when it is most needed.

Negotiations for a new collective agreement are scheduled for November, just five months after the union reached its first-ever strike-free settlement with the government. The current contract expires at the end of this year.

Before returning to their locals across the country, the convention delegates:

— Decided to increase the percentage of their union dues put in their general fund and spend at the local level at the expense of their strike fund. Quebec had wanted to increase the percentage which goes to the strike fund.

— Rejected an Atlantic proposal to give members kicked out of the union a chance to appeal at the regional level. They fought hard on this one on behalf of Robert Andstein, former head of the Halifax local, who was expelled from the union by the executive after the post office fired him for 1978 strike-related activities.

— Gave the executive a loophole under which low-level management could be allowed into the union if necessary when the post office is turned into a Crown corporation. The organizing of managers was rejected earlier in the convention on grounds these are the persons who harass postal workers on the job.

Traffic check touches off gun battle

MONTREAL (CP) — A routine traffic check touched off a wild shooting spree in the city's eastend early Friday morning that left three gunmen and a police officer wounded.

The suspects, one of whom is not expected to live, were identified as a prison escaper and two parolees.

Charges of illegal possession of firearms and attempted murder have been sworn out against Marcel Provost, 25, his brother Paul-Emile, 41, and Pierre Lanthier, 35. All are under guard in hospital.

Police said the shooting occurred after two officers noticed a car with a taxi licence plate but no dome light.

The officers were sitting in their patrol car, checking the vehicle's papers with headquarters via radio, when the three men jumped them, shoving a revolver and a sawed-off shotgun in their faces.

"They disarmed the two officers and ripped out the cruiser's microphone, making it impossible for them to call for help," a police spokesman said.

Another patrol car happened on the scene before the gunmen could flee but one of the gunmen pointed a shotgun in the face of a surprised officer and ordered him to hand over his service revolver.

The two officers, both police veterans, were then handcuffed, one to the steering wheel and the other to the cruiser's mirror. After tearing out the microphone from the second cruiser, the gunmen told the officers to scram.

The two officers crouched down in the front seat to avoid being shot and sped blindly across a busy intersection, praying they would not crash into oncoming traffic, the spokesman said.

Eventually one officer managed to reach his walkie-talkie and broadcast the police distress signal.

Within a minute "all hell broke loose," the spokesman continued, as patrol cars converged on the scene and the shootout began.

Fishermen given up for dead

LUNENBURG, N.S. (CP) — An air and sea search for four fishermen missing from a 35-metre scallop dragger which sank Thursday has been suspended.

A spokesman for Search and Rescue in Halifax said today there is little hope the four would be found alive in the chilly waters of the Atlantic.

Fourteen men were rescued from the Margaret Jane after it was rammed by the stern trawler The Cape Beaver about four nautical miles from Lunenburg. The stern trawler was on a shakedown cruise when she sliced the scallop dragger in two.

Surprise verdict in Atkinson case

FREDERICTON (CP) — Echoes of a damning guilty verdict earlier this week turned into the sweet and startling sound of an absolute discharge Friday for former political fundraiser Francis Atkinson.

Atkinson, described by his defence lawyer as a scapegoat for the New Brunswick Progressive Conservative party, emerged from a three-month corruption trial with no conviction or criminal record.

Mr. Justice J. Paul Barry of the New Brunswick Court of Queen's Bench granted a no-strings-attached discharge Friday after finding Atkinson guilty "beyond any reasonable doubt" on Monday.

The judge said, however, he doubted much of the testimony at the trial, including some statements by Premier Richard Hatfield. The premier said in an interview Friday night he told "the whole truth" and the judge could have questioned him if he suspected otherwise.

Mr. Justice Barry found Hatfield's account of a crucial meeting of the party hierarchy in a local motel that discussed financing "very difficult to believe."

Atkinson, a prominent Fredericton lawyer, had been charged with corruptly paying a Conservative government employee for inside information about purchasing in the early 1970s.

Kluane National Park, a forbidding expanse of mountains and glaciers in Yukon

By PAUL KORING

KATHLEEN LAKE, Yukon (CP) — A forbidding expanse of mountains and glaciers in the southwestern Yukon and Alaska Panhandle was to become the first international site to receive a world heritage plaque from the United Nations Saturday.

The 66,313-square-kilometre site, encompassing Kluane National Park in the Yukon and the Wrangell-St. Elias National Monument in Alaska, will join such landmarks as the Great Pyramids of Egypt, Auschwitz concentration camp in West Germany and the Grand Canyon in the United States on the list of world heritage sites selected by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

Three other Canadian locations have already been designated by the organization as having outstanding cultural or natural importance: L'Anse aux Meadows in Newfoundland, where the remains of a Norse settlement were discovered, Nahanni National Park in the Northwest Territories and Dinasaur Provincial Park in Alberta.

The Kluane-Wrangell-St. Elias site features the highest concentration of mountains over 4,000 metres in North America and the largest non-polar ice fields in the world.

Among the peak's are Canada's highest: Mount Logan at 5,940 metres, Mount St. Elias at 5,490 metres and Mount Kennedy at 4,223 metres.

It is breathtaking country. The mountains thrust through a sea of ice and huge glaciers slowly gouge through the valleys, spilling over the coast and breaking off to become icebergs.

In a speech released in advance of delivery, federal Environment Minister John Roberts called the site a spectacular wilderness area that symbolizes a rich diversity of natural resources that is the "common inheritance" of Canada and the United States."

He said the two countries have pledged to jointly preserve the area "not only for future generations of North America, but for all citizens of the world."

Joining Roberts at the official ceremony here will be David Hales of the U.S. department of the interior, Dr. Shehata Adam, chairman of the World Heritage Committee, Dr. Bernd Von Droste, UNESCO representative from Paris, and Yukon government and Parks Canada officials.

Kluane became a national park in 1971 in recognition not only of its spectacular scenery but also because the area is home to about 250 grizzly bears (now on the endangered species list), the world's largest Dall sheep population and more than 150 rare species of birds, including peregrine falcons and gold eagles.

Parks Canada has opened some trails in the area, but few except mountaineers will ever see the interior of the park, about 225 kilometres southwest of Whitehorse, the territorial capital.

Only one chance in wilderness

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Hundreds of tourists from around the world searching for adventure and beauty are being lured into the wilderness of the Northwest Territories again this summer.

But because many never advise police of their excursions and are inexperienced in the wilds, their search could turn into a one-way trip, says Michael Byrne, a northern survival instructor.

"Over the last 15 years I would guess a few dozen adventure seekers have disappeared in the North," Byrne, 25, said in an interview.

He described most of the vanished as people who didn't really know what they were up against and who ran into trouble.

Byrne, also a trapper and prospector, believes most of those who perished should never have been allowed to venture into the wilds.

But there's nothing to stop them, he said.

The RCMP have a voluntary registration program, but Byrne said that's not enough. He suggests some sort of screening process for people planning northern adventures.

"You only get one chance out there — you have to know what you're doing."

Byrne said such a test might discourage some tourists from coming north, but it would also save lives.

He shakes his head bitterly when he talks of what happened to Theodore Gottfried Schmitz, a young German biologist who tackled Great Slave Lake alone two summers ago and has not been seen since.

"Somebody should have stopped him. It was obvious he didn't have the experience to tackle the kind of trip he was planning.

"Everything he had was new, right from the clothes he was standing in to his badly-loaded canoe. I'll never forgive myself for not seeing what was staring me in the face right then."

Not a trace was found of the 28-year-old Schmitz.

Some people have survived, like the young German couple who wanted to sample a Yukon winter, said Byrne. The couple emerged in spring undernourished and scared, telling the bitter story of how they had survived the winter in a poorly heated cabin.

While there was not much police could have done to help the victims, RCMP are concerned about the problem.

In both the Yukon and N.W.T. the RCMP ask wilderness adventurers to provide police with details of their plans before setting out, and then to check in again once their trips are completed.

In Whitehorse, RCMP Sgt. Ed Zawyrucha said the registration program doesn't seem to be working very well.

"The problem is that 50 per cent of the time they don't report in at the end of their trips. If we initiated searches for everyone who didn't report we'd be run ragged."

Because of the lack of public co-operation, police delay any searches until they've first checked the individual's home. But that often involves checking with places in the United States and Europe and it could take months to verify if a party is missing, Zawyrucha said.

"If the registration program is going to be used as a tool by the people, then they have to do their part too."

FALL RENO TOUR PROGRAM
FARE INCREASED BY $10 to $190 Dbl:
$200 Twin: $250 Sgl; after August 8th
We've been advertising a probable increase in rates since early June. With inflation in double digit figures, we're pleased to be able to keep the increase in the 5% area. As a further consideration to our clients, we will accept reservations paid in full at the old rate to Friday of this week, August 8th, on any of our Sunday departures with accommodations at the hospitable, conveniently located "ONSLOW" Hotel right in downtown Reno, to the end of November.

THE BEST HAS TO COST A LITTLE MORE
GRAND CANYONS — YELLOWSTONE
Aug. 30 to Sept. 12 14 Scenic Days $490 Dbl: $505 Tw.
Response to our last week's ad for this "extra" Canyons tour has been most gratifying and we've been able to acquire more hotel rooms allowing us to accommodate a full bus. This means there's still room for you.
It's a gloriously scenic tour at a great time of year, through Northern Washington, Idaho and Montana to famous Yellowstone Park, Grand Teton National Park, lovely and interesting Salt Lake City, South to the beauty of the Canyonlands; Bryce, Zion and the Grand Canyon itself. It will be available next year again but who knows what the cost will be?

LABOUR DAY WEEK-END TOUR
Aug. 30 Three Delightful Days $125 Dbl: $135 Tw.
Another exciting cruise on the hydrofoil "Flying Princess", to Seattle with an afternoon for shopping. Over scenic Stevens Pass the next day, to the unique Bavarian Village and on to view beautiful Ohme Gardens and on to Wenatchee. The return trip stops at lovely Lake Chelan then to the Western Village of Winthrop for lunch before taking the most scenic North Cascades Highway back to the border and the duty-free shop for an early evening arrival in Victoria.

FALL COLOR TOUR
Sept. 21 to 28 Colorful Autumn Days $250 Dbl: $265 Tw.
Just the right time to enjoy the glories of Autumn in the most beautiful area in the world, our own Canadian Rockies, we offer this holiday; over the picturesque mountains of Southern B.C. to Osoyoos, Cranbrook and Fort Steele, through the Kootenays to Banff, returning via lovely Lake Louise to Kamloops and Victoria. The tourist hordes are gone and fall colors will be at their finest.

Tourism pinch felt the world over

ON THE GO with JERRY HULSE

Remember the old "Yankee Go Home" signs? Well, you'll never guess what they say on the flip side.

Come back!

It's the truth. What with tourism on the slide, the world is hurting. And whatever anyone says about the dollar, it's still worshipped around the earth.

Europe in particular is pleading for Americans to return. 'Bring us your green', our overseas cousins are chanting. As an inducement, Germany is introducing its Wunderpackage that provides rooms in family-operated hotels for $19.50 (all figures in U.S. funds) a night per person, double occupancy. These hotels operate in the countryside. City hotels — they're considerable higher — run about $78 a night. Under the Wunderpackage deal you'll pay roughly half that sum plus a $9 supplement for a single.

While Germany is encouraging visitors, the country is suffering less than other European nations because of huge crowds attracted to the Passion Play at Oberammergau.

Alas, though, there's France. Tourism began its plunge last year. Horror stories of exorbitant hotel prices in Paris served to drive visitors away. To lure them back the French Government Tourist Office has published a hotel guide for Paris that lists 125 establishments charging $40 a night or less. Another guidebook tells of 300 relatively inexpensive restaurants.

Britain, too, has the tourist blahs. Only less so than France. Britain has launched a campaign that emphasizes pre-purchase buying.

"So there won't be any nasty surprises," said the man at the local British Tour Authority office.

He's speaking of such inducements as Arthur Frommer's London Without Cash and Britain Without Cash. In other words, package tours in which the entire shot is prepaid. Hotels, meals, sightseeing. Even pre-stamped postcards to mail home to aunts and uncles, cousins and others.

For the traveller who insists on travelling independently the BTA suggests the country's smaller hotels and inns. These plus bed-and-breakfast bargains abound throughout Britain.

The BTA is distributing leaflets titled Bed & Breakfast in Britain and Great Britain Value. The latter identifies the cheaper hotels and restaurants while naming a number of shopping bargains. Another titled Eat Like A King tells of 20 pub restaurants where one may dine reasonably.

For the first time in years, Southern Ireland is shedding tears. Tourism declined 5 percent last year. Now it's dipped again. But the fighting Irish refuse to give up.

Instead they are encouraging the fly-drive concept, urging vacationers to use guest houses, farmhouses and the smaller, less expensive hotels.

Meanwhile, the Irish Tourist Board has produced a booklet naming 31 inexpensive tours for all seasons.

In Portugal the dollar remains strong and the bargains are varied. Apartments along the Algarve, the little nation's Riviera, are available for as little as $330 a week. Sleeping up to eight persons, all are within walking distance of the beach. Something nearer to the ocean figures out to roughly $60 a day in the village of Armacao de Pera.

In Lisbon even the deluxe Ritz Hotel is a bargain this summer, with doubles going for about $75 a day. For the thrifty traveller, the Borges in the heart of the city charges $25 a day. And for getting around town on buses and trolleys, a special tourist ticket good for a week is priced at $4.25.

The Scandinavians are appealing to North American travellers to make use of small hotels, guest houses and private homes.

Sixty-five inns are available in Denmark for $17 per person per night. Sweden lists 440 commercial, and budget hotels with rates ranging from $17 to $26 a night. And the Norwegians are encouraging tourists to take refuge in log cabins at $100 a week.

To set it all straight, the three nations have produced a Guide to Low-Cost Scandinavia, with copies available from SAS or the Scandinavian National Tourist office, 75 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10019

Switzerland is offering other booklets, including one titled All-Inclusive Arrangements in Switzerland — Spring, Summer and Autumn. It names 80 towns, cities and resorts with low-cost package plans.

A particularly good buy is a seven-night deal in the Alpine village of Murren. Prices start at $202 for accommodations, breakfast, dinner and a season ticket on railways and steamers.

For the winter tourist, Austria is promoting a two-week budget ski vacation in Innsbruck that includes round-trip air fare, transfers from Munich, a hotel and two meals a day, all for $1,000.

In its effort to lure back tourists, the Netherlands is providing low-cost bicycle holidays as well as rail passes for $38.

As for the Israelis, they insist that inflation is working to the advantage of the North American visitor. (Their inflation, not ours). Deluxe hotels range from $60 to $70 a night, including the smorgasbord-style Israeli breakfast.

Possibly the toughest battle for tourists is being waged by Japan. For years Tokyo has been known as the world's most expensive city. Earlier this year the Japan National Tourist Organization (JNTO) conducted a survey of 65 metropolitan areas that placed Tokyo in ninth place behind such cities as London and Paris.

In its campaign of image changing, a heavy push is being given by the JNTO for inexpensive tours. One involves a 15-day circle trip of Japan for $1,697.

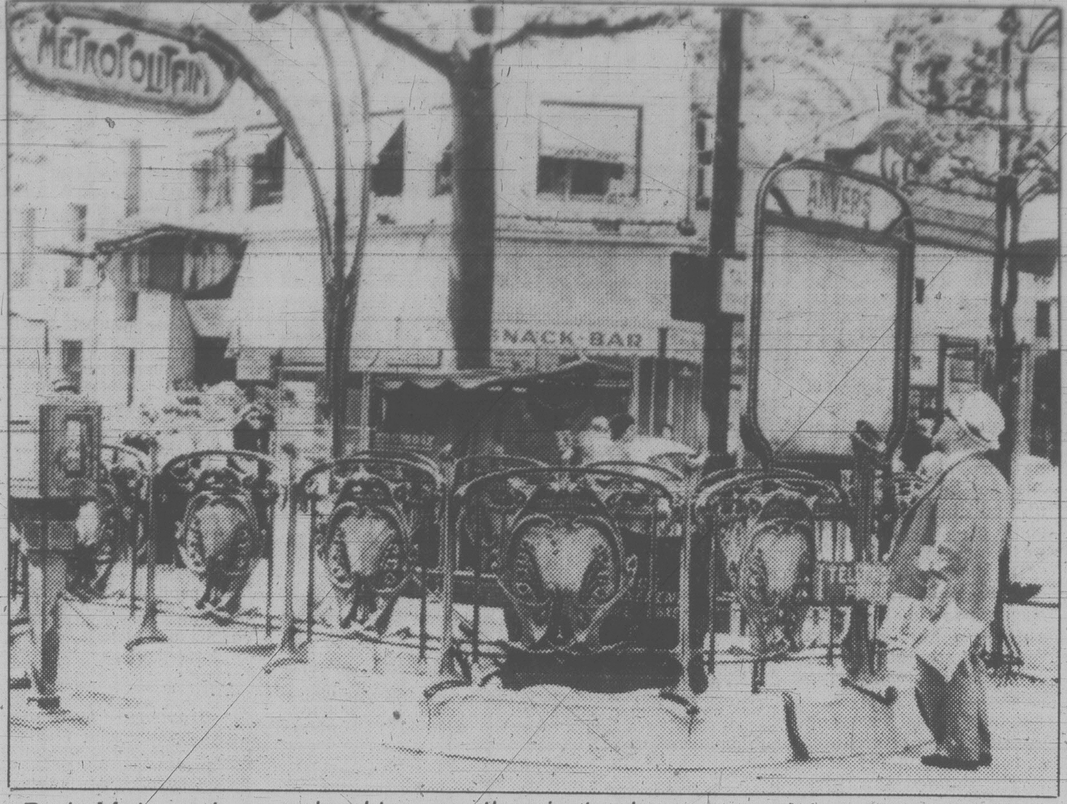
They don't tell you about thefts

By PAUL GRIMES

NEW YORK — Despite increasing reports of assaults and robberies in which the victims are tourists, promoters of many leading vacation destinations seem reluctant to volunteer information about perils that travellers could face.



Paris Metro entrances lead to more than just subway — a pickpockets' hangout

"In Paris," said George Hern of the French Government Tourist Office in New York, "there are usually signs in public places about pickpockets and that sort of thing." He said that he knew of no official warning literature, however, such as the leaflets being offered by the New York City transit police about crime in the subways and how to avoid it.

Similar comments were received from half a dozen other officials of foreign government tourist offices who were asked what their countries do to advise visitors about risks.

"We have no literature," said Amelia Medwied of the Italian government's tourism office in New York, "but when the question comes up, we don't avoid it. We don't say, 'Watch out when you go to Italy, something is liable to happen,' but we do hope people will take common precautions, just as they do at home."

Discussions with travel agents, tour operators, officials, sightseeing guides and tourists make it clear, however, that vacationers travelling abroad tend to be subject to distractions — accidental or staged — that cause them to relax their guard. In short, they become more vulnerable to crime. On the other hand, according to mail received by travel editors, more and more tourists are clamoring for simple warnings, in advance of their trip or at least on arrival, of circumstances and places in which danger lurks.

Such guidance is available in occasional newspaper articles and some guidebooks.

In Paris, the American Embassy has undertaken to issue advice. Last December it prepared a two-page warning bulletin on pickpockets. "Each year," it says, "some 1,400 Americans report their passports stolen or lost in Paris. Many of them are the victims of pickpockets operating in areas frequented by tourists, particularly museums and crowded subway and train stations."

Citing a study made by the Paris newspaper Figaro, the bulletin said that the subway system, the Metro, was a favorite pickpockets' haunt. "They operate on three Metro lines in particular: Porte de Clignancourt-Porte d'Orleans; Nation-Dauphine and Vincennes-Neuilly," it said. "These three lines serve such crowded locations as the Louvre Museum, the Beaubourg cultural center, principal department stores and several railway stations. The pickpockets' favorite days for operation are Friday, Saturday and the day preceding a holiday."

A copy of the bulletin was mailed to The New York Times by Johanna P. Kovacs of Carnegie, Pa., who said she had picked it up when she went to the embassy to report a robbery. "My husband and I along with 60 other members of the American Association of Retired Persons recently spent three weeks in Paris," she said. "Out of 60 people, six were robbed. I was knocked to the sidewalk in front of the American Express Company, where we were going to report the robbery of our credit card.

"Yet we never read of the epidemic of robberies in Paris. Everyone hears what happens in New York City, but the French are very good at keeping a secret."

Jessie E. Knight of Great Neck, N.Y., a long-time aficionado of the Costa del Sol in Spain, complained of a recent upsurge in youthful crime there, attributable largely to unemployment. She spoke of youths who travel in pairs on motorcycles and snatch purses and bags. "I was thrown down on my face," she said, "and my bag was torn from my shoulder, cutting my face (five stitches) and breaking my shoulder in two places. A large group of retired people was at the hotel we were at, and there were similar tragedies every day."

Mrs. Knight said Spanish tourist authorities "do nothing to alert people" to dangers, "fearing loss of business." She said the American Consulate in Seville advised her to write to the travel section of The New York Times.

Asked for comment, Charles Ochelfice in New York said exposure to crime was similar in most countries. "It is one of the experiences of everyday life," he said, "and one of the experiences while travelling. Commonsense practices should prevail. There is no need to take all your best jewelry and your Macy's credit card when you are travelling overseas."

Ocheltree said his office reported to higher authorities all instances of crime in Spain that it heard from tourists. "Responsibility for prevention lies with the cities themselves," he said. "It is not a tourist office function and we do not have funds to carry out a warning program of a major scope."

In Rome, assaults such as that experienced by Mrs. Knight are commonplace. In an article in The Times last year, Paul Hofmann said the technique was known as the scippo — Italian for "sudden pull." On Easter Sunday of 1979, Hofmann wrote, the Rome police reported more than 60 purse snatchings.

The "Royal Viking Star" you see in port here for Alaska Cruises will be lengthened next year by nearly 100 feet. Capacity up from 500 to 700 passengers, another pool and extra public rooms. Should make her even more lovely!

More sea talk — We now have our own P. Lawson Air/Sea Cruise on the "Odessa" from Vancouver to Los Angeles for $499 including air return. Leave September 15th. Cabins are on Main Deck, optional tours available in Los Angeles and San Diego.

Price guarantees are flying all over these days. Two of the latest: NEW HORIZON'S programs to Nassau, Hawaii, Mexico and Disneyland. Fully paid by August 20th for programs up to end of year, no increase to be passed on. Same applies to WESTERN AIRLINES $379 Vancouver to Honolulu return if ticketed by August 20th for travel into 1981!

A few facts about P. Lawson — We were founded in 1931; almost 500 employees; you'll help us do nearly $140 million in sales this year; we processed $43 million last year on Air Canada's ticket stock; we're 100% Canadian and, by volume, the largest in North America. We're not franchised.

Each week I mention cruising but it's hard to ignore. The latest fantastic value is an offer by Holland America to accept for all cruises out of Miami next winter, payment through Fairway Tours in Canadian $ at par with $ U.S. That's an approximate saving of $240 on a $1600 cruise. Only snag, (minor one), deposit must be in by October 31st, 1980. HURRY!

Eastern Airlines have increased their system excursion fares effective September 2nd but now only require TWO — 4 HOUR Stopovers including the final destination. Now you can really wing it around North America and the Caribbean!

Paraplegic gets revenge 13 years after he was shot

THAT'S NO SOMBRERO perched atop cyclist James Lemon of Ebington, Mass. He's heading for some king-sized summer fun at the old swimmin' hole with an inner tube from a truck.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Queller Ratcliff went to jail a happy man. The vengeance the 44-year-old paraplegic had craved for 13 years had been sated — at least for a time.

For 13 years, Ratcliff stalked the man responsible for a 1967 shooting that left him paralyzed. He found and shot the man Wednesday night. Then he told police:

"I screwed up. He's not dead."

Wesley Johnnson, 47, was in good condition at Henrotin Hospital. He was shot once in the jaw while he played checkers on the porch of a friend's Northwest Side home.

The shot, police said Friday, was fired through the open window of Ratcliff's auto — a car specially equipped so Ratcliff can drive it using only his hands.

Police stopped the car on the Dan Ryan Expresway and arrested Ratcliff.

"He seemed inwardly tickled," said Sgt. William F. Murray.

He spent one night in the lockup, charged with battery and unlawful use of a weapon. He was freed Thursday on $1,000 bond.

Ratcliff told police he had been waiting 13 years to shoot Johnson. He said the shooting "took some of the load off me" but that "only time will tell" if it had quelled his obsession for revenge.

Johnson spent three years in prison for shooting Ratcliff five times and slitting his throat in a 1967 attack — an incident arising from a love triangle. Both had been dating the same woman.

Mob suspicion blocks cheese baron's aims

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Canada's largest mozzarella cheese producer was denied a licence Friday to begin production in the United States because of alleged ties to reputed underworld boss Joseph Bonanno.

The denial of a licence to Emanuele Saputo, head of a Montreal-based pizza empire, stems from an investigation of mob infiltration of the pizza business in the U.S., said Emerson Moran, a spokesman for the state's Organized Crime Task Force.

Saputo had sought a milk dealer's licence for his Utica Cheese Inc. to gain a foothold in the United States, the world's largest pizza market. He had planned to reopen a cheese plant at Oriskany, in central New York, and avoid import restrictions that had limited U.S. sales.

Many area dairy farmers had pressed for approval of the licence application and the Court of Appeals, the state's highest court, had ordered the agriculture department to take some action.

But State Agriculture Commissioner J. Roger Barber turned down the licence one week after the denial was recommended by retired appeals judge Charles Breitel, who acted as a hearing officer in the case.

Arnold Proskin, Saputo's lawyer, said he had not been informed of Barber's decision but expected to appeal the licence denial.

Department investigators alleged that Saputo has hidden links to Bonanno, a reputed underworld figure, stretching back to the 1960s and at one point in late 1977 arranged the laundering of a $50,000 payoff to him. Investigators claimed that Bonanno held a substantial interest in several Saputo-controlled companies.

Saputo has denied the allegations. He has said that the case has cost him "a fortune" but that he wants to "clear my name once and for all."

Moran said the Saputo investigation and the indictment Thursday of a Brooklyn man with reputed organized crime ties are all part of a wider investigation into mob infiltration of the pizza business.

"These are just related parts of a wider investigation," Moran said. "We expect more indictments in the future.

On Thursday, Joseph Falcone, 55, surrendered to authorities and was charged with stealing more than 100,000 pounds of mozzarella from an Indiana cheese company.

In 1978, Saputo attempted to establish a $1.4-million mozzarella plant in Vermont but the plan was blocked by Vermont Gov. Richard Snelling. Saputo then offered $400,000 to purchase the closed Oriskany cheese plant.

McKinnon — Hine

On Saturday, June 21, Queenswood Catholic Church, in Victoria, was the scene of a pretty summer wedding uniting Darcie Elizabeth Eileen Hine, only daughter of Kenneth and Hazel Hine, Parksville, and Neil William McKinnon, son of William and Margaret McKinnon of Victoria. Father Leo Roberts heard the vows, written by the couple, at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, entered the chapel with her father to the music of Largo Celebre by Handel. Her gown of ivory embossed satin in blouson style was cinched at the waist by matching cummerbund, and she wore a band of mini-carnations in her hair. The bridal bouquet was of peach roses, ivory mini-carnations and baby's breath.

The bride was attended by Diane Smedley of Victoria.

The groom was attended by his brother, Glen McKinnon, of Vancouver.

In the bridal party were four-year-old twins Justine and Danielle McKinnon.

Ushering duties were performed by Brent Hine of Edmonton and Laureen Hine of Parksville, brothers of the bride.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Old England Inn. Leanne Davies attended the guest register. Toast to the bride was given by Ray Wheeler, a family friend.

Guests attending the wedding were from Vancouver, Victoria, Surrey, Edmonton, Terrace, Qualicum Beach and Parksville.

RETIRED
BORED?

You probably need the responsibility of a part-time job, close to home, where many people rely on you. The responsibility won't be more than a couple of hours daily.
Colonist routes easily delivered by walking with a cart, by bicycle or car do come available from time to time.
Reliable people of all ages, both sexes, are active each day in delivering Colonist routes.
There is much more to a Colonist route than delivering the world news to the subscriber's doorstep. Consider the following:
(1.) Additional income (from $80 to $300 per month depending on route size).
(2.) Meeting people.
(3.) Early morning fresh air.
(4.) Healthy exercise.
(5.) Knowing your services are needed and people are relying on you.
(6.) Record-keeping (minimal).
(7.) The accomplishment of giving an important service but retaining ample free time for other activities.
There are routes of all sizes and some apartment routes in all areas of the city. Please phone 383-4111 and ask for City Circulation. Leave your name, address and phone number and you will be contacted.

Push-up champ three years old

By CHERYL COGGINS
Cox News Service

AUSTIN, Tex. — It's the classic story of a wonder child. Henry Marshal Jr. did his first push-up before he walked. By the time he was a year old, he was popping off 100 a day.

When he was two years old, 200 push-ups on one arm in half an hour were a piece of cake. Now little Henry, a mature 3, is claiming a world record. Last month, in front of newspaper reporters, photographers and friends, Henry Marshal Jr. did 1,240 push-ups in two hours in his house in San Antonio.

Henry, of course, has a slight edge over most other 3-year-old body builders. His father, Henry Marshal Sr., has been putting push-up records in the Guinness Book of World Records for several years.

"When he was just about six months old, I was training for the world's record for a muscular dystrophy telethon," his father said. "I was keeping him all day long, and he would watch me four hours a day. He just thought it was something he was supposed to do. He rolled over and did a push-up. It surprised the hell out of me."

That first push-up, the boy's father recalled, was a "girl push-up," meaning Henry was on his knees when he pushed his chest up off the floor. "But when he was one year old, he started doing them on his toes," his father said.

Marshal said his son seemed to understand the idea of setting records and even told his father he wanted to go for one.

"He is very intelligent for a 3-year-old, and I believe it's because of exercise and a healthy mental attitude," his father said.

Of course, persuading any 3-year-old to concentrate on something for two hours is not a task for the faint-hearted or the dull-minded. "I kind of bribed him," Marshal admitted. "I told him I would give him a swimming pool, so he really went after it.

"He's out there playing in the pool now. I believe there should be something a kid can go for," Marshal said.

When he was establishing what his father thinks is a push-up record for 3-year-olds, little Henry didn't just get down on the floor and pump out more than 1,000 push-ups non-stop. The boy would do a few push-ups and then he would rest a while. "I had a soda water and I let him sip on it," Marshal said. "It gave him a little energy."

Although little Henry might do more push-ups than any other child in the world, his parents say their child does not look like a miniature Arnold Schwarzenegger, the weight lifter. "He's just in real good shape, but he looks like a normal 3-year-old. He might be a little bit stronger," Marshal said.

Although the boy isn't in training right now — "We're just letting him do what he wants to do because he's just 3 years old," his father said — he'll go back into training soon.

But it's not going to be for any of that old, regular push-up stuff. "This time he's going to try to do 500 on one arm," his father said.

Lucky Scottish lassies soon can wash windows

EDINBURGH (AP) — Scottish women may soon be legally entitled to climb up onto window sills to wash outside windows. All Scots, if they so wish, may soon carry uncovered dead horses through the streets and drive more than two carts at a time.

Laws and regulations approved toward the end of the 19th century presently make those actions "crimes," but they will no longer be considered so if a proposal made Thursday by the secretary of state for Scotland, George Younger, is adopted by Parliament.

Younger, calling the rules outdated and mostly irrelevant, formally published his proposal to replace the Burgh Police (Scotland) Acts, under which the regulations took effect, with a new civic government act.

After a public airing, the Scottish office plans to draw up a parliamentary bill approving a new act.

Other Scottish "crimes" that would be abolished under a new act include:

— Blowing steam whistles and trumpets in the streets and hanging from the backs of trams without special permission;

— Employing unlicensed golf caddies;

— Allowing a stallion or bull to be viewed publicly while serving a mare or cow;

— Moving furniture between 8 p.m. and 6 a.m.;

— Overtaking a horse, mule or beast of burden without sounding a bell or whistle while riding a bicycle, tricycle or velocipede, one of the earliest types of cycles.

Why some of the offences were created in the first place remains a bit of a mystery to many Scots. That goes especially for the rules about women standing on window sills and on driving more than two carts at a time. Most Scots say driving one at a time is enough.

As for other rules, their disappearance will not make much difference.

India food outlook bright, study says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new World Bank report says that India, rather than a country of millions of starving people, actually appears to be achieving self-sufficiency in food production, according to a published report.

The confidential report says the outlook for India is "substantially more optimistic than many past projections," The Post reported in today's editions.

"Food grain self-sufficiency or surplus, if it comes about, will be an impressive achievement of a long-standing goal of Indian economic development," The Post quoted the World Bank report as saying.

The World Bank report noted that the apparent level of grain consumpton in 1978-79 was 170 kilograms per capita.

Hiroshima marks anniversary of a nightmare

By JIM ABRAMS

HIROSHIMA (AP) — Thirty-five years have passed since Hiroshima was blasted to rubble in the blinding flash of Little Boy, the first atom bomb dropped on humans.

At 8:15 a.m. next Wednesday, as it has on every Aug. 6 since 1945, the city once known as the Venice of Japan will pause in silence to mark the anniversary of man's violent entry into the nuclear age and the deaths of some 140,000 people crushed or incinerated by the awful fury of the bomb.

As in other recent years, it will mark the occasion with the pride of a city which has risen from its own ashes to become once again a thriving commercial and cultural centre.

Except for the horrific displays in the Atom Bomb Museum in Peace Park, Hiroshima shows few reminders of the blast — equivalent to 13,000 tons of TNT — which killed 60 per cent of the people within two kilometres of the hypocentre with its searing, 6,100-degree heat, shock waves and radiation.

The population today is 880,000, more than twice the 330,000 who lived here in 1945. They produce Mazda cars at the Toyo Kogyo Co. plant and build tankers at the Mitsubishi Heavy Industries Ltd. shipyards.

Hiroshima is again a city of greenery. Its many parks and wide streets are a stunning contrast to the stacked, packed appearance of most other Japanese cities. The Hiroshima Toyo Carp baseball team, backed by the nation's most frenetic fans, are streaking toward their second straight championship.

But it is a disquieting year as well. International tensions mock the atomic city's annual appeal for world peace. Even Japan itself, constitutionally barred from maintaining an offensive military force, is moving steadily toward increased defence spending.

Although Hiroshima and Nagasaki — where 70,000 people perished in the explosion of Fat Man, another atomic bomb dropped on Aug. 9 — have few signs of physical damage any more, the psychological scars run deep and the passage of time has done little to heal them.

Of the 372,000 people in Japan officially designated as bomb survivors, half live in Hiroshima prefecture (state) and 110,000 inside the city. A survivor is anyone who was within 3.8 kilometres of the hypocentre, entered the radiation-contaminated cities within two weeks afterward or was a fetus when the bombs hit.

The government this year budgeted the equivalent of $382 million for free medical aid, monthly compensation to victims with leukemia and other proven radiation ailments, nursing homes for survivors and research on the effects of radiation. Many think this is not enough.

"We recognize the argument that the atom bomb may have hastened the end of the war and saved American and Japanese lives," said Takashi Takeuchi, an official of the Atom Bomb Victims Council.

"But if Hiroshimans were sacrificed to bring peace, then the government should see to the needs o those who suffered. It's not right that survivors of soldiers who died get pensions while the families of bomb victims, many old and without relatives, get nothing."

Age has blurred the distinction between radiation-related and other diseases.

"Many of our patients are suffering from normal problems of advanced age," said Dr. Sadamu Ishida, chief of internal medicine at the Hiroshima Atom Bomb Hospital. "But there is constant anxiety about radiation sickness and they are all certain every small ailment is caused by the bomb."

The Radiation Effects Research Foundation, formerly the U.S.-run Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission which since 1975 has been funded equally by Japan and the United States, has found that exposure to gamma rays from the bomb resulted in a high rate of leukemia in the first 10 years and abnormal incidents of thyroid, female breast and lung cancer since then.

It also found that among the 4,000 pregnant women in Hiroshima and Nagasaki, 60 had children with microcephaly — small heads. Of these, 30 were retarded.

But U.S. and Japanese scientists have yet to reach a conclusion on links between heavy radiation doses and advanced aging, or — most worrisome — genetic damage to the offspring of victims.

The question of genetic damage has resulted in many survivors being spurned as potential marriage partners. Social discrimination and recurring illness have also given bomb victims a higher unemployment rate and lower incomes.

"Extensive studies have been done on what the bomb blast did to concrete walls, but little is known of what it did to the social fabric," said Minoru Yuzaki, professor at the Hiroshima University's Radiation Medical Research Centre.

Yuzaki has brought survivors from destroyed communities back together to discuss their experiences. He said their first reaction on seeing a neighbor after more than 30 years is, "So you made it too!"

"Many are tormented by guilt for having survived when all around them were dying. Meeting another survivor justifies their own existence."

Yet if the legacy of Little Boy has left Hiroshima in continuing physical and mental pain, there is little outward hate or anger.

"When Aug. 6 comes around I feel only a terrible sadness," said Sugie Ota, blinded by radiation and crippled despite 15 operations to remove scars and restore use to burn-damaged limbs.

Death train warned

DUBLIN (AP) — A signalman screamed and waved his hands frantically just moments before an express train jumped the track in rural County Cork, killing at least 17 people and injuring 59 in the Irish republic's worst train crash, a witness reported today.

But Liam St. John Devlin, chairman of the Irish National Transport Co., said the cause of Friday's wreck remains undetermined.

"We don't know whether it was human error or a broken line," he said.

The death toll was expected to reach 19 or 20 as firemen cut into the twisted wreckage of the Dublin-to-Cork express in a search for two or three more bodies believed trapped inside. An American, two Austrians, a French national and an Australian were believed among the dead, but no identities have been released.

Of the injured, hospital authorities said nine of them are in critical condition.

No Canadians were believed aboard the train.

The witness, Michael Broderick, a former member of the Irish Parliament living near the crash site, told reporters that in the seconds before the accident he saw that the signalman in the switch-control box was agitated.

"As the 10 a.m. train from Dublin approached I thought something was wrong because its horn was blazing and I saw the signalman waving and shouting," Broderick said.

"It seemed he must have seen something wrong."

The railway company said the train was carrying about 230 passengers when it jumped the tracks at the village of Buttevant, 50 kilometres north of Cork. Most were vacationers bound for a weekend at southern coastal resorts.

Officials said the 12-coach train passed through Buttevant station, travelling at about 85 kilometres an hour, when it rolled over a switch, the engine derailed and the trailing cars spilled from the tracks. The engine and the first cars smashed into a stationary ballast train on a siding.

Most of the dead and injured were in the first two coaches — dining cars crowded at the time of the noon-hour derailment.

Some passengers were flung screaming from the coaches, others were trapped in the wreckage.

Love Canal dioxin peril uncovered

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Highly toxic dioxin has been found in storm sewers draining the southern portion of the Love Canal in the "highest levels we've found yet" in the Niagara Falls, N.Y., area, state officials said Friday.

The tainted storm sewers drain the southern end of the dump area and empty directly into the Niagara River. But Marvin Nailor, a spokesman for the state health department, said the findings represent no immediate health hazard and that the samples are all taken from underground pipes.

New flood of LSD alarms drug squad

By DEREK SIDENIUS

RCMP spokesmen say LSD is pouring into B.C. in a flood reminiscent of the late 1960s.

They believe most of the hallucinogenic drug is manufactured in California and shipped here in liquid form.

It is showing up in such large amounts that the RCMP drug teams are giving it a priority second only to heroin.

The upsurge in the supply and use of the brain-crippling drug has police alarmed and puzzled.

For nearly a decade the drug had fallen out of favor with drug users, a situation largely brought about by numerous reports in the early 70s of the devastating effects LSD can have on the brain.

But today the drug is almost as plentiful as the late 60s when it was rampant in the drug sub-culture.

"It's just crazy," said Staff Sgt. Abe Snidanko, a unit commander with the RCMP drug squad in the Lower Mainland.

"How come a stupid drug like this is coming back? How come they are using it again? I just can't understand it."

Staff Sgt. Bob Hawkes, head of the Victoria drug squad, said LSD use has increased alarmingly not only in B.C. but throughout North America.

There appears to be an abundant supply in Victoria where it is readily available at the street level, he said.

Hawkes said police began to notice increased trafficking in LSD about 1½ years ago when a known Victoria drug dealer was arrested in the United States in connection with a large LSD operation that was being set up in the Berkeley, Calif. area.

"We knew he was involved in drugs but we never suspected he was into LSD as well," Hawkes said.

Police believe most of the drug is being manufactured in California and brought to B.C. in liquid form where it is diluted and put on blotters.

There is no indication of a lab anywhere in B.C. although the street is rife with rumors to the contrary.

Snidanko said the drug trade appears to be leapfrogging Oregon and Washington.

The Seattle Drug Enforcement Agency has reported no dramatic increase in LSD use in their area.

Police sources are unaware of any large organized trafficking ring. Most of the trade, they say, is carried out by small-time, loosely-connected operators, making it that much more difficult for drug officers to stem the flow.

The profits are enormous. An ounce of pure LSD yields thousands of "hits," each with a street value of between $4.50 to $5.

Ten years ago a hit of LSD sold for about $3.

Snidanko said research has shown the LSD currently being sold on the street is less potent than that a decade ago.

Then the average hit contained about 250 micrograms of pure LSD. Today the average is in the 70 to 100 microgram range although some samples seized have been as low as 10.

He said that may be the primary reason for an increasing number of young people returning to the drug. They think it is safer.

But, Snidanko said, they are only fooling themselves. LSD tends to accumulate in the body and after repeated use can build up to dangerous levels that could lead to irreparable brain damage.

"From our contact with doctors we are already getting some really erratic behavior signs from people using the drug," he said.

Ironically, LSD has mushroomed back into use just as drug officers, through extensive investigations over the past seven years, have been able to dry up the sources and suppliers of another dangerous chemical — MDA.

MDA is not considered as potentially damaging as LSD.

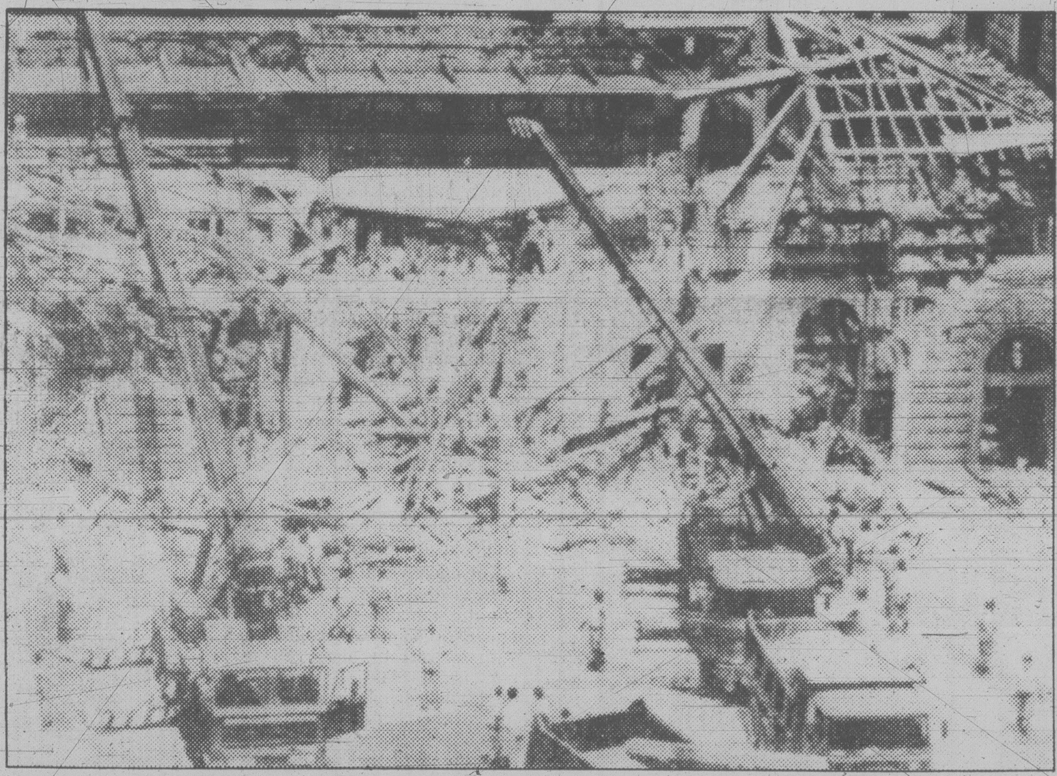
55 die as blast rips rail station



Cranes and trucks remove rubble from blasted Bologna station today

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — A powerful explosion, possibly caused by a terrorist bomb, ripped apart the main Bologna railway station today killing at least 55 people and injuring almost 200 vacation travellers.

Many of the victims were packed in an air-conditioned bar-restaurant escaping the heat. Some were feared still trapped in the wreckage.

Part of the station roof fell onto a train just leaving loaded with vacationers. Many of the injured suffered second- and third-degree burns, police reported.

The only foreigner named so far among the victims was Hans Jurt, 60, mayor of Aesch, Switzerland, who was injured and taken to hospital. A hospital spokesman said his injured are not serious.

A neo-Fascist urban guerrilla group, the Armed Revolutionary Nuclei (NAR), telephoned a Rome newspaper to claim responsibility for the blast, but authorities said it was impossible to say whether a bomb or an accident caused the disaster.

An hour earlier a Bologna magistrate had indicted eight neo-Fascists for causing 12 deaths with a bomb put on board a train near Bologna exactly six years ago.

Despite the coincidence, fire department spokesmen said before the guerrilla group made its claim that the evidence pointed toward an accidental escape of gas fumes.

Survivors spoke of a strong smell of gas fumes only seconds before the restaurant area was enveloped in a huge burst of yellow-black flame.

$2.1 million heroin grab

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP arrested a 26-year-old woman and a 21-year-old man and seized more that $2.1 million worth of heroin Friday night at Vancouver International Airport. A pair arrived on a flight from India via Tokyo.

Wild chase over Malahat

An 18-year-old youth is in custody after one of the longest and wildest police car pursuits ever in this area.

It took six RCMP cars — three from Colwood and three from Duncan and Shawnigan Lake — to finally stop the vehicle on the Trans Canada Highway opposite Whippletree Junction near Duncan, 40 km down the road from where the chase began.

In that time, the fleeing vehicle, a pickup truck:

—Collided with three cars, a bus and two motorcycles causing about $4,000 damage.

—Knocked one of the cyclists off his bike. (He only received minor injuries).

—Went through red lights, passed on double solid lines, drove on the wrong side of the road around blind corners and reached speeds up to 130 kmh.

—Ignored a police roadblock at Mill Bay.

Police lost count of the number of vehicles forced off the road in the wild 20-minute ride.

Joey Day, of 821 Seven Oaks Road, appeared before a justice of the peace in provincial court in Victoria this morning charged with criminal negligence, hit and run and driving with a blood alcohol reading of more than .08.

The incident began shortly after 10 p.m. when a motorist reported to police he had been rear-ended by a pickup truck while stopped at a red light at Helmcken and the Trans Canada Highway. The truck then sped off.

Police spotted the truck at Millstream just as it passed at high speed a car stopped at a red light.

On the long straight stretch before Sooke Lake Road cutoff, the truck veered into the opposing lane to pass a string of seven cars.

As it was returning to its proper lane it sideswiped a southbound bus.

A few kilometres further down the highway the truck sideswiped another car and then hit two more vehicles as it sped up the Malahat, police said.

Two other Colwood RCMP cars joined the chase and Duncan detachment was alerted to set up a roadblock at Mill Bay.

Police said as the driver was heading up the hill towards the south Shawnigan Lake cutoff he pulled alongside a motorcycle travelling in the slow lane and then swung over and collided with the bike knocking the rider, Ronald Wong, 18, of Portland, Oregon, to the ground.

Wong was taken to Victoria General Hospital where he was treated for cuts and bruises and later released.

Police said the driver did the same thing to Wong's travelling companion, Ty Amidon of Sandy, Oregon, who was riding ahead, but Amidon managed to stay on his bike and wasn't hurt.

The truck skidded around three police cars blocking the lane at Mill Bay and the police cars gave pursuit.

Finally one of the police cars got in front of the truck and with police cars front, back and side, the driver was boxed in.

He pulled over at Whippletree and surrendered without a struggle.

Press layoffs 'deplored' by union

One of the unions representing Victoria Press employees has said the company should explore ways of averting the layoff of employees.

The union — the Victoria local of The Newspaper Guild — said in a prepared statement it deplores the 'cruel, cold and callous manner in which Thomson Newspapers announced the layoffs of 62 employees Friday" and the merger of the papers.

Affected employees were given 30 days' notice and will receive severance pay of one week's salary for each six months of service. The layoffs were made on the basis of seniority according to the agreements with the unions. The agreements call for 30 days' notice to the unions but only two weeks' notice to individual employees.

Amalgamation of the Victoria Times and the Daily Colonist into the Times-Colonist, and the layoffs, effective Sept. 2, were announced by Colin McCullough, vice-president of Victoria Press which publishes the papers.

McCullough said officials of the Thomson Newspapers Ltd. organization which owns the Victoria papers did not issue any instructions in relation to the merger.

He said it was a management decison reached locally.

"The problems in trying to publish two distinct newspapers are not new. People have been talking merger around here for years and if it hadn't happened now, they would still be talking about it next week," he said.

McCullough said the Victoria Press operation has been only marginally profitable since the early 1970s.

"We're keeping ahead, but that's about all and only because we've been cutting costs."

Noting that the two papers merged newsroom space two years ago, sharing a number of editorial functions, McCullough said the distinctiveness of each

B.C. still leader in divorces

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 59,000 marriages ended in divorce last year, an increase of 4.1 per cent from 1978, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

The number of divorces per 100,000 population increased by 3.2 per cent to 251 in 1979 from 243 a year earlier.

British Columbia held on to its title of divorce capital of Canada, with 343 divorces per 100,000 people.

Alberta was a close second with 324. Newfoundland as usual had the lowest rate, 84 divorces per 100,000 people, but that represented a 12.3-per-cent increase over 1978 figures.

Nova Scotia had the greatest increase, 15.1 per cent, in divorce rate.

The number of divorces increased everywhere except Quebec, Manitoba and the Yukon.

New oil agency rapped

OTTAWA (CP) — The NDP have attacked the government's new Petroleum Monitoring Agency, calling it a 'watchdog without teeth.'

Ian Waddell, the New Democratic Party's energy critic, said Friday the agency will be useless without the power to roll back oil company profits and prices.

He suggested the agency, announced earlier in the day by Energy Minister Marc Lalonde, should be given the same powers as the now-defunct anti-inflation board to examine company books and order rollbacks.

The agency has been empowered to examine the oil industry's costs, profits, exploration and production programs and extent of Canadian ownership.

"There's a real danger that these figures will mean nothing unless the agency can really get into the books," the British Columbia MP said.

"The problem is that the watchdog has no teeth. Oil companies will not feel threatened by the agency," he said.

The new agency, headed by former anti-inflation board chairman Harold Renouf, is to collect information from throughout the industry on costs, profits, exploration, production, use of resources and the extent of Canadian and foreign ownership, Energy Minister Marc Lalonde told a news conference Friday.

However, the agency will not have powers to roll back excess profits and can only make recommendations to the government on policy and prices governing the industry.

Lalonde said the idea is to keep a close watch on production costs, expenditures and investment pat-

Science moving bionic era closer

By BRENDA DALGLISH

The bionic man with perfectly functioning artifical limbs may still be only a fictional creature but modern science and technology is bring the concept closer and closer.

Friday the first myo-electric forearm and hand manufactured in the city was fitted to a young Victorian by John Girling of the Victoria Prosthetic Clinic in the Garth Homer Achievement Centre.

The recipient of the electric device — Oriano Belusic — lost his arm and was blinded as a result of a bomb explosion several years ago.

He's a student and hopes to go into computor work and Girling says there should be no problems.

"The hand will perform quite well in that kind of job although it wouldn't be suited to more physical types of work," he said.

Although a few other Victorians have similar artifical arms, they were made elsewhere.

Girling, who has been in Victoria since the beginning of this year, has made about 60 artifical limbs for people since opening the private clinic.

"It's like buying a pair of shoes, they may fit in the store but when you get them home you start to notice where they rub."

The hand, which looked quite lifelike from a distance, is operated by slight movements of two muscles in the arm of the amputee.

By lightly flexing one of the muscles, an electric current is activated causing the hand to open or close.

"The user gradually learns to open and close the hand applying just the right amount of pressure so that he can even grasp fragile objects like a paper cup," explained Girling.

The electric parts of the hand and its cosmetic cover — a rubber-like covering patterned to resemble skin — are manufactured elsewhere but the crucial connection that joins the prosthesis to the amputee's stump must be custom made for the individual.

The device fitted Friday cost $3,300 and was paid for by Pharmacare and the War Amps.

The key to making an artifical arm function well, is to make certain it's attached snugly but not too tightly, Girling said.

Because they aren't attached to the body like natural limbs, it's also important that the weight be as little as possible.

One of the problems with most artifical arms is that the weight tends to be located towards the hand end of the prosthesis.

If the weight, which comes mainly from the electric and mechanical parts, could be shifted to an area closer to the stump, the prosthesis is better balanced and easier to handle.

Girling also manufactures artifical legs. He says about 80 per cent of amputees have lost their lower limbs because the most common reasons for amputation are related to vascular problems.

People who have been amputated above the knee or elbow have much more difficulty because technology can't reproduce and operate a joint nearly as well as nature.

Girling finds the job of making artifical limbs challenging and rewarding.

It requires ingenuity, craftsmanship and art.

"Unfortunately, no matter how well we get them to work they're never as good as the real thing," he said.

But Girling says if there's one thing he's learned working with amputees, it's to never say something is impossible.

"If someone asked if you could run from the maritimes to Ontario on an artifical leg, you'd say it was impossible but Terry Fox is doing it," he said.

Government moves on trucking safety

The provincial government has moved to crack down on unsafe transport trucks through amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act.

Bill 44, introduced in the legislature Friday by Highways Minister Alex Fraser, includes a provision allowing cabinet to make regulations covering every aspect of the capability of a vehicle to retain or contain its load.

The bill also authorizes weighmasters and inspectors as peace officers to remove defective vehicles from the highways.

Fraser said this will result in highway inspection programs being more effective as a method for improving highway safety standards.

In April, Fraser released a report which said that of 3,200 commercial vehicles inspected in a three-month period, 88 per cent had deficiencies and 190 were immediately taken off the road.

Other amendents include:

—Making it an offence for an employer to hire a driver who is not properly licensed for the truck he is expected to operate;

—Giving municipalities the authority to adopt bylaws allowing for parking of small vehicles such as mopeds in designated street areas, and;

—Placing motorized wheelchairs which travel on roadways under the jurisdiction of the Motor Vehicle Act.

Saanich Fair gets set

After 111 years, the Saanich Fair is as buoyant as ever and plans are proceeding for the 112th edition of the event Aug. 30-Sept. 1.

Catalogues and entry forms are being handed out at the fairground office between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays and the deadline to enter your favorite home-made jam or handicraft or anything else in the extensive list of competitions at the fair is 9 p.m. Aug. 22.

The only exceptions are the 4-H, cattle and goat competitions, for which the dealine is Aug. 15.

The fair features displays of heavy horses and miniature donkeys on all three days.

There are also exhibits of horses, cattle, goats, sheep, poultry, flowers, home arts and a wide variety of other thins.

Opening-day features are an old-time fiddling contest and a square-dance demonstration.

It's all in the book

Uncertain if you can keep chickens? Perplexed by how to get rid of a swarm of wasps in your backyard? Curious about bus passes, allotment gardens, heritage building grants or illegal suites?

Answers to these and other questions are now yours for the asking in a handy 22-page booklet called Contact.

Prepared by Victoria Ald. Ron McKenzie, the free booklet is being distributed through neighborhood groups and business associations.

McKenzie put the booklet together because he says in his years on city council he frequently found the public didn't know where to go with its problems or who to contact.

City hall switchboard operator Pat Cairns gave him two pages of questions most often asked by callers. That provided the basis. McKenzie did the rest.

Hospital workers warn they'll strike over pay

Angry members of the Hospital Employees' Union have threatened province-wide strike action if negotiated pay increases are not immediately put into effect.

Jack Gerow, HEU secretary-business manager made the threat after the Health Labor Relations Association, representing 110 hospitals in B.C., said it does not intend to give all union workers the eight per cent wage hike that went into effect Friday.

Gerow said the HLRA has advised member hospitals that only those workers whose jobs have already been classified — about 70 per cent of the membership — will be entitled to the full increase.

The other 30 per cent will only get a four per cent increase pending completion of their job classifications.

GEROW

. . .agreement breached

"This is a fundamental and provocative breach of the collective agreement and it's going to cause irreparable damage," Gerow warned.

The 21,700-member union had anticipated trouble at its June convention and passed a resolution calling for strike action if any members were denied the full increase.

The union's executive has scheduled an emergency meeting for Aug. 15, the first payday on which the hikes would show up.

Gerow couldn't say what action would be taken. It could mean picket lines, sit-ins or other work slowdowns and interruptions.

All 110 hospitals, including the three in Greater Victoria, would be affected.

The union had agreed in its 1980-81 contract with the association to a new classification system replacing an inadequate job evaluation program set up several years ago to rid sex and job descrimination in the industry.

The system meant finding proper classifications for about 30 per cent of the membership.

Gerow said the HLRA informed its member hospitals there was uncertainty about some provisions in the agreement and that until those matters are cleared up the unclassified workers would be limited to only a four per cent raise.

But Gerow said the agreement, as far as he was concerned, made it clear everyone was entitled to the eight per cent increase.

The raise is one of several included in the two-year agreement that will increase some employees' pay by almost 53 per cent upon completion.

Gerow said the latest action was characteristic of the HLRA and its president, Chester Hooper.

"We are hopeful it is the last double-cross," he said.

New family act draws criticism

NDP human resources critic Rosemary Brown said Friday B.C.'s new Family and Child Services Act deals specifically with children in crisis situations and does nothing at all to establish basic rights for children.

Ms. Brown said she is happy that the failure to report cases of child abuse has been made an offence and that Indian chiefs have to be notified of protection hearings, but said the bill does not address many of the concerns expressed in reaction to a white paper released in 1978.

She said it fails to look at the question of legitimacy of children and the subsidization of foster homes and adoption centres.

Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy said the reworking of the act will keep children taken into custody from drifting into the "never-never land" of procedural wrangles.

Bill 45, introduced in the legislature by Mrs. McCarthy, includes a section which will expedite custody hearings.

Like the current act, the bill specifies that the cases of children apprehended by welfare officials must be presented to a court within seven days.

However, the bill would require the courts to fix a date within 45 days for a hearing to determine if the child is in need of protection. There currently is no limit on how long the courts can take to decide the fate of a child.

Mrs. McCarthy said this will help ensure early planning for the child's future.

The bill also spells out procedures in which the superintendent of family and child services can intervene when a child is in need of protection and makes it an offence for a citizen not to report cases of suspected abuse.

Mrs. McCarthy said the bill provides for the right of every child to protection from abuse and neglect.

"But at the same time, it supports the integrity of the family as it clearly spells out limits on state intervention in family life," she said.

Narcotics stolen in break-in

A large quantity of drugs was stolen early today in a break-in at Western Drug Mart, 1913 Sooke Road.

Colwood RCMP said a glass door was kicked in and a locked cabinet containing restricted and narcotic drugs rifled.

The missing drugs included 400 tablets and multi-dose vials of demoral, 120 ounces of novohistex, five 10 cc bottles of talwin and five grams of morphine sulphate powder.

Also taken by the burglar were a gram of cocaine and four to six 15 ml vials of cophylac expectorant drops.
